Churchill Refuses To Commit British Troops To Indochina

LONDON, April 27 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill refused today to commit British troops now to Indochina. He held out the hope that the Geneva conference will arrange a cease fire in that troubled land.

Waves of cheers echoed through the House of Commons when Churchill—gripping the dispatch box before him—slowly and carefully said:

"Her Majesty's government are not prepared for any undertakings about United Kingdom military action in Indochina in advance of the results of Geneva. We have not entered into any new political or military commitments."

Churchill gave his government plenty of maneuvering room both at the 19-nation Geneva conference on Asian problems and afterward. He said his Cabinet has the fullest confidence in the course it has agreed Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden "should follow in circumstances so largely governed by the unknown."

He did not elaborate on the further steps planned.

Churchill declared the immediate military problems of the French Union forces in Indochina should not color too much the thinking at Geneva. He said:

"The episode of the siege of the French fortress of Dien Bien Phu, the fate of which now hangs in the balance, creates a violent tension in the minds at a time when calm judgement is most needed.

"The timing of the climax of this assault with the opening of the Geneva conference is not without significance, but it must not be allowed to prejudice the sense of world proportion which should inspire the conference and be a guide to those who are watching its progress."

This remark was interpreted by some as indicating that the British do not regard the possible ultimate loss of Dien Bien Phu as seriously as do the French and possibly the Americans.

Bengal Tiger All But Rips Off Arm Of Circus Worker

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP)—A hungry 800-pound Bengal tiger reached a paw through his cage today, sank his claws in a circus employe's arm and all but ripped it from the man's shoulder.

The victim, Charles Hicks, 28, of Kirksville, Mo., lost his left arm later at Polyclinic Hospital, where it was amputated at the shoulder. His condition was reported as satisfactory.

Hicks was using a rake from the outside to clean the tiger cages at Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey in Madison Square Garden.

Plane Pilot First U. S., Casualty In Indochina

HONG KONG, April 27 (AP)—The first U.S. battle casualty of the Indochina conflict was reported today—the wounding of a civilian pilot flying supplies to the besieged fortress of Dien Bien Phu.

Paul Robert Holden, Greenleaf, Kan., was wounded severely Saturday by Red ground fire, which also damaged the flying boxcar he was piloting. The plane made it back to base.

Conference Thursday

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—President Eisenhower will hold a news conference at 8 a.m., EST, Thursday.

McCARTHY VIEWS DISPUTED PHOTOS—Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis) holds two photographs which figure in a wrangle at the McCarthy-Army hearing. Smaller of two photos is one introduced into the hearing Monday, showing Army Secretary Stevens with Pvt. G. David Schine. The Army yesterday said it is a "doctored" version of larger photo, showing Stevens, Schine and an unidentified officer. The Army charged the McCarthy camp's use of the cutdown version was trickery. McCarthy denounced the accusation as "untrue."

inquiry — that of newspaper columnist George Sokolsky.

Stevens named Sokolsky as the hitherto unidentified person reported to have hinted last February that if the Army gave liberal treatment to Schine, McCarthy would tone down or maybe call off his Ft. Monmouth investigation. The Army secretary said this information was given him by Army counsel John G. Adams.

In the day's other major development, Stevens labelled "completely false" the McCarthy charge that he and associates tried through Schine to "blackmail" the subcommittee into dropping its Army probe.

Stevens went on to deny, one after another, a series of McCarthy allegations against him, and did so after Sen. Jackson (D-Wash) told him somebody in this case is laying himself open to perjury charges.

The fracas over the Stevens-Schine photograph was the hottest of the day, however. It mushroomed from an incident in the previous day's testimony, when the Army secretary was confronted with a picture showing himself and Schine—nobody else—standing beside an airplane.

Stevens denied yesterday he ever asked to be photographed "alone" with Schine. Today Welch produced another version of the Stevens-Schine photographs showing an Air Force colonel on Schine's right and the hat and arm of a civilian on Stevens' left.

In the ensuing uproar Cohn—who supplied the Senate Investigations subcommittee with the print of Stevens and Schine alone—took the witness chair for the first time since the public hearings began last Thursday.

The subcommittee's special counsel, Ray H. Jenkins, then abandoned his role of cross examiner for the time being and took the witness stand to testify he accepted the photo from Cohn in good faith.

Cohn denied any attempt to deceive the subcommittee and argued it didn't matter "one iota" whether Stevens and Schine were alone in the picture or not.

H said the point was that Stevens had such a picture taken at a time when—according to Stevens' later charges—McCarthy's office had brought "improper pressure" to get special treatment for the just-drafted Schine, former aide to McCarthy.

500,000th Airplane Produced By U. S.

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—The Aircraft Industries Assn. said today the United States produced its 500,000th airplane this month.

The industry lists the Kitty Hawk Flyer of Wilbur and Orville Wright which made its first flight Dec. 17, 1903, as airplane No. 1.

It was unable to identify U.S. plane No. 500,000 among the 1,000 or more produced during April.

But it said about half of the 500,000 have been produced in the past 10 years. The record number for one year: 96,318 in 1944.

Opening Of TB Hospitals To Negroes Proposed

BALTIMORE, April 27 (AP)—The tuberculosis committee of the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty has recommended that hospital beds in all tuberculosis hospitals in the state be opened to Negro patients as well as white.

The committee, headed by Dr. Lawrence M. Serra, made its report at its annual meeting. It urged that TB beds be open to all, regardless of color.

Test Of Polio Vaccine Spreads Across U. S.

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP)—Field trials of the new Salk vaccine for polio spread across the nation to 19 more states today and the turnout was reported generally good.

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, which is conducting the tests, said it could not yet give any total figures on the number of children vaccinated since the drive got underway yesterday.

However, the foundation reported, in most instances a high percentage of children eligible for the tests—first, second and third graders in selected communities—turned out with their parents' permission.

For test purposes, half the children get the Salk vaccine, the other half an inoculation which does not contain the vaccine.

Schwable To Escape Disciplinary Action

"Confession" To Germ War "Excusable"

But Marine's Conduct "Seriously Impairs" His Military Career

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—A special court of inquiry today recommended against disciplinary action for Col. Frank H. Schwable, 45, flying Marine, but said his false confession of germ warfare in Korea had "seriously impaired" his military career.

Secretary of Defense Wilson, Navy Secretary Anderson and Gen. Lemuel Shepherd, Marine Corps commandant, approved the court's recommendation.

Shepherd said in a statement he accepted the court's opinion that Schwable's conduct was "excusable on the ground that it was the result of mental torture."

Nevertheless, Shepherd said Schwable's confession — wrung from him under agonies of "brain washing" mistreatment by his Chinese Communist captors — constituted "a severe blow" to this country's interests, despite its falsity.

Future Left Under Cloud

As a result, Shepherd said, the colonel's future assignments would be restricted to duties imposing "minimum demands. . . upon the elements of unblemished personal example and leadership."

With his future thus left under a cloud, Schwable went to the Pentagon late in the day to inquire about his next assignment from the chief of Marine aviation. His wife told newsmen Schwable did not plan to resign or seek retirement.

The court of inquiry had been set up to determine whether Schwable's confession, wrung from him while a captive of the Reds, justified a court-martial or other discipline.

Red Torture Study Advised

Both the Marine Corps and Secretary Anderson recommended to the Defense Department that a service-wide study be made of Communist methods of physical and mental torture so that American prisoners in any future war might be better prepared to withstand the rigors of Communist captivity. Secretary Wilson said he would take the recommendation under advisement.

There was no denial from the 45-year-old flying colonel that after 14 months of captivity, mistreatment and "brainwashing" by the Communist Chinese he signed a germ warfare confession which he repudiated immediately after his release.

Schwable told the court in graphic, colorful language, of living in his own filth, suffering bone-chilling cold in a cramped cell, and undergoing constant propaganda and questioning that went on until "I lost my sense of judgment."

Monitored Phone Records Probed

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—The Senate Investigations subcommittee set out informally today on a side inquiry into whether some records of monitored telephone conversations bearing on the McCarthy-Army dispute have been destroyed.

Acting Chairman Mundt (R-SD) said two new witnesses will be called in for "exploratory" questioning behind closed doors. He declined to elaborate, but Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) said the two had given conflicting statements concerning destruction of the records.

McCarthy asked for the inquiry, saying he has obtained two statements from government employes whom he did not otherwise identify. He said one statement charged "a flagrant attempt to destroy monitored conversations adverse to civilians at the Pentagon," and the other contradicted this.

McCarthy said he personally "would not vouch" for what either statement contained. One was made under oath and the other was not, he said, but he did not indicate which was which.

Blast Rips School; 400 Escape Death Or Serious Injury

MODESTO, Calif., April 27 (AP)—Some 400 children and school personnel narrowly escaped death or serious injury today when a boiler exploded in the Bret Harte elementary school, shattering part of the building and hurling debris over a 75-yard radius.

The explosion demolished the boiler room and a store room and collapsed the wall of a first grade classroom where 25 children were studying.

The explosion was blamed on a defective boiler. It caused damage estimated at $10,000. One child's finger was cut and a teacher was slightly burned by steam.

Most Complaints Of POWs "False," Doctor Testifies

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—A surgeon who spent four years in a Japanese prisoner of war camp testified today at the court martial of Cpl. Edward S. Dickenson that 98 per cent of complaints made by POWs against one another "are false."

This statement was made by Dr. Philip Bloemsma. He was called on behalf of Dickenson, who is charged with collaborating with the Chinese Communists while a POW in Korea and with informing on his buddies.

Bloemsma's testimony followed two developments at the seventh day of the history-making trial:

1. One of the prosecution's star witnesses, Cpl. Thomas A. Carrick, of Blacksburg, Va., testified that he was so confused he wanted to have all his testimony stricken from the record. The testimony was not thrown out, however.

Dickenson's Mother Collapses

2. Dickenson's mother, Mrs. Bessie Dickenson, 46, of Cracker's Neck, Va., collapsed outside the courtroom and was ordered to take a rest after an Army doctor reported she had suffered "a nervous attack."

While the eight-member court listened with rapt attention, Dr. Bloemsma, a native of Holland and now a Washington surgeon, testified at length about a mental condition he described as a "fence complex."

The doctor said nearly every POW "loses his sense of right and wrong" after he is held captive behind a fence for any length of time.

"The fence is stamped on his mind," Bloemsma said.

Lose Sense Of Values

This fact, the witness testified, leads POWs to "very peculiar" activities. They lose their sense of values, he said, and are willing to listen to all manner of rumors.

Earlier, Carrick had been recalled for cross-examination about his testimony that he had overheard Dickenson tipping his Chinese captors to Carrick's escape efforts.

Asked whether he was going to stand on that testimony, Carrick declared: "I was mistaken—I think so—I am still confused on it."

Carrick had been the only witness to testify that he, personally, had overheard Dickenson squealing to the Chinese.

Powell Called "Key Official" In FHA Scandal

Sen. Byrd Requests Justice Department Start Legal Action

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—Sen. Byrd (D-Va) called on the Justice Department today to start "immediate legal proceedings against Clyde L. Powell," the former housing official whom he described as "the key official" in current investigations of excessive FHA-guaranteed loans.

He asked the department also to look into other programs of the Federal Housing Administration, using income tax returns if necessary, to "bring to justice any who may be criminally liable" and to seek recovery of excess profits which he said could exceed 100 million dollars.

Powell Quit FHA Job

Powell could not be reached for comment, but his attorney Daniel Maher, said he would have no immediate comment on Byrd's letter. Powell resigned as assistant FHA commissioner for rental housing. FHA said today its files show his separation as "removal with prejudice."

There was no immediate reaction from the Justice Department.

Byrd, addressing his letter to Atty. Gen. Brownell, wrote as chairman of the Joint Committee on Reduction of Non-Essential Federal Expenditures. Both that group and the Senate Banking Committee headed by Sen. Capehart (R-Ind) opened hearings last week into charges of inflated FHA-guaranteed loans on apartment buildings and alleged "fleecing" of home owners on FHA-insured repair and improvement loans.

Clammed Up At Hearing

The apartment building program ended in 1950. The alleged home repair irregularities have continued into the Eisenhower administration.

Powell appeared as a witness last week before the Capehart committee but refused to answer any questions, claiming his right against self-incrimination under the Fifth Amendment.

Byrd noted that in his letter and said because of it Powell "is beyond the power of a congressional committee to compel him to testify, and the Justice Department should take action without delay."

More Airlift Aid To French Seen

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, hurried home from Europe today for talks with President Eisenhower and top defense leaders on the Indochina war crisis.

A Pentagon spokesman said the U.S. Air Force is now studying several proposals for increased air-lift aid to Indochina, but no action has been taken so far.

The spokesman said one plan would involve U.S. Air Force contracts with non-scheduled air lines for carrying equipment to the hard-pressed French in Indochina.

American Aviation Daily, a trade publication, said a large-scale military airlift to Indochina-involving Curtis C46 cargo planes provided by the Air Force, plus more than 100 American civilian pilots — is being prepared with State Department approval.

Governors Are Reassured By Nixon At Closed Meeting

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—Vice President Nixon sought today to reassure America's governors, disturbed over the possible political dynamite lurking in talk about sending U.S. troops to Indochina.

Nixon presided over a closed-door meeting, arranged by President Eisenhower, of the governors of the 48 states and the territories of Guam, Alaska and the Virgin Islands.

A news briefing afterward by Frank Bane, conference secretary, avoided details of the talks by Nixon, acting Secretary of State Walter Bedell Smith and others. Bane called it an "intimate, off the record" meeting.

But it was learned that, in questioning Nixon, some governors voiced a fear the Eisenhower administration might be running too far ahead of the voters on foreign policy in a congressional election year.

Nixon previously has said Indochina must be saved from communism. He has said that in the unlikely event the French Union forces are withdrawn, American troops might have to be sent in.

Today he told the governors he understands the political difficulties as well as they do. But he was quoted as saying that, however reluctant the administration may be about sending U.S. troops to Indochina, "we can't let those so and so's (the Russians) know it."

This is in line with Secretary Dulles' oft-stated policy of keeping the Communists guessing, of not telegraphing where and how the United States will move.

Some governors came out of the conference saying much the same thing.

C. Of C. Head Says Some Elements Seek Depression

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—President Richard L. Bowditch of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce said tonight a depression is unlikely, but he is convinced that certain elements are trying to create one.

He charged that these elements are "conducting a form of economic germ warfare by spreading the virus of fear and hysteria," although economists and business men see no serious troubles ahead.

Same People Oppose Free Market

"The people who want a depression are the same people who would like to see our free market system come to a dead end—and then be taken over by a planned economy," he said.

"For the most part, these people have long histories of identification with so-called 'big government' movements and anti-business crusades . . ."

Bowditch, a Boston business man and former president of the New England Council, spoke at the annual reception and dinner given by the Council and New England Chambers of Commerce for the area's members of Congress.

Convention Sidelight

The dinner was a sidelight to the annual convention of the U.S. Chamber, which during the day heard two economists and two government officials discount talk of depression and report signs that an expected business upswing may already have started.

Bowditch said the present need is for "more courage, more confidence, more optimism and more salesmanship."

He said there is "nothing unexpected about the current readjustment," and nothing to indicate it will not be followed soon by improved conditions.

Russians To Leave Australia Tomorrow

CANBERRA, Australia, April 27 (AP)—Australia arranged today for the departure of 51 Russians of the closed-down Soviet embassy aboard an empty migrant ship. They will have the ship all to themselves.

Acting Foreign Minister Sir Philip McBride said the diplomats and their families would leave Thursday in two chartered airliners to board the 20,256-ton liner New Australia at Fremantle.

The Soviet Union broke off relations with Australia last week over the case of Vladimir Petrov, who fled his job as third secretary and handed over to Australian authorities documents he said exposed a Soviet spy ring here.

Georgia Woman Named American Mother Of Year

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP)—Mrs. Love McDuffie Tolbert, 65-year-old Columbus, Ga., librarian and former member of the Georgia Legislature, today was named "American mother of the year."

The announcement was made by the American Mothers Committee of the Golden Rule Foundation.

Mrs. Tolbert is the mother of five grown sons, successful business and professional men.

She was elected by a national committee from among nominees of individual states and U.S. territories.

Aly Khan Settles About 1½ Million On His Daughter

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP)—Moslem Prince Aly Khan today settled in the neighborhood of 1½ million dollars on the 4-year-old daughter of his broken marriage to Rita Hayworth.

Aly told reporters he gets custody of little Yasmin Khan for only part of each year, although he once demanded full custody.

"She will have her the major part of the year," he added.

It was the second big load off Rita's mind within 24 hours. Only yesterday, child neglect charges against her were settled and she regained custody of Yasmin, and her other daughter, Rebecca, 9.

Aly signed an agreement to contribute about $100,000 a year for the next 14 years to a fund for Yasmin. An added payment—probably around $8,000 a year—goes for the girl's support.

A decision on the child' religion apparently was put off, at least until she reaches the age of seven. Aly wants her raised in his Moslem faith. Rita wants her Christian.

House Gives Bentley Ovation Upon Return

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP) — A standing ovation greeted Rep. Bentley (R-Mich) upon his return to the House today for the first time since he and four other congressmen were shot down by Puerto Rican fanatics March 1.

Bentley responded with a speech in which he declared, "I consider myself a living example of what prayer can do if it is sincere enough."

The 35-year-old heir to an auto manufacturing fortune had been given only a 50-50 chance to live the first few days after the shooting."

Senate Approves Bill To Promote Wool Production

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—The Senate passed a bill today providing for government payments to encourage domestic wool production, but refused to tack on to it an amendment to support major crops at 90 per cent of parity for another year.

Both votes were victories for the Eisenhower administration.

The wool program, approved 69-17, had full administration support. But Secretary of Agriculture Benson wants a lower, more flexible system of farm crop supports after the present law expires at the end of the year.

Under the wool bill, domestic growers would sell their wool for whatever the market would bring. The secretary of agriculture then could make special incentive or production payments to expand wool production and increase the income of the growers.

These payments would be made from 70 per cent of the duties collected on foreign wool imports, making about 30 million dollars a year available for the program.

The special payments plan aims at ending storage of large stocks of home-grown wool in government warehouses under a previous loan program while large foreign wool imports were consumed in this country.

The measure now goes to the House, where its fate is uncertain in view of strong sentiment there for a one-package support bill instead of special treatment for the wool growing industry.

Defeat Of Korea Peace Attempts Foreshadowed

GENEVA, April 27 (AP)—Britain is supporting France in an effort to obtain a cease fire as the first step at the Geneva conference toward solving the bloody impasse in Indochina, a British source said tonight.

The 19-nation conference debated Korea today but the initial arguments foreshadowed the doom of efforts to unite and pacificy that country.

On Indochina, Prime Minister Churchill said Britain had refused to commit troops to fighting there while the conference is in progress. In the House of Commons at London, he held out the hope that the conference might work out a cease fire.

A widely circulated report here was that Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and Red China's Chou En-lai planned to propose a cease fire within the next few days. A French spokesman regarded it as untrue.

Truce, Then Negotiations

A top conference source said Britain was prepared to back up the French in seeking quickly a cease fire to be followed by negotiations with the Communist-led Vietminh. The position of the United States is that while a halt in the fighting is desirable, it should not be at the price of concessions which would ultimately prove of high cost to the Western powers.

Molotov and French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault met today at Bidault's lakeside villa. They reached a measure of agreement on invitations to be issued for the coming talks on Indochina.

The optimism of the spokesman reporting this indicated the two ministers may have found some way of getting around the announced refusal of Bao Dai, the Viet Nam chief of state, to sit at the same peace table with representatives of the Vietminh.

Korean Situation

Bidault meets Molotov again tomorrow for further discussions. A French spokesman said they did not take up a cease fire at their first meeting.

This was the situation on Korea.

South Korean's Pyun Yung Tai called for free elections in Korea under the supervision of the United Nations. This would result in a victory for the South Koreans, since they outnumber their countrymen in the north.

North Korea's Gen. Nam Il, speaking after the South Korean, presented a formula for "free elections" which was along the pattern of Soviet proposals for elections in Germany. These have been rejected by the West on the grounds they would pave the way for Communist domination.

Volunteer To Fight

DETROIT, Mich., April 27 (AP)—About 20 U.S. flier-veterans of World War II from Michigan, Ohio and West Virginia have volunteered to fight for the French in Indochina.

The Detroit French consulate, which covers the three states, reported the volunteer offers today.

Simple Facts Throw Army, M'Carthy Probe Into Dither

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—A short plane trip from New York to Ft. Dix, N. J. . . . a picture taken upon the plane's arrival.

Simple facts, these, so simple it doesn't look as if they possibly could lead to an argument.

But today they threw the hearing, McCarthy vs. U. S. Army officials, into a dither, with these assorted results:

Senator shouted at senator, lawyer needled lawyer. And committee counsel Ray Jenkins, whose job it is to get others to testify, said he had a new witness to put on the stand.

"Myself," he said, and he did.

It all started last Nov. 17. Secretary of the Army Stevens and Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) left on what was to be a memorable plane trip. At the airport they were met by Pvt. G. David Schine, a one-time consultant of the McCarthy committee and the man for whom, the Army charges, McCarthy sought favors.

A military photographer—maybe two military photographers—took pictures.

These facts seem to be pretty well accepted. But who suggested the picture, what expression was worn by those likenesses were being snapped and even who all were in the pictures—all these were in dispute.

Let's jump four months, to yesterday. A picture was introduced showing Stevens and Schine together, alone.

Today another picture was introduced. It looked like the same picture, only it also included a man identified only as a Col. Bradley and a portion of a fourth man who wasn't identified at all.

Joseph Welch, the Army's lawyer, had this view of yesterday's picture: "Doctored, altered . . . shamefully cut down." McCarthy couldn't see that it mattered.

Senator Says Army Boss Not "Giving Facts"

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) accused Secretary of the Army Stevens face to face today of "not giving us the facts" in their bitter dispute. Stevens heatedly denied it, and the fourth day of televised public hearings ended on that angry note.

It was a day of storm and stress from the outset, when (1) Stevens' lawyer accused the McCarthy forces of "shamefully doctoring" a photograph they put into evidence, and (2) the McCarthy forces retorted Stevens ordered the picture taken to butter up McCarthy and put a damper on his investigation of the Army. McCarthy's chief counsel, Roy M. Cohn, took the stand and got in some testimony on this and a number of other points.

The picture showed Pvt. G. David Schine, the drafted McCarthy aide, side by side with Stevens. The Army secretary's counsel, Joseph N. Welch Jr., produced an uncropped version showing two other men were standing with Schine and Stevens when the picture was taken.

Off and on, disputes over these poster-size photographs flared up all day, while TV cameras recorded every maneuver in the fast-shifting probe by the Senate Investigations subcommittee.

McCarthy, Stevens Tangle

Then, to cap it all, McCarthy tangled with Stevens over a report the Army made last month accusing the senator and two aides—Cohn and Francis Carr—of bringing "improper pressure" to get special treatment for draftee Schine.

"You're not giving us the facts, Bob," McCarthy chided Stevens at one point.

Hotly, the Army secretary replied: "I positively deny anything I said here was not the facts, so far as I know."

McCarthy contended Stevens filed the charges against the McCarthy side to halt their hearings on alleged espionage at Ft. Monmouth, N. J. Stevens said that just wasn't so—the Army made its report, he said, in response to a request from Sen. Potter (R-Mich).

"Let's be a little more honest now," McCarthy said

"What do you mean, 'be a little more honest?'" Stevens demanded, reddening. McCarthy ignored the question.

"Vicious Smear"

McCarthy also hammered on another point: He proposed that the "pressure" charge against Carr be thrown out as "a vicious smear" since Stevens couldn't quote anything Carr said to him by way of seeking favors for Schine.

Stevens asked for and got permission to "think overnight" before saying what charges he personally wants to press against Carr. But acting Chairman Mundt (R-SD) said the charges will stand at least until the end of the hearings. There won't be any "piecemeal" disposition of these charges, Mundt declared.

French Tighten Fort's Defenses

HANOI, Indochina, April 27 (AP)—Under pelting rains and despite heavy rebel mortar and artillery fire the French flung up new "last ditch" fortifications today in the heart of Dien Bien Phu.

The long-awaited big seasonal monsoon rains turned the northwest Indochina fortress area into lakes of red mud and crippled French air strikes at the Communist-led Vietminh besiegers.

But the French carved out more trenches and flung up thick mazes of barbed wire barricades in their main defense area, now reduced to a little less than a mile in diameter. They exchanged artillery blows with the Vietminh but there was no sign as yet of any mass rebel infantry assault.

For the French the task was to tighten the defense bulwark as much as possible. All around the main defense area the Vietminh were chipping slowly away at key spots. The French operational headquarters of Brig. Gen. Christian de Castries were less than 600 yards from advanced positions of strong Vietminh forces.

On the rim of the fortress the Vietminh set up more machine gun nests and anti-aircraft batteries to try to shoot down the planes which parachute men and material into the fortress.

Clark Criticizes U. N. Effort In Korea War As 'Piddling'

By P. D. ELDRED

SAN FRANCISCO, April 27 (AP)—Gen. Mark Clark criticizes the United Nations effort in the Korean War as "piddling" in a book to be published tomorrow.

"From the Danube to the Yalu" (Harpers) bluntly indicts the "Communist conspiracy to achieve world domination" and strongly recommends a collective security federation in the Far East to defend that strategic area against Communist aggression.

The book thus strongly indorses Secretary of State Dulles' proposal —announced earlier this month—for a new 10-nation military lineup in the Pacific along the lines of NATO in Europe.

Clark, who as commander in chief of United Nations forces negotiated the armistice ending the Korean War, doubts that "the great aggressor of our time, the Soviet Union, was impressed very much by the contributions made in Korea by U.N. members other than the United States."

Gen. Clark, who retired last fall, makes clear his belief that war should never be entered into without a firm conviction to fight it to victorious conclusion. Otherwise, he says, more Koreas.

Before he relinquished his United Nations command Gen. Clark surveyed the situation in Indochina and Southeast Asia. What he found boded ill for the future of free nations in that area, he felt.

Concluding that colonialism is finished, Clark advances several recommendations for United States policy. The foremost is organization of a defensive confederation in Asia "along the lines of NATO in Europe." He suggested calling it "PATO"—Pacific Treaty Organization.

American policy in the Far East, as Clark sees it, should entail withdrawal of U.S. ground forces from Korea and the movement of a few American infantry divisions to Okinawa and Japan, coupled with the continued buildup of the Republic of Korea army.

American infantry forces should be maintained in Japan during the time necessary for the Japanese to develop their own defenses and he continues, there should be a rapid build-up of the Vietnamese army so it could man the defenses in Indochina and permit the French to concentrate their own forces in swift-striking mobile units.

Gen. Clark would maintain a strong air and navy force ready to strike any aggressor from bases that form the front door to Asia.

One of the few books written thus far on the Korean War and its influence on free world policy, Clark's report goes into all the major issues of that conflict and its overtones.

Correspondent Says China Reds Fighting French

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP) — An NBC correspondent said last night Red China has sent three divisions of troops into the fighting in Indochina. He asserted 18,000 fresh troops marched into Indochina from China last March 25 and were immediately integrated into the Vietminh army of the Communist rebels.

The report by NBC Correspondent Ron Whitehead from Hong Kong was aired on the "News of the World" program.

The three divisions, he said, were "so-called volunteers" like those sent into Korea against the United Nations forces.

"Also," Whitehead continued, "since last September one of Red China's top organizers, Gen. Ho Hong, has been forming a special expeditionary force of 100,000 Chinese people's volunteers to aid Ho Chi Minh (Vietminh leader) in liberating Indochina from the French."

Whitehead also said the Chinese have bought uniforms in Hong Kong patterned after those worn by the Vietminh troops.

Saying French censors have been supressing reports of Chinese fighting in Indochina, the correspondent added:

"But everyone in Viet Nam knows very well they're taking part."

Churchill Refuses To Commit British Troops To Indochina

LONDON, April 27 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill refused today to commit British troops now to Indochina. He held out the hope that the Geneva conference will arrange a cease fire in that troubled land.

Waves of cheers echoed through the House of Commons when Churchill—gripping the dispatch box before him—slowly and carefully said:

"Her Majesty's government are not prepared for any undertakings about United Kingdom military action in Indochina in advance of the results of Geneva. We have not entered into any new political or military commitments."

Churchill gave his government plenty of maneuvering room both at the 19-nation Geneva conference on Asian problems and afterward. He said his Cabinet has the fullest confidence in the course it has agreed Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden "should follow in circumstances so largely governed by the unknown."

He did not elaborate on the further steps planned.

Churchill declared the immediate military problems of the French Union forces in Indochina should not color too much the thinking at Geneva. He said:

"The episode of the siege of the French fortress of Dien Bien Phu, the fate of which now hangs in the balance, creates a violent tension in the minds at a time when calm judgement is most needed.

"The timing of the climax of this assault with the opening of the Geneva conference is not without significance, but it must not be allowed to prejudice the sense of world proportion which should inspire the conference and be a guide to those who are watching its progress."

This remark was interpreted by some as indicating that the British do not regard the possible ultimate loss of Dien Bien Phu as seriously as do the French and possibly the Americans.

Bengal Tiger All But Rips Off Arm Of Circus Worker

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP)—A hungry 800-pound Bengal tiger reached a paw through his cage today, sank his claws in a circus employe's arm and all but ripped it from the man's shoulder.

The victim, Charles Hicks, 28, of Kirksville, Mo., lost his left arm later at Polyclinic Hospital, where it was amputated at the shoulder. His condition was reported as satisfactory.

Hicks was using a rake from the outside to clean the tiger cages at Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey in Madison Square Garden.

Plane Pilot First U. S., Casualty In Indochina

HONG KONG, April 27 (AP)—The first U.S. battle casualty of the Indochina conflict was reported today—the wounding of a civilian pilot flying supplies to the besieged fortress of Dien Bien Phu.

Paul Robert Holden, Greenleaf, Kan., was wounded severely Saturday by Red ground fire, which also damaged the flying boxcar he was piloting. The plane made it back to base.

Conference Thursday

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—President Eisenhower will hold a news conference at 8 a.m., EST, Thursday.

Senator Says

inquiry — that of newspaper columnist George Sokolsky.

Stevens named Sokolsky as the hitherto unidentified person reported to have hinted last February that if the Army gave liberal treatment to Schine, McCarthy would tone down or maybe call off his Ft. Monmouth investigation. The Army secretary said this information was given him by Army counsel John G. Adams.

In the day's other major development, Stevens labelled "completely false" the McCarthy charge that he and associates tried through Schine to "blackmail" the subcommittee into dropping its Army probe.

Stevens went on to deny, one after another, a series of McCarthy allegations against him, and did so after Sen. Jackson (D-Wash) told him somebody in this case is laying himself open to perjury charges.

The fracas over the Stevens-Schine photograph was the hottest of the day, however. It mushroomed from an incident in the previous day's testimony, when the Army secretary was confronted with a picture showing himself and Schine—nobody else—standing beside an airplane.

Stevens denied yesterday he ever asked to be photographed "alone" with Schine. Today Welch produced another version of the Stevens-Schine photographs showing an Air Force colonel on Schine's right and the hat and arm of a civilian on Stevens' left.

In the ensuing uproar Cohn—who supplied the Senate Investigations subcommittee with the print of Stevens and Schine alone—took the witness chair for the first time since the public hearings began last Thursday.

The subcommittee's special counsel, Ray H. Jenkins, then abandoned his role of cross examiner for the time being and took the witness stand to testify he accepted the photo from Cohn in good faith.

Cohn denied any attempt to deceive the subcommittee and argued it didn't matter "one iota" whether Stevens and Schine were alone in the picture or not.

H said the point was that Stevens had such a picture taken at a time when—according to Stevens' later charges—McCarthy's office had brought "improper pressure" to get special treatment for the just-drafted Schine, former aide to McCarthy.

500,000th Airplane Produced By U. S.

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—The Aircraft Industries Assn. said today the United States produced its 500,000th airplane this month.

The industry lists the Kitty Hawk Flyer of Wilbur and Orville Wright which made its first flight Dec. 17, 1903, as airplane No. 1.

It was unable to identify U.S. plane No. 500,000 among the 1,000 or more produced during April.

But it said about half of the 500,000 have been produced in the past 10 years. The record number for one year: 96,318 in 1944.

Opening Of TB Hospitals To Negroes Proposed

BALTIMORE, April 27 (AP)—The tuberculosis committee of the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty has recommended that hospital beds in all tuberculosis hospitals in the state be opened to Negro patients as well as white.

The committee, headed by Dr. Lawrence M. Serra, made its report at its annual meeting. It urged that TB beds be open to all, regardless of color.

Test Of Polio Vaccine Spreads Across U. S.

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP)—Field trials of the new Salk vaccine for polio spread across the nation to 19 more states today and the turnout was reported generally good.

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, which is conducting the tests, said it could not yet give any total figures on the number of children vaccinated since the drive got underway yesterday.

However, the foundation reported, in most instances a high percentage of children eligible for the tests—first, second and third graders in selected communities—turned out with their parents' permission.

For test purposes, half the children get the Salk vaccine, the other half an inoculation which does not contain the vaccine.

Md. Employment Gains But Pickup Below Usual Rate

BALTIMORE, April 27 (AP)—More people had jobs in Maryland business and industry last month than they did the month before.

But the Maryland Department of Employment Security says the increase wasn't as great as it usually is.

Figures compiled by the department today show that an estimated 779,900 workers held non-farm jobs in Maryland during March.

That is 2,200 more than in February, but analysts said the gain from February to March is usually at least twice as great, and sometimes more.

The department reported 2,300 layoffs from February to March, most in the Baltimore shipbuilding industry, described as the worst single spot in the state employment picture last month.

To counterbalance those layoffs, however, there was a gain of 4,500 jobs in non-manufacturing industry, including a 2,900 gain in construction as milder weather set in.

The workers who had jobs were making more money in March than they were a year ago. The average hourly wage in manufacturing industry last month was $1.71, compared with $1.65 in March, 1953. The average weekly earnings were $68.15, compared with $67.68.

Paul was wounded by Communist anti-aircraft fire while flying supplies into the besieged French fortress of Dien Bien Phu.

High Court Hits Home Practice By Chiropractor

ANNAPOLIS, April 27 (AP) — The Court of Appeals today said Norman E. Osborne should be enjoined from practicing his profession as a chiropractor in his home exclusively.

Osbourne has been the object of attempts since 1950 to restrain him from practicing in his Hagerstown home.

Today's high court ruling reversed Circuit Judge Joseph D. Mish who upheld Osbourne in the most recent case. The high court had upheld the chiropractor in an earlier ruling because it felt the injunction imposed was too sweeping.

But today's ruling was based on testimony that Osbourne had closed his downtown office and his only office is in his home at 1172 Northern Heights.

Neighbors who sought the injunction said the home practice was causing increased parking and traffic congestion on the terrace where they live.

The court opinion read:

"We suggest that the decree (of Mish's) should be modified to enjoin the defendant from the regular use of the premises for the practice of his profession, except as incidental or supplemental to an office elsewhere, or occasionally or in emergencies."

Osbourne's attorneys had argued that even though he closed his downtown office, the practice in his home could not be considered full time.

"While there is evidence that the practice is not as large as at the Broadway office, and that office hours are not as long, it cannot be described as incidental in any sense," the court said.

In another decision, the appeals court upheld the Carroll County court that refused to Grant Raymond E. Lloyd Jr. a divorce from his wife, Arlene, even though it viewed the case as a "pitiful one." The court said "there was no voluntary separation entered into" as had been contended.

AP Correspondent At Pittsburgh Dies

PITTSBURGH, April 27 (AP)—The body of Robert Wickliffe Temple, 45, Pittsburgh correspondent of The Associated Press who died early today, will be taken to Texarkana, Tex., for burial.

Funeral arrangements, in charge of a funeral home in Texarkana, are incomplete.

Temple joined the AP in 1933 and was assigned to the Little Rock, Ark., bureau.

He later was transferred to Pennsylvania where he worked in the AP's Pittsburgh, Harrisburg, and Philadelphia bureaus. He was named Pittsburgh correspondent in 1949.

Housewife Helping Install TV Antenna Electrocuted

HAGERSTOWN, April 27 (AP)—A 27-year-old housewife was electrocuted today at her home in northern Washington County while she and a neighbor were helping her husband install a television antenna in a tree.

Deputy Sheriff Leister Isanogle said the antenna came in contact with a 7,200 volt power line near the home.

Mrs. Kathleen Marie Keim died en route to Washington County Hospital from her home near Reid, Md., a community just south of the Pennsylvania line.

Her 29-year-old husband, Scott J. Keim, was hospitalized with severe hand burns and a head injury. Mrs. Ioletta Marie Weagley, 40, neighbor of the Keims, was released after treatment for shock and hand and foot burns.

Isanogle said the 20-foot antenna touched the power line while the two women were passing it from the ground to Keim, who was in the tree. He was knocked 17 feet to the ground.

The Keims, parents of two young children, had moved to their new home from Hagerstown about a month ago and came back here today to get the atenna from their former house.

Keim is employed at the Fairchild Aircraft Division north of here.

McKeldin Says State Needs Help To Solve Alcoholism Problem

BALTIMORE, April 27 (AP) — The State is doing its share in combatting alcoholism, but other agencies' help is needed to conquer the problem, Gov. McKeldin said tonight.

The governor, who doesn't drink himself, said "This is a problem for the entire community" and a field for cooperation rather than competition.

In a speech prepared for the opening of Maryland's first information center set up by the Maryland Society on Alcoholism, McKeldin said:

"We have not learned nearly enough about alcoholism — its causes or its cures.

"But we have made great and commendable progress in accepting the fact that it is a human disease—and not an anti-social pattern of behavior or a stigma of human contrariness."

An encouraging sign of this, he said, is the changing attitude of the churches toward alcoholism."

The governor noted that four alcoholism clinics in different counties have been established by the State Health Department, and "we shall fill the gaps with more."

But to think the State alone can conquer the problem would be inconceivable, he said.

More than 50 per cent of the people in the United States have pronounced defects in vision.

Glenn L. Martin Co. Sales Ahead Of 1953

BALTIMORE, April 27 (AP) — The Glenn L. Martin Co. today reported sales for the first quarter of the year about 22 per cent ahead of the same period in 1953.

Net income was $2,407,061, an increase of $652,982 over the first three months of last year and was equivalent to $1.10 a share on 2,183,968 shares now outstanding.

Martin manufactures the American version of the British Canberra twin jet bomber, Matador guided missiles and part of the NIKE missiles for the Air Force.

Used houses account for 75 per cent of the annual residential sales in the United States.

Clark Criticizes U. N. Effort In Korea War As 'Piddling'

By P. D. ELDRED

SAN FRANCISCO, April 27 (AP)—Gen. Mark Clark criticizes the United Nations effort in the Korean War as "piddling" in a book to be published tomorrow.

"From the Danube to the Yalu" (Harpers) bluntly indicts the "Communist conspiracy to achieve world domination" and strongly recommends a collective security federation in the Far East to defend that strategic area against Communist aggression.

The book thus strongly indorses Secretary of State Dulles' proposal —announced earlier this month—for a new 10-nation military lineup in the Pacific along the lines of NATO in Europe.

Clark, who as commander in chief of United Nations forces negotiated the armistice ending the Korean War, doubts that "the great aggressor of our time, the Soviet Union, was impressed very much by the contributions made in Korea by U.N. members other than the United States."

Gen. Clark, who retired last fall, makes clear his belief that war should never be entered into without a firm conviction to fight it to victorious conclusion. Otherwise, he says, more Koreas.

Before he relinquished his United Nations command Gen. Clark surveyed the situation in Indochina and Southeast Asia. What he found boded ill for the future of free nations in that area, he felt.

Concluding that colonialism is finished, Clark advances several recommendations for United States policy. The foremost is organization of a defensive confederation in Asia "along the lines of NATO in Europe." He suggested calling it "PATO"—Pacific Treaty Organization.

American policy in the Far East, as Clark sees it, should entail withdrawal of U.S. ground forces from Korea and the movement of a few American infantry divisions to Okinawa and Japan, coupled with the continued buildup of the Republic of Korea army.

American infantry forces should be maintained in Japan during the time necessary for the Japanese to develop their own defenses and he continues, there should be a rapid build-up of the Vietnamese army so it could man the defenses in Indochina and permit the French to concentrate their own forces in swift-striking mobile units.

Gen. Clark would maintain a strong air and navy force ready to strike any aggressor from bases that form the front door to Asia.

One of the few books written thus far on the Korean War and its influence on free world policy, Clark's report goes into all the major issues of that conflict and its overtones.

Correspondent Says China Reds Fighting French

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP) — An NBC correspondent said last night Red China has sent three divisions of troops into the fighting in Indochina. He asserted 18,000 fresh troops marched into Indochina from China last March 25 and were immediately integrated into the Vietminh army of the Communist rebels.

The report by NBC Correspondent Ron Whitehead from Hong Kong was aired on the "News of the World" program.

The three divisions, he said, were "so-called volunteers" like those sent into Korea against the United Nations forces.

"Also," Whitehead continued, "since last September one of Red China's top organizers, Gen. Ho Hong, has been forming a special expeditionary force of 100,000 Chinese people's volunteers to aid Ho Chi Minh (Vietminh leader) in liberating Indochina from the French."

Whitehead also said the Chinese have bought uniforms in Hong Kong patterned after those worn by the Vietminh troops.

Saying French censors have been supressing reports of Chinese fighting in Indochina, the correspondent added:

"But everyone in Viet Nam knows very well they're taking part."

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

The night may have a thousand eyes, but you have only two, and you want them to sparkle. That means getting enough sleep to prevent the shadows from circling them, and acquiring know-how with eye-grooming aids to enhance their loveliness.

This is a season of accented eyes, and you will want to practice the techniques of applying shadow and mascara. But there are certain basics to eye beauty, aside from makeup, that should be on your dressing table.

One is a professional-type tweezer, the second a rich lash cream, and the third an eyelash curler — for the last touch of glamour.

About Your Brows

Attempting to alter your brow line is as pointless as trying to change the color of your eyes! Your brows, like other facial characteristics, have their particular distinction. So simply tweeze away the straggling hairs from the lower (never the upper) part of your browline, and those that effect a frown across the nose.

To find the right point at which your eyebrows should start, hold a pencil at the outer edge of the nostril, straight up to the brow. Mark the point where it crosses your eyebrows and remove all hairs from there across your nose. For perfect facial balance, the highest point of the eyebrow arch should be directly over the pupil of the eye as you look straight ahead.

If you do not use mascara, a colorless pomade will give depth and a look of trimness to your brows and lashes. Apply the cream gently to the browline, to make the hairs lie flat in a glistening arch; to the lids, to give a healthy, dewy sheen, and stroke it on the lashes with your forefinger or a small brush, to make your lashes appear longer and thicker by darkening every hair down to the tip.

If you wear mascara by day, apply the lash cream by night, to help promote luxuriant lashes and brows. Pomade should never be used with mascara, for the two are chemically incompatible.

Curling Lashes

When lashes are swept upward, more of the iris is revealed and eyes look larger, more luminous . . . hence, the eyelash curler. On the occasion that you bypass mascara, use the pomade to make lashes pliable before curling. When you do wear mascara, assure its equal application by inserting your lashes into the curler, then smoothing the mascara to the very tips of the hairs as they are held in the curved bow.

Do, please, be careful to apply your lash cream, or your mascara, evenly so the the outer and thinner lashes appear as thick as the cente ones. Always strive for a natural effect which (as every charm-wise woman knows) is achieved by using beauty aids with art and discretion. Grooming aids for eyes included!

Md. Employment Gains But Pickup Below Usual Rate

BALTIMORE, April 27 (AP)—More people had jobs in Maryland business and industry last month than they did the month before.

But the Maryland Department of Employment Security says the increase wasn't as great as it usually is.

Figures compiled by the department today show that an estimated 779,900 workers held non-farm jobs in Maryland during March.

That is 2,200 more than in February, but analysts said the gain from February to March is usually at least twice as great, and sometimes more.

The department reported 2,300 layoffs from February to March, most in the Baltimore shipbuilding industry, described as the worst single spot in the state employment picture last month.

To counterbalance those layoffs, however, there was a gain of 4,500 jobs in non-manufacturing industry, including a 2,900 gain in construction as milder weather set in.

The workers who had jobs were making more money in March than they were a year ago. The average hourly wage in manufacturing industry last month was $1.71, compared with $1.65 in March, 1953. The average weekly earnings were $68.15, compared with $67.68.

S. casualty of the Indochina War. They are shown in Greenleaf, Kan. At left is a brother, E. W. Holden, and at right is his mother, Mrs. Anna Holden. High Court Hits Home Practice By Chiropractor

ANNAPOLIS, April 27 (AP) — The Court of Appeals today said Norman E. Osborne should be enjoined from practicing his profession as a chiropractor in his home exclusively.

Osbourne has been the object of attempts since 1950 to restrain him from practicing in his Hagerstown home.

Today's high court ruling reversed Circuit Judge Joseph D. Mish who upheld Osbourne in the most recent case. The high court had upheld the chiropractor in an earlier ruling because it felt the injunction imposed was too sweeping.

But today's ruling was based on testimony that Osbourne had closed his downtown office and his only office is in his home at 1172 Northern Heights.

Neighbors who sought the injunction said the home practice was causing increased parking and traffic congestion on the terrace where they live.

The court opinion read:

"We suggest that the decree (of Mish's) should be modified to enjoin the defendant from the regular use of the premises for the practice of his profession, except as incidental or supplemental to an office elsewhere, or occasionally or in emergencies."

Osbourne's attorneys had argued that even though he closed his downtown office, the practice in his home could not be considered full time.

"While there is evidence that the practice is not as large as at the Broadway office, and that office hours are not as long, it cannot be described as incidental in any sense," the court said.

In another decision, the appeals court upheld the Carroll County court that refused to Grant Raymond E. Lloyd Jr. a divorce from his wife, Arlene, even though it viewed the case as a "pitiful one." The court said "there was no voluntary separation entered into" as had been contended.

AP Correspondent At Pittsburgh Dies

PITTSBURGH, April 27 (AP)—The body of Robert Wickliffe Temple, 45, Pittsburgh correspondent of The Associated Press who died early today, will be taken to Texarkana, Tex., for burial.

Funeral arrangements, in charge of a funeral home in Texarkana, are incomplete.

Temple joined the AP in 1933 and was assigned to the Little Rock, Ark., bureau.

He later was transferred to Pennsylvania where he worked in the AP's Pittsburgh, Harrisburg, and Philadelphia bureaus. He was named Pittsburgh correspondent in 1949.

Housewife Helping Install TV Antenna Electrocuted

HAGERSTOWN, April 27 (AP)—A 27-year-old housewife was electrocuted today at her home in northern Washington County while she and a neighbor were helping her husband install a television antenna in a tree.

Deputy Sheriff Leister Isanogle said the antenna came in contact with a 7,200 volt power line near the home.

Mrs. Kathleen Marie Keim died en route to Washington County Hospital from her home near Reid, Md., a community just south of the Pennsylvania line.

Her 29-year-old husband, Scott J. Keim, was hospitalized with severe hand burns and a head injury. Mrs. Ioletta Marie Weagley, 40, neighbor of the Keims, was released after treatment for shock and hand and foot burns.

Isanogle said the 20-foot antenna touched the power line while the two women were passing it from the ground to Keim, who was in the tree. He was knocked 17 feet to the ground.

The Keims, parents of two young children, had moved to their new home from Hagerstown about a month ago and came back here today to get the atenna from their former house.

Keim is employed at the Fairchild Aircraft Division north of here.

McKeldin Says State Needs Help To Solve Alcoholism Problem

BALTIMORE, April 27 (AP) — The State is doing its share in combatting alcoholism, but other agencies' help is needed to conquer the problem, Gov. McKeldin said tonight.

The governor, who doesn't drink himself, said "This is a problem for the entire community" and a field for cooperation rather than competition.

In a speech prepared for the opening of Maryland's first information center set up by the Maryland Society on Alcoholism, McKeldin said:

"We have not learned nearly enough about alcoholism — its causes or its cures.

"But we have made great and commendable progress in accepting the fact that it is a human disease—and not an anti-social pattern of behavior or a stigma of human contrariness."

An encouraging sign of this, he said, is the changing attitude of the churches toward alcoholism."

The governor noted that four alcoholism clinics in different counties have been established by the State Health Department, and "we shall fill the gaps with more."

But to think the State alone can conquer the problem would be inconceivable, he said.

More than 50 per cent of the people in the United States have pronounced defects in vision.

Glenn L. Martin Co. Sales Ahead Of 1953

Net income was $2,407,061, an increase of $652,982 over the first three months of last year and was equivalent to $1.10 a share on 2,183,968 shares now outstanding.

Martin manufactures the American version of the British Canberra twin jet bomber, Matador guided missiles and part of the NIKE missiles for the Air Force.

Used houses account for 75 per cent of the annual residential sales in the United States.

Maxine M. Morris Is Bride Of Gerald Donald Spangler

Miss Maxine Margarete Morris, daughter of Mrs. Charles Witt, Creek Road, and John Morris, Woodside Avenue, became the bride of Gerald Donald Spangler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Spangler, 1 Lyon Street, Ridgeley, W. Va., on Easter Sunday.

The wedding ceremony was solemnized at 4 p. m. in Mt. Herman Methodist Church with Rev. Benny Myers officiating. The church was decorated with bouquets of lilies against a background of palms.

Miss Sarah Louise Morris was her sister's maid of honor, while another sister, Miss Mary Catherine Morris, was the bridesmaid. Edward Dickel served as Mr. Spangler's best man and the ushers were James Edward Morris and Golden Barger.

Miss Caroline Hull was vocalist, singing "O Promise Me," and during the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer." She was accompanied by Mrs. Walter Taschenberger, who also played the traditional wedding march from the opera Lohengrin, and Mendelssohn's recessional.

The bride was attired in a ballerina-length gown of white taffeta, fashioned with a Chantilly lace yoke. With it she wore matching gloves and a shoulder-length veil of bridal illusion, held by a taffeta tiara. Completing her costume, she carried a white Bible with an orchid marker.

Her maid of honor wore a baby blue taffeta gown, made complimentary to the bride's. With it she had a matching hat and gloves, and carried a fan-shaped bouquet of pink roses. The bridesmaid's gown and accessories were pink taffeta and her bouquet of pink roses.

Both mothers chose navy blue costumes and corsages of pink roses.

The bride is a graduate of Fort Hill High School, class of 1953, and is employed by the Cumberland Undergarment Company.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Ridgeley High School, class of 1949, served 30 months in Germany with the Army and is employed at the A and P Super Market.

A wedding reception was held in the social room of the church following the ceremony. The pink and white motif was carried out in the decorations with streamers and bouquets of gladioli and daisy chrysanthemums. The bridal theme was carried out in the tiered wedding cake, adorned with a miniature bride and bridegroom.

For their wedding trip the bride chose a navy blue suit with which she wore her orchid corsage.

A Nominating committee is to be elected and Mrs. Ray Rohrer, Hagerstown, will explain the proposed plan to incorporate the RWSC clubs within the state Homemakers Organization.

The 28th annual RWSC meeting is being held at the University of Maryland June 14-19.

Historic Gardens Are Open

Springtime in Virginia means bulb blooming time. These colorful bulbs are features of many of the gardens that will be open during Historic Garden Week, April 24 through May 1.

Some 7,000 tulip bulbs will be in bloom at Kinloch, halfway between Charlottesville and Gordonsville, Route 231. More than 5,000 new tulips of rare varieties and color planted last fall should be at the peak of perfection. Among the new tulips are lily flowering, species, Darwin, cottage, late double flowering and breeder. The gardens at Kinloch are divided into 11 formal "rooms" grouped about a large central garden. Among them are lilacs, peonies, tulips, iris, herbs and wild flower plantings.

Also in the Charlottesville area, Morven and Rose Hill have beautiful bulb gardens. The gardens at Morven were especially planted for spring bloom and have a wide selection of tulips and other flowers. At Rose Hill the garden is a mass of tulips and azaleas, pink magnolias and wildflowers.

Ridgelea, Warrenton, open today only, has a woodland garden of flowering trees, bulbs and native plants.

One of the most magnificent of the James River estates, Brandon has gardens which extend to the river. There are quantities of bulbs planted to give color to this old estate which was once owned by the Nathaniel Harrison family.

The garden at Forest Hill, Waynesboro, open today, is terraced over two acres and has special areas featuring a rock garden and pool. It contains iris, peonies and seasonal bloom, in addition to over 2,000 boxwood, 100 azaleas and 400 roses.

Tulips, iris, lilacs, boxwood and yew are featured in the gardens at Belfield, in Lexington, open tomorrow.

The famed free azalea gardens at Norfolk Municipal Garden draw many Garden Week visitors each year, although the garden is open the year round. It contains over 100,000 azaleas and more than 500 varieties of camellias. Many kinds of bulbs, rhododendrons, hollies and other varieties of wild flowers and shrubs help to make this one of the most beautiful free gardens on this continent.

An official guide book, dividing the State into 36 districts for the convenience of visitors, may be obtained from The Garden Club of Virginia, sponsors of Historic Garden Week, Room 3, Hotel Jefferson, Richmond 19, Virginia, without cost.

To Entertain Mothers

All mothers of active DeMolay boys are requested to attend the entertainment the boys are having for them tonight.

WIFE PRESERVERS

To pan fry frozen vegetables, use a heavy frying pan with a cover. Put about one tablespoon of melted butter or margarine in it, then put in one pint (two cups) of the frozen vegetable, cover and cook over a low heat until thawed, then cook until just tender, and season to taste.

Club Names Short Course Delegates

Delegates to the RWSC in June were chosen and reports given at the meeting of the Progressive Young Women's Club of Potomac Valley, which was held Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Garland Paxton, Potomac Park. Mrs. K. O. Nelson presided. Mrs. James Armstrong was named delegate with Mrs. Robert Eyler her alternate.

The Lord's Prayer was recited in unison and the history of the French Canadian song, "Alouette," was given by Mrs. Harry Barton. Roll call was answered with safety precautions in the home and routine reports were given.

Mrs. Millie Thomas reported on the tour of the embassies last Saturday, which was made by eight members of the club. Mrs. Edward Shaffer, Family Life chairman, reported on the training meeting conducted by Mrs. Jeanne S. Moehn, specialist from the University of Maryland, last month. Mrs. Shaffer and Mrs. Paxton dramatized a skit, "Understanding Teen-agers." A report on polio was given by Miss Margaret Morrissey, county health nurse.

Mrs. Walter Richardson and Mrs. Charles Wendt were welcomed as new members. Aprons, which will be sold at the homemakers booth at the Community Flower Show May 6 and 7 in Emmanuel Episcopal parish house, sponsored by the Garden Group of the Woman's Civic Club, were displayed. Concluding the meeting refreshments were served.

Others attending were Mrs. Robert Johnson, Mrs. William Hansel, Mrs. Arthur Evans, Mrs. Eyler, Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. Harry Grimes, Mrs. Chelsea Miller, Mrs. Caleb White and Mrs. L. G. Bridgers.

The May 24 meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Armstrong.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

The night may have a thousand eyes, but you have only two, and you want them to sparkle. That means getting enough sleep to prevent the shadows from circling them, and acquiring know-how with eye-grooming aids to enhance their loveliness.

This is a season of accented eyes, and you will want to practice the techniques of applying shadow and mascara. But there are certain basics to eye beauty, aside from makeup, that should be on your dressing table.

One is a professional-type tweezer, the second a rich lash cream, and the third an eyelash curler — for the last touch of glamour.

About Your Brows

Attempting to alter your brow line is as pointless as trying to change the color of your eyes! Your brows, like other facial characteristics, have their particular distinction. So simply tweeze away the straggling hairs from the lower (never the upper) part of your browline, and those that effect a frown across the nose.

To find the right point at which your eyebrows should start, hold a pencil at the outer edge of the nostril, straight up to the brow. Mark the point where it crosses your eyebrows and remove all hairs from there across your nose. For perfect facial balance, the highest point of the eyebrow arch should be directly over the pupil of the eye as you look straight ahead.

If you do not use mascara, a colorless pomade will give depth and a look of trimness to your brows and lashes. Apply the cream gently to the browline, to make the hairs lie flat in a glistening arch; to the lids, to give a healthy, dewy sheen, and stroke it on the lashes with your forefinger or a small brush, to make your lashes appear longer and thicker by darkening every hair down to the tip.

If you wear mascara by day, apply the lash cream by night, to help promote luxuriant lashes and brows. Pomade should never be used with mascara, for the two are chemically incompatible.

Curling Lashes

When lashes are swept upward, more of the iris is revealed and eyes look larger, more luminous . . . hence, the eyelash curler. On the occasion that you bypass mascara, use the pomade to make lashes pliable before curling. When you do wear mascara, assure its equal application by inserting your lashes into the curler, then smoothing the mascara to the very tips of the hairs as they are held in the curved bow.

Do, please, be careful to apply your lash cream, or your mascara, evenly so the the outer and thinner lashes appear as thick as the cente ones. Always strive for a natural effect which (as every charm-wise woman knows) is achieved by using beauty aids with art and discretion. Grooming aids for eyes included!

"WHAT'S YOUR LINE?" — Horizontal, vertical and diagonal lines make a world of difference in what clothing will do for (or to) your figure! Izvestia Blasts Soviet Drug Stores For Their Perilously Slow Service

MOSCOW, April 27 (AP) — Citizens Ivan Ivanovich Ivanov—the Russian Joe Doakes—lies stricken with heart trouble in his room in Moscow.

His wife rushes to a Soviet drug store for the stimulant he needs.

"Come back for it eight hours from now," the drug store clerk says.

She tries another drug store.

"We don't have the medicine," the clerk says.

Ivan Ivanovich Ivanov, meanwhile, perishes.

This hypothetical situation could happen in Moscow. No less an authority than the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia indicated, after carrying out a survey of the service given by Moscow pharmacies, that even in the Soviet capital itself drug store service is slow and inefficient and that many medicines are in short supply.

Izvestia found that thousands of people every day were being turned away from drug stores empty handed. They could not get their prescriptions filled because important drugs were lacking, including drugs needed for treatment of such urgent illnesses as heart trouble.

Furthermore, the Soviet paper discovered, when the drugs were available it might take from six to eight hours all the way up to a whole day to get badly needed medicine prepared.

Saying that under existing rules pharmacists are required to prepare any medicine within two hours and to prepare immediately any prescription marked urgent, Izvestia commented:

"Just try, however, to get within this time a prescribed medicine ordered in the drug stores of Orel, Chelyabinsk, Astrakhan, or even Moscow. Minimum of from six to eight hours is required for this and sometimes a whole 24 hours. One has to wait 24 hours for a medicine for someone who is ill and needs urgent help . . . the supply of medicines and medical preparations for the population needs improvement."

RESULT OF GIRL'S FIRST DRIVING LESSON—It is perfectly obvious what went wrong with Barbara Swain's first auto driving lesson. She went through the side of the garage instead of using the front entrance. The 16-year-old Detroit high school student persuaded her boy friend to let her drive and then lost control of the vehicle as she leaped a curb, knocked a 16-year-old youngster onto the hood of the car, tore off the side of one garage and landed in the one above. Barbara was ticketed for reckless driving and her boy friend was ticketed for permitting an unlicensed driver to operate an auto.

Tenn. Lawyer Proves Star Of McCarthy-Army Drama

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—A Tennessee lawyer who had never so much as looked at a Senate hearing before has been the star of the McCarthy-Army drama.

His name is Ray Jenkins, and he has come out of Knoxville to play not one, but three, roles in a hearing that probably is unique in U. S. history.

As special counsel, it's his job to help the Senate Investigations Committee find out who's lying in the charges, countercharges and even counter-countercharges that have been flying between Army officials and Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis).

It's a tough job. So a reporter asked him, in the recess between morning and afternoon sessions, what experience he had had with senatorial hearings. Had he ever attended one?

"Hell fire," said Jenkins, grinning, "I never had even heard of one."

Yet there he is, surrounded by senators, generals, administration big shots, photographers and reporters, hard at work on his triple-threat chores.

First, Jenkins seems to be a sort of witness helper. He brings up the topics a witness wants to talk about, asks the question that will help nail down his story, and may even, as he did yesterday with Secretary of the Army Stevens, wonder if there is anything at all to be added that might help the case.

When that's finished, Jenkins takes off his legal boxing gloves and reaches for the brass knucks.

He always apologizes as he does so. He explained that it's part of his job to cross-examine the witness, to probe around for weak spots in the story.

But in spite of the apology, it's obvious that Jenkins, in a field in which he has had a lifetime of experience as a criminal lawyer, is in the role he likes best. He grins as he wades in.

There's a third role Jenkins must perform, too. He's also the judge whenever any tricky question of legal procedure comes up. His judgment is necessary since the chairman, Sen. Mundt (R-SD), is a onetime elocution teacher with no legal training.

Jenkins' decisions are subject to the committee's approval, of course, but so far he's had it, unanimously.

It's too early to tell how Jenkins will make out, but this has been obvious from the start:

He may be a country boy, but he isn't awed by his surroundings.

Jenkins has ruled against McCarthy a couple of times, and yesterday morning, when Stevens was trying to talk, he held up his hand and commanded, "Wait, wait, wait." Stevens waited.

Occasionally Jenkins drops into the talk of the East Tennessee hills whence he came.

He was trying to get Stevens to admit that he was trying to get McCarthy to drop his inquiry into alleged communism in the Army when he (Stevens) went to New York to meet with the senator.

Jenkins put it more colorfully. If this wasn't "mollifying and pacifying," why did Stevens "go traipsin' off to New York?"

Latin American Reds' Activities Show Increase

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—The U. S. Information Agency reported today that communism in Latin America, despite a drop in membership, is stepping up its activities through "national liberation fronts" and lavish help from Moscow.

The USIA is sending this commentary by wireless to its information outlets throughout the free world.

The agency, headed by Director Theodore C. Streibert, was set up last year as an independent unit outside the State Department to operate the Voice of America, a worldwide radio outlet. The agency also has press, library and motion picture facilities abroad.

Streibert has described the agency's chief task as defeating Communist propaganda aimed at breaking free world unity.

The agency said a recent government survey shows that Communist party membership in Latin America has declined one-third since the end of World War II.

However, the agency said South American Reds have strengthened their ties with the Kremlin and satellite countries through "national liberation fronts," deeper infiltration of labor unions and other key organizations, and have increased their attendance at Communist-sponsored meetings in Europe and Asia.

The agency estimated that the Communist party in Latin America now has a "select" membership of 200,000.

This group operates throughout Latin America, it said, although 13 of the 20 republics have outlawed the party.

The survey said Latin Americans are treated to guided tours of Moscow and Peiping. In addition, it said, large sums are paid for newspaper articles and radio broadcasts devoted to Communist scenes.

Films and other propaganda are provided for distribution at home, the agency said.

In this connection, Streibert last week reported a sharp increase in pro-Red movies in Southeast Asia.

Streibert said that both Chhnese —and Russian-made films with Chinese subtitles were giving stiff competition to pictures made by the West and distributed to Southeast Asia.

In its survey of Latin America, the USIA said the Communist party has practically no direct power in lawmaking bodies outside of Guatemala. However, it said, the Reds have been able to build front organizations into "instruments of pressure on governments."

In Guatemala Communists occupied four of the 56 seats in Congress, it said, and although there were only about 2,000 party members, Communists and Red sympathizers control organized labor and hold key posts in the government.

U. S. Gives China Communists Cold Social Shoulder

GENEVA, Switzerland, April 27 (AP)—A reliable source said today the U.S. delegation at the Geneva conference is turning a cold social shoulder to the Chinese Communists.

This informant indicated members of the U.S. delegation would go to no receptions or parties arranged by China's Premier - Foreign Minister Chou En-lai. If they go to parties where the Chinese are present, they won't mix with them.

Secretary Dulles is apparently setting the pattern. Although he is seated but four seats away from Chou at the conference table, he has not shaken hands or spoken to Chou. Dulles has also ignored the North Koreans headed by Gen. Nam Il.

Chinese Reds View Delegation As Equal

GENEVA, April 27 (AP)—A Chinese Communist spokesman said today his delegation considers itself equal in every way to the Big Four delegations at the Geneva conference.

Russia shares this view. The United States, Britain and France consider Red China is here not as the fifth member of a world Big Five but as a nation involved on the Communist side in two Asian wars.

The Communist spokesman, Foreign Office Counsellor Huang Hua, made the statement at a news conference in answer to a reporter's question.

The atomic attack on Hiroshima dstroyed three-fifths of the city.

Maxine M. Morris Is Bride Of Gerald Donald Spangler

Miss Maxine Margarete Morris, daughter of Mrs. Charles Witt, Creek Road, and John Morris, Woodside Avenue, became the bride of Gerald Donald Spangler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Spangler, 1 Lyon Street, Ridgeley, W. Va., on Easter Sunday.

The wedding ceremony was solemnized at 4 p. m. in Mt. Herman Methodist Church with Rev. Benny Myers officiating. The church was decorated with bouquets of lilies against a background of palms.

Miss Sarah Louise Morris was her sister's maid of honor, while another sister, Miss Mary Catherine Morris, was the bridesmaid. Edward Dickel served as Mr. Spangler's best man and the ushers were James Edward Morris and Golden Barger.

Miss Caroline Hull was vocalist, singing "O Promise Me," and during the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer." She was accompanied by Mrs. Walter Taschenberger, who also played the traditional wedding march from the opera Lohengrin, and Mendelssohn's recessional.

The bride was attired in a ballerina-length gown of white taffeta, fashioned with a Chantilly lace yoke. With it she wore matching gloves and a shoulder-length veil of bridal illusion, held by a taffeta tiara. Completing her costume, she carried a white Bible with an orchid marker.

Her maid of honor wore a baby blue taffeta gown, made complimentary to the bride's. With it she had a matching hat and gloves, and carried a fan-shaped bouquet of pink roses. The bridesmaid's gown and accessories were pink taffeta and her bouquet of pink roses.

Both mothers chose navy blue costumes and corsages of pink roses.

The pink and white motif was carried out in the decorations with streamers and bouquets of gladioli and daisy chrysanthemums. The bridal theme was carried out in the tiered wedding cake, adorned with a miniature bride and bridegroom.

For their wedding trip the bride chose a navy blue suit with which she wore her orchid corsage.

Historic Gardens Are Open

Springtime in Virginia means bulb blooming time. These colorful bulbs are features of many of the gardens that will be open during Historic Garden Week, April 24 through May 1.

Some 7,000 tulip bulbs will be in bloom at Kinloch, halfway between Charlottesville and Gordonsville, Route 231. More than 5,000 new tulips of rare varieties and color planted last fall should be at the peak of perfection. Among the new tulips are lily flowering, species, Darwin, cottage, late double flowering and breeder. The gardens at Kinloch are divided into 11 formal "rooms" grouped about a large central garden. Among them are lilacs, peonies, tulips, iris, herbs and wild flower plantings.

Also in the Charlottesville area, Morven and Rose Hill have beautiful bulb gardens. The gardens at Morven were especially planted for spring bloom and have a wide selection of tulips and other flowers. At Rose Hill the garden is a mass of tulips and azaleas, pink magnolias and wildflowers.

Ridgelea, Warrenton, open today only, has a woodland garden of flowering trees, bulbs and native plants.

One of the most magnificent of the James River estates, Brandon has gardens which extend to the river. There are quantities of bulbs planted to give color to this old estate which was once owned by the Nathaniel Harrison family.

The garden at Forest Hill, Waynesboro, open today, is terraced over two acres and has special areas featuring a rock garden and pool. It contains iris, peonies and seasonal bloom, in addition to over 2,000 boxwood, 100 azaleas and 400 roses.

Tulips, iris, lilacs, boxwood and yew are featured in the gardens at Belfield, in Lexington, open tomorrow.

The famed free azalea gardens at Norfolk Municipal Garden draw many Garden Week visitors each year, although the garden is open the year round. It contains over 100,000 azaleas and more than 500 varieties of camellias. Many kinds of bulbs, rhododendrons, hollies and other varieties of wild flowers and shrubs help to make this one of the most beautiful free gardens on this continent.

An official guide book, dividing the State into 36 districts for the convenience of visitors, may be obtained from The Garden Club of Virginia, sponsors of Historic Garden Week, Room 3, Hotel Jefferson, Richmond 19, Virginia, without cost.

Braddock Farms Junk Yard Is Target Of Complaints

A group of 32 residents of the Braddock Farms section sent a petition to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday complaining over the operation of a junk yard in their neighborhood.

The letter stated that the Feldstein Iron and Metal Company is creating a nuisance and hazards by the manner in which the junk yard is maintained. The junk yard is located in the rear of the old distillery building which faces on U. S. Route 40, according to county officials.

It was charged in the petition that children use the junk yard as a "treasure hunt" area, workmen block the roadway when unloading materials, much noise is made in the unloading at night and on Sundays and some of the junk obstructs traffic.

The petition was referred to Gorman E. Getty, board attorney, for investigation of the law pertaining to operation of such business. The matter will also be checked by the board to determine if the law is being violated.

A letter was received from John F. Gallagher, of Mt. Savage, concerning an open sewer in front of St. Patrick's Hall and opposite the Methodist Church in that community.

Gallagher said the open sewer cannot be seen by motorists traveling the road and some drivers have had accidents when their machines struck it. He offered to point out the sewer to anyone the county sends to investigate. The matter was referred to J. Walker Chapman, county roads supervisor.

The bid of the St. George Motor Company of Cumberland to furnish a car for use by the Health Department was accepted by the commissioners. The St. George firm offered a new car for a net price of $996.70 after allowance of a trade in on a car now in use.

Other bids, all higher than the St. George firm, were made by Frostburg Auto Company, Steinla Motor Company and Eiler Chevrolet Company.

There are now six recognized varieties of turkeys in the United States — Bronze, Narragansett, White Holland, Bourbon Red, Black and Slate.

Milk Producer Union To Meet

The newly organized Allegany Milk Producers Cooperative Union will meet tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. in the LaVale Fire Hall.

John T. Mason, Cresaptown, temporary chairman, said further details of organization will be set up.

The group was formed at a meeting of 40 dairymen last week in the LaVale Fire Hall. Of the 40 present, 22 of the milk producers affiliated themselves with the association.

Roy F. Blocher, of near Meyersdale, president of the Tri-State Milk Producers Association, opened the initial meeting and conducted a short discussion on the possibilities of a federal milk control order in the area.

He then turned the meeting over to Mason who introduced H. L. Mitchell, of the Natoinal Agricultural Workers Union, AFL.

Mitchell explained how an organization of his type can help the farmers.

He recommended the majority of farmers to sign up so that the cooperative union would become effective. He also suggested the association be operated by a board of directors elected by the membership.

Thomas G. Barton of Pinto was appointed temporary secretary-treasurer.

Man Sentenced, Held For Parole Violation

Wesley J. Kipe, RD 1, Oldtown Road, was given a 30-day jail sentence today in Police Court in default of $30 fine imposed on two misdemeanor charges.

Authorities accused him of causing a disturbance early yesterday morning in South End. Magistrate Donald W. Mason ordered Kipe held for parole violation.

Council Hears Objection To Junk Yard Location

A protest against the operation of a junk yard on Wineow Street was lodged with the Mayor and City Council yesterday by George Millenson, South End Businessman.

But the city cannot do anything about the location of the junkyard. City Attorney Thomas B. Finan pointed out that in a recent case in Allegany County Circuit Court it was ruled that a South End junk yard be allowed to operate.

The court ruled that the Lisanti Brothers yard had been established before the passage of the 1944 ordinance which prohibited this type of business in the city.

Finan added that the Feldstein Iron and Metal Company had also been in business before the 1944 deadline.

However, the city attorney and Charles R. Nuzum, city engineer, the Health Department and Police Department were assigned to investigate the situation.

Millenson charged that the yard is a "public menace, eyesore and invariably causes a tieup in traffic."

The South End businessman remarked that merchants of this city are helping to look for new industry and when the heads of corporations come here and see the junkyard, an unfavorable impression is created.

It would be a test of good city management to give the junkyard operator notice to find a location outside of the city, Millenson concluded.

Izvestia Blasts Soviet Drug Stores For Their Perilously Slow Service

MOSCOW, April 27 (AP) — Citizens Ivan Ivanovich Ivanov—the Russian Joe Doakes—lies stricken with heart trouble in his room in Moscow.

His wife rushes to a Soviet drug store for the stimulant he needs.

"Come back for it eight hours from now," the drug store clerk says.

She tries another drug store.

"We don't have the medicine," the clerk says.

Ivan Ivanovich Ivanov, meanwhile, perishes.

This hypothetical situation could happen in Moscow. No less an authority than the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia indicated, after carrying out a survey of the service given by Moscow pharmacies, that even in the Soviet capital itself drug store service is slow and inefficient and that many medicines are in short supply.

Izvestia found that thousands of people every day were being turned away from drug stores empty handed. They could not get their prescriptions filled because important drugs were lacking, including drugs needed for treatment of such urgent illnesses as heart trouble.

Furthermore, the Soviet paper discovered, when the drugs were available it might take from six to eight hours all the way up to a whole day to get badly needed medicine prepared.

Saying that under existing rules pharmacists are required to prepare any medicine within two hours and to prepare immediately any prescription marked urgent, Izvestia commented:

"Just try, however, to get within this time a prescribed medicine ordered in the drug stores of Orel, Chelyabinsk, Astrakhan, or even Moscow. Minimum of from six to eight hours is required for this and sometimes a whole 24 hours. One has to wait 24 hours for a medicine for someone who is ill and needs urgent help . . . the supply of medicines and medical preparations for the population needs improvement."

RESULT OF GIRL'S FIRST DRIVING LESSON—It is perfectly obvious what went wrong with Barbara Swain's first auto driving lesson. She went through the side of the garage instead of using the front entrance. The 16-year-old Detroit high school student persuaded her boy friend to let her drive and then lost control of the vehicle as she leaped a curb, knocked a 16-year-old youngster onto the hood of the car, tore off the side of one garage and landed in the one above. Barbara was ticketed for reckless driving and her boy friend was ticketed for permitting an unlicensed driver to operate an auto.

Tenn. Lawyer Proves Star Of McCarthy-Army Drama

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—A Tennessee lawyer who had never so much as looked at a Senate hearing before has been the star of the McCarthy-Army drama.

His name is Ray Jenkins, and he has come out of Knoxville to play not one, but three, roles in a hearing that probably is unique in U. S. history.

As special counsel, it's his job to help the Senate Investigations Committee find out who's lying in the charges, countercharges and even counter-countercharges that have been flying between Army officials and Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis).

It's a tough job. So a reporter asked him, in the recess between morning and afternoon sessions, what experience he had had with senatorial hearings. Had he ever attended one?

"Hell fire," said Jenkins, grinning, "I never had even heard of one."

Yet there he is, surrounded by senators, generals, administration big shots, photographers and reporters, hard at work on his triple-threat chores.

First, Jenkins seems to be a sort of witness helper. He brings up the topics a witness wants to talk about, asks the question that will help nail down his story, and may even, as he did yesterday with Secretary of the Army Stevens, wonder if there is anything at all to be added that might help the case.

When that's finished, Jenkins takes off his legal boxing gloves and reaches for the brass knucks.

He always apologizes as he does so. He explained that it's part of his job to cross-examine the witness, to probe around for weak spots in the story.

But in spite of the apology, it's obvious that Jenkins, in a field in which he has had a lifetime of experience as a criminal lawyer, is in the role he likes best. He grins as he wades in.

There's a third role Jenkins must perform, too. He's also the judge whenever any tricky question of legal procedure comes up. His judgment is necessary since the chairman, Sen. Mundt (R-SD), is a onetime elocution teacher with no legal training.

Jenkins' decisions are subject to the committee's approval, of course, but so far he's had it, unanimously.

It's too early to tell how Jenkins will make out, but this has been obvious from the start:

He may be a country boy, but he isn't awed by his surroundings.

Jenkins has ruled against McCarthy a couple of times, and yesterday morning, when Stevens was trying to talk, he held up his hand and commanded, "Wait, wait, wait." Stevens waited.

Occasionally Jenkins drops into the talk of the East Tennessee hills whence he came.

He was trying to get Stevens to admit that he was trying to get McCarthy to drop his inquiry into alleged communism in the Army when he (Stevens) went to New York to meet with the senator.

Jenkins put it more colorfully. If this wasn't "mollifying and pacifying," why did Stevens "go traipsin' off to New York?"

Latin American Reds' Activities Show Increase

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—The U. S. Information Agency reported today that communism in Latin America, despite a drop in membership, is stepping up its activities through "national liberation fronts" and lavish help from Moscow.

The USIA is sending this commentary by wireless to its information outlets throughout the free world.

The agency, headed by Director Theodore C. Streibert, was set up last year as an independent unit outside the State Department to operate the Voice of America, a worldwide radio outlet. The agency also has press, library and motion picture facilities abroad.

Streibert has described the agency's chief task as defeating Communist propaganda aimed at breaking free world unity.

The agency said a recent government survey shows that Communist party membership in Latin America has declined one-third since the end of World War II.

However, the agency said South American Reds have strengthened their ties with the Kremlin and satellite countries through "national liberation fronts," deeper infiltration of labor unions and other key organizations, and have increased their attendance at Communist-sponsored meetings in Europe and Asia.

The agency estimated that the Communist party in Latin America now has a "select" membership of 200,000.

This group operates throughout Latin America, it said, although 13 of the 20 republics have outlawed the party.

The survey said Latin Americans are treated to guided tours of Moscow and Peiping. In addition, it said, large sums are paid for newspaper articles and radio broadcasts devoted to Communist scenes.

Films and other propaganda are provided for distribution at home, the agency said.

In this connection, Streibert last week reported a sharp increase in pro-Red movies in Southeast Asia.

Streibert said that both Chhnese—and Russian-made films with Chinese subtitles were giving stiff competition to pictures made by the West and distributed to Southeast Asia.

In its survey of Latin America, the USIA said the Communist party has practically no direct power in lawmaking bodies outside of Guatemala. However, it said, the Reds have been able to build front organizations into "instruments of pressure on governments."

In Guatemala Communists occupied four of the 56 seats in Congress, it said, and although there were only about 2,000 party members, Communists and Red sympathizers control organized labor and hold key posts in the government.

U. S. Gives China Communists Cold Social Shoulder

GENEVA, Switzerland, April 27 (AP)—A reliable source said today the U.S. delegation at the Geneva conference is turning a cold social shoulder to the Chinese Communists.

This informant indicated members of the U.S. delegation would go to no receptions or parties arranged by China's Premier - Foreign Minister Chou En-lai. If they go to parties where the Chinese are present, they won't mix with them.

Secretary Dulles is apparently setting the pattern. Although he is seated but four seats away from Chou at the conference table, he has not shaken hands or spoken to Chou. Dulles has also ignored the North Koreans headed by Gen. Nam Il.

Chinese Reds View Delegation As Equal

GENEVA, April 27 (AP)—A Chinese Communist spokesman said today his delegation considers itself equal in every way to the Big Four delegations at the Geneva conference.

Russia shares this view. The United States, Britain and France consider Red China is here not as the fifth member of a world Big Five but as a nation involved on the Communist side in two Asian wars.

The Communist spokesman, Foreign Office Counsellor Huang Hua, made the statement at a news conference in answer to a reporter's question.

The atomic attack on Hiroshima dstroyed three-fifths of the city.

Braddock Farms Junk Yard Is Target Of Complaints

A group of 32 residents of the Braddock Farms section sent a petition to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday complaining over the operation of a junk yard in their neighborhood.

The letter stated that the Feldstein Iron and Metal Company is creating a nuisance and hazards by the manner in which the junk yard is maintained. The junk yard is located in the rear of the old distillery building which faces on U. S. Route 40, according to county officials.

It was charged in the petition that children use the junk yard as a "treasure hunt" area, workmen block the roadway when unloading materials, much noise is made in the unloading at night and on Sundays and some of the junk obstructs traffic.

The petition was referred to Gorman E. Getty, board attorney, for investigation of the law pertaining to operation of such business. The matter will also be checked by the board to determine if the law is being violated.

A letter was received from John F. Gallagher, of Mt. Savage, concerning an open sewer in front of St. Patrick's Hall and opposite the Methodist Church in that community.

Gallagher said the open sewer cannot be seen by motorists traveling the road and some drivers have had accidents when their machines struck it. He offered to point out the sewer to anyone the county sends to investigate. The matter was referred to J. Walker Chapman, county roads supervisor.

The bid of the St. George Motor Company of Cumberland to furnish a car for use by the Health Department was accepted by the commissioners. The St. George firm offered a new car for a net price of $996.70 after allowance of a trade in on a car now in use.

Other bids, all higher than the St. George firm, were made by Frostburg Auto Company, Steinla Motor Company and Eiler Chevrolet Company.

Milk Producer Union To Meet

The newly organized Allegany Milk Producers Cooperative Union will meet tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. in the LaVale Fire Hall.

John T. Mason, Cresaptown, temporary chairman, said further details of organization will be set up.

The group was formed at a meeting of 40 dairymen last week in the LaVale Fire Hall. Of the 40 present, 22 of the milk producers affiliated themselves with the association.

Roy F. Blocher, of near Meyersdale, president of the Tri-State Milk Producers Association, opened the initial meeting and conducted a short discussion on the possibilities of a federal milk control order in the area.

He then turned the meeting over to Mason who introduced H. L. Mitchell, of the Natoinal Agricultural Workers Union, AFL.

Mitchell explained how an organization of his type can help the farmers.

He recommended the majority of farmers to sign up so that the cooperative union would become effective. He also suggested the association be operated by a board of directors elected by the membership.

Thomas G. Barton of Pinto was appointed temporary secretary-treasurer.

Man Sentenced, Held For Parole Violation

Wesley J. Kipe, RD 1, Oldtown Road, was given a 30-day jail sentence today in Police Court in default of $30 fine imposed on two misdemeanor charges.

Authorities accused him of causing a disturbance early yesterday morning in South End. Magistrate Donald W. Mason ordered Kipe held for parole violation.

Council Hears Objection To Junk Yard Location

A protest against the operation of a junk yard on Wineow Street was lodged with the Mayor and City Council yesterday by George Millenson, South End Businessman.

But the city cannot do anything about the location of the junkyard. City Attorney Thomas B. Finan pointed out that in a recent case in Allegany County Circuit Court it was ruled that a South End junk yard be allowed to operate.

The court ruled that the Lisanti Brothers yard had been established before the passage of the 1944 ordinance which prohibited this type of business in the city.

Finan added that the Feldstein Iron and Metal Company had also been in business before the 1944 deadline.

However, the city attorney and Charles R. Nuzum, city engineer, the Health Department and Police Department were assigned to investigate the situation.

Millenson charged that the yard is a "public menace, eyesore and invariably causes a tieup in traffic."

The South End businessman remarked that merchants of this city are helping to look for new industry and when the heads of corporations come here and see the junkyard, an unfavorable impression is created.

It would be a test of good city management to give the junkyard operator notice to find a location outside of the city, Millenson concluded.

Naval Reserve's Annual Inspection Set Today

Cumberland Surface Division 5-9, Naval Reserve, will undergo annual inspection by Fifth Naval District officers today at the Naval and Marine Corps Reserve Training Center.

The local unit will be competing for top honors in efficiency with 27 other divisions in the district which has headquarters in Norfolk.

The party will arrive today after inspecting two divisions at Wheeling. In the afternoon the staff of the Naval training center commanded by Lt. Cmdr. W. E. Woodson Jr. will stand inspection followed by a check of the center, materials, supply, administrative and service record.

At the weekly drill period today the surface division commanded by Lt. Cmdr. Wayne W. Hill will be inspected.

In the party are Capt. J. B. Azer, USN, senior officer who is district reserve coordinator; Cmdr. W. F. Heyer, USN, assistant district reserve coordinator, and Lt. J. R. Gross, USN, a district training officer.

The local division won first place in 1948 and 1950; second place in 1949 and third place in 1951. In 1953 the division was fourth.

Byrd, Mahoney To Speak On Program Here Tonight

Dr. Harry C. Byrd and George P. Mahoney, rival contenders for the Democratic nomination for governor, will appear on the same program tonight when Allegany County Democrats hold their annual Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner at Ali Ghan Country Club at 6:30 p. m.

Other top Democratic competitors in the primary will make talks. They include the candidates for Sixth District of the House of Representatives, Edward J. Ryan of Frostburg, and Charles M. Ireland and F. Byrne Austin, both of Montgomery County.

Also making short talks will be the candidates for attorney general, State Senator C. Ferdinand Sybert of Ellicott City (Byrd slate), Philip H. Dorsey of Leonardtown (Mahoney slate), T. Barton Harrington, of Baltimore, and State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes, who is unopposed for re-election.

The new chairman of the Maryland Democratic State Central Committee, C. William Hetzer, of Hagerstown, will also talk.

William L. Wilson Jr., chairman of the Allegany County Democratic State Central Committee, will be toastmaster.

Harry Kauffman is chairman for the dinner; Mrs. Jim McQuowan is in charge of arrangements, and Mrs. Anne B. Everline, in charge of tickets.

Sponsoring the dinner are the County State Central Committee, the United Democratic Women's Club, Young Democrats Club of Allegany County, and the Georges Creek Democratic Club.

Ryan's Name Included On Campaign Banner

Whether it has any political implication or not, the name of Edward J. Ryan, Frostburg attorney who is running for Democratic nomination for Congress from the Sixth District, will be on a banner here along with Dr. Harry C. Byrd and State Senator Ferdinand C. Sybert, of Howard county.

Byrd and Sybert are on a slate running against George P. Mahoney and Philip Dorsey for the Democratic nomination for governor and attorney general, respectively.

The Mayor and Council recently granted approval for the banner to be erected at Baltimore and Centre streets. Application was made by Dr. W. O. McLane of Frostburg, chairman of the Allegany County Byrd for Governor Primary Committee.

Settlement Is Made In Land Dispute For Road Work

Settlement of a condemnation suit brought by the State Roads Commission against Garden City Homes Company in connection with land needed for relocating and modernizing the Winchester Road was announced yesterday by attorneys in the case.

The tract of land in question comprises 7.4 acres and is part of what is known as the Annan Knolls property, attorneys said. The Winchester Road work has been under way for some time.

The State Roads Commission offered Garden Homes a total of $7,800 for the property prior to institution of the condemnation proceedings. The company refused the offer and asked for $22,000, attorneys in the case said. A settlement yesterday amounted to $11,000, they added.

Thomas B. Finan was counsel for the Garden Homes Company while Earl E. Manges was local counsel for the State Roads Commission. Papers were filed in Circuit Court noting that the case was settled.

Grass Roots Survey Reveals:

Lush Days Of Lots Of Jobs, Profits, Sales In Past But Actual Economic Dip Is Slight

Editors' Note — Sam Dawson, Associated Press business news analyst, has traveled thousands of miles in the last five weeks reporting on the state of the nation's business as he found it — in the big cities and at the grass roots. He has been in New England, the South, the Southwest and the Far West and now is taking a look at things in the Middle West. Here is a review of things he has found.

By SAM DAWSON

CHICAGO, April 27 (AP) — There are two ways to look at business today:

1. The lush days of lots of jobs, overtime, profits, sales are in the past tense now.

2. Viewed against the backdrop of last year's dread of what might have happened, the actual dip in U. S. economy to date appears relatively slight.

The recession's bark seems worse than its bite. So, the feeling grows that "it isn't going to be as bad as we thought."

Take the first view. Travel the Atlantic Coast states from New England through the Southeast. Ask the people of the reborn South, from Miami to New Orleans, even in oil-rich Texas and Oklahoma. Test the postwar boom lands—Arizona, California and the Pacific Northwest. Talk to the people of the Great Plains from Kansas City to Minneapolis.

With few exceptions, you'll find them admitting — when pressed — that the business pace has slowed a little, and in a few instances a lot. Usually, the dip was earlier and greater in the industrial East and Midwest, less in the South and West, where they say they scarcely have felt it yet.

Now take the second view. Most business and financial executives seem still to regard the slowdown at a benign adjustment—correcting the excesses of the boom, reducing producer inventories that were out of line with consumer facts.

There are others who say it's too early yet for such complacency. They say there's still time and chance for a malignant recession to grow.

Wait to see what happens to retail trade this month and next, they warn. For retail trade is the true end-product of most manufacturing and farming, no matter how many steps along the way.

And retail trade is spotty around the country.

Find out how merchants are doing in a given town and you get a pretty good picture of how farmers are faring, of whether factory workers have lost overtime pay or gone on short weeks, of how the building trades are holding up.

In New England textile mill towns, retail trade is likely to be poor and unemployment compensation claims high. In New England towns where electronic or metalworking plants have come in to take textiles' place, merchants aren't likely to be complaining.

Or take Seattle, where aircraft payrolls are a large part of the income. There the still-high defense spending of the government is translated quickly into spending at the stores.

Where the drought hit hard last summer and lingered through the winter—whether in parts of the South or in the great Southwestern wheat and livestock regions—retail trade is down.

But to the north—in Minnesota and the Dakotas, for example—where the bumper volume of the crops almost offset lower prices, farm income fell less than the national average and retail trade is hurt less. This year they're counting on farmers spending more than last—given another fair shake in weather for their crops.

Riveting echoes in many of the nation's cities, and hammering in their suburbs. The building industry taps out a cheerful tale almost everywhere.

Construction may not always be at quite as fast a pace. Empty houses may go begging even while newer ones are being started. In the highly industrialized areas, contractors say that business expansion plans this year, while maybe as big as last, tend to lean toward new equipment rather than more buildings.

Employment is spotty too.

One example: in the early months of this year the jobless total grew, especially in the Midwestern and Eastern states, where most of the durable goods manufacturers cluster. But the states of North and South Dakota and Montana report employment higher than a year ago. The reason is oil. The Williston Basin, which these states share, is having a building and business boom based on petroleum.

Public psychology sounds sectional variations on the recessional theme too.

In many parts of the land there's a firm conviction that recessions in their very nature must always start in the east and work west, losing their vigor in dalliance on the way; that business traditionally dips violently in the North and gently in the South.

With this recession, there's an added psychological twist:

The South, the Southwest and the Far West have grown remarkably during and since World War II, and have seen industry grab a new or larger role in their economy. It seems beyond the ken of most folks in these postwar boom areas that growth could stop, that times could ever turn really bad again.

These sections attract a large proportion of younger businessmen, whose only experience is with an economy where everything, year after year, goes on getting bigger and better except the purchasing power of the dollar. They're a little dismayed at not setting new records so far this year. But they can't believe that their particular area won't start going ahead again right away.

Some say that psychology will set the course of business. So, take a sounding of recession psychology around the land:

A Boston banker: "New England is shifting in some pain from a soft goods to a hard goods industrial area—it'll be the better for it."

A Charlotte, N. C., textile mill president: "We're having trouble right now—but a growing population means we'll have plenty of customers coming along."

A Miami Beach, Fla., hotelman: "The resort business usually feels bad times first—but this time—look around: plenty of people here, aren't there? Not spending so much, though."

A Kansas City banker: "The farmers had some very good years. They feel pinched now, in comparison, by the drop in prices but there's not much real distress except where the drought was bad."

A Los Angeles aircraft official: "With the world the way it is, how can defense spending drop much more, if any?"

For a more general view take the word of two noted veterans in the fields of finance, business and government service:

Jesse Jones, the 80-year-old Houstonian who as head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, was tagged "the greatest money lender of all times," says:

"The business decline is moderate and isn't hurting us. It ought to be good for the economy to correct the evils of over-expanding and of building up such a top-heavy structure of debt."

Lewis Douglas, Tucson, Ariz., banker and rancher, and Mutual Life Insurance Company chieftain, who once directed the federal budget and later was U. S. ambassador to Great Britain, says:

"In the East they're always excited, everyone being carried away at once by some new wave of emotion. Out here you see things calmly and you see them whole. That's why we're confident."

W. German Economy Good, Conant Says

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—Dr. James B. Conant, U. S. high commissioner for Germany, said at the White House yesterday that West Germany is getting along fine economically and that the political situation is stable.

Conant made the statement to newsmen after reporting to President Eisenhower.

He declined to say what he told the President, but did say in response to questions that unemployment has been sharply reduced in Germany and that efforts are being made to cut it further.

Conant said he returned to this country primarily to testify before congressional committees on his budget requests for West Germany. He said he plans to return to Bonn Friday.

China's Trade Increases

LONDON, April 27 (AP)—Communist China's foreign trade last year was 36 per cent higher than 1952, the Peiping radio said today.

And it reported 75 per cent of this trade was with non-Communist countries despite the Western embargo. The broadcast gave no specific figures.

6,330,000 More Would Vote If Age Is Lowered

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—The Census Bureau said today that if President Eisenhower's proposal to lower the voting age to 18 is adopted, it would add about 6,330,000 voters.

This estimate was contained in the bureau's latest study of age groups in the population, as of last July 1. The bureau said the nation now has about 101 million persons of voting age in a population estimated at nearly 162 million people. The voting age in most sections now is 21.

The very young in the nation heavily outnumber the aged, and the rise in the birth rate in recent years is checking a tendency, in evidence since 1900, toward an older median age, the study said.

It gave these details:

The nation's already crowded schools are faced with 17½ million children under the age of five years.

Children and youths in the 5-17 age group number a little over 34½ million.

There are 94½ million between 18 and 64, of whom 62 million are between 18 and 44, and 32¼ million are 45 to 64.

The number of men and women 65 or over is about 13¼ million. More than three million of these are employed.

Better-Than-Usual Apple Crop Forecast

ROANOKE, Va., April 27 (AP) — Heavy apple bloom in the four-state area of Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania promises a better-than-usual apple crop, a VPI fruit specialist said here today.

Prof. A. H. Teske predicted a crop of 22 million bushels compared with the average 20 to 21 million for Virginia on the basis of the bloom. The weather has been in favor of heavy fruit bud formations, he added.

Under the direction of Mrs. William Buchholtz, with Mrs. William Ludman at the piano, the Choral Group sang three numbers. They were, "All in The April Evening," "The Nation's Prayer," and "You'll Never Walk Alone."

The program also included a piano duet of "Deep Purple," by Mrs. Lawrence Nugent and Mrs. Ludman.

Members of the Choral Group are Mrs. Edward Ryan, Mrs. Douglas Smith, Mrs. Stanley Buckley, Mrs. L. E. Shafferman, Mrs. J. W. McClure, Mrs. William Geppert, Mrs. Albert Heacox, Mrs. William Carscaden, Mrs. J. H. Stitely and Mrs. Nugent.

Shadow Of Drouth Hovers Over East

Drought and dust storms in the Southwest make the headlines, but there have been drought conditions in the northeastern part of the United States for 11 of the past 14 years, with cumulative effects which are being felt in many ways.

New York City has declared a water emergency. With an eye on the 1950 crisis, when, in desperation, cloud seeding was resorted to, the city suburbs have been told to batten down for another "dry one."

Perhaps New York's extensive reservoir system can be used as a gauge of what's ahead. The average reservoir level stands at 72 per cent of normal. In the critical year of 1950 the levels were 78 per cent of normal on this date. The shadow of drought has prompted New York authorities to call for the bothersome measures which were necessary four years ago—no car washing, no lawn watering, no street flushing, and so on.

What the summer holds for other parts of the East it is difficult to say although Cumberland is now getting over a water shortage. The spring hasn't been too generous with precipitation. Ground water is low. Many farmers complain that shallow wells do not snap back the way they formerly did. Many farms have been on semi-rationing for a year. Wells now require long periods of rest.

There are many explanations. The basic one seems to be that the climb in the average winter temperatures in the temperate zones brings milder winters, cooler springs and drier—though not necessarily hotter—summers. The plain fact seems to be that man is taking out more each year than nature is putting back.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

How Wrong Can They Be?

I saw an article in the London "Daily Mirror," which has an enormous circulation.

The headline reads:

"The Appalling Failure of Eisenhower."

The story is by John Walters and of him his newspaper says:

"This dispatch on the present sickening crisis in America reached the 'Mirror' last night. It is from John Walters, who has represented this newspaper in the States for many years. Because of America's world significance today, special prominence is given to his message."

The story opens with this paragraph:

"America is unhappy, bewildered and frightened because of the appalling failure of the self-proclaimed crusader she elected President."

Of course, no American will recognize the diagnosis. We have our troubles, our quarrels, our sensations and our absurdities, but no one who lives here will agree that we are particularly unhappy or bewildered or frightened. In fact, a fair criticism might be that we are too gay, too fun-loving in the face of serious crises.

I walk along Broadway in New York and I see about a million faces on their way to play at something. Are they unhappy? Not while they have jingle money in their pockets. Are they bewildered? If anything, they are bewildered by our friends becoming neutral after we helped them so much.

All the agencies of government have tried to frighten the American people. They have published maps and charts and photographs showing them exactly how they are going to be killed by the H-bomb. Has there been an evacuation of the big cities? Not so anyone would notice it. In fact, in our tenement we are all signing two-year leases at this moment. This is the kind of people who do not scare readily. If the H-bomb came along, some speculator would probably put up grandstands and hope to make an honest dollar.

Now, as to Eisenhower's "appalling failure," it just is too early to judge whether he is a successful, a middling, or a failing President. Americans judge such conditions differently from others. If on the whole everybody works and earns a living and taxes do not go any higher, Americans would say that Eisenhower is a fairly successful President in tough times. If our sons are not sent to fight in foreign countries, we would say he is a very successful President in troubled times. If he gets into trouble with Congress but puts over the essentials of his legislative program, this country is likely to forget some of the political ineptitudes of his administration.

Americans maybe are not as good as the British because they do not take their politics as seriously as the British do. No American really expects his president to be a superman. Perhaps that is why Ike's golf score evokes such interest, and the newspapers publish a serial on how Mamie came to marry Ike and what they have done since then. I am sure that more Americans read such a serial than read the President's speeches, which are no different from any other president's speeches, usually dull except when he speaks extemporaneously. Then this President has wit and humor.

This business about being a crusader never meant anything much. It came from the title of a book. Nobody ever expected any kind of a crusade because the last crusader, Carry Nation, got to be a bit of a bore. Besides, what is there to crusade about?

The next quotation I shall give you from John Walters is this:

"And his fellow crusaders have thrown off their fine election disguise, revealing themselves as soldiers of slick, political opportunism and arrogant capitalism."

I do not know what he means by "slick, political opportunism," unless it be that a president of the United States is limited in his authority by the Constitution and that he has to get along with Congress or the nation stands still. Ours is a government of compromises and always has been. No president can quite lead Congress, as Mr. Roosevelt learned when he tried to pack the courts or to purge his opponents. President Eisenhower faces very serious problems and difficulties which he can only meet with congressional cooperation.

As to "arrogant capitalism," I must leave that where it stands. The United States is a capitalistic country. The American people believe in private enterprise. If Walters has been around, he ought to know that.

Questionable Instinct Of Russian Homing Pigeon

Dulles Stands In Way Of Victory For Reds At Geneva

By David Lawrence

GENEVA — An atmosphere of frigid politeness if not veiled hostility prevails here between the United States delegation and the delegations representing North Korean, Chinese and Soviet Communists.

The other 15 countries which participated in the Korean War and have come here for the so-called peace conference seem to be just interested but not overly concerned spectators.

Wisely Secretary of State Dulles refrained from assuming the post of a rotating chairman, preferring to stay in the background and thus avoiding the embarrassment of sitting in the presiding officer's chair where conceivably he would be dealing in a parliamentary sense with the Red China spokesmen.

1 ssia's Position Incredible

It seems incredible that Soviet Russia would have the effrontery to ask that Red China be seated as an equal of the powers at this conference. It is even more fantastic that the government at Peiping which not so many months ago was professing to the world that it had nothing to do with the intervention by Chinese Communist troops in Korea and that these were merely "Chinese volunteers" should now be asking for equal recognition as a "major power."

It was only a few months ago, too, that the United Nations was by formal resolution declaring the government of Red China to be an aggressor, but at the conference here one would think the Red Chinese were as respectable as the governments of the free world. Only by reason of the studied aloofness by the United States delegation is there any impression conveyed that the Chinese Communist government is regarded as guilty of one of the worst crimes in all history. So far as public opinion in and around Geneva is concerned—if indeed there is such a thing—the Red Chinese are just another government engaged in some diplomatic exchanges here in one more of the many international conferences which from time to time have been convened in this center of Swiss neutrality.

The Red Chinese and Russians are housed in the best hotels and appear to be enjoying their newfound equality, at least as delegates. What seems to be forgotten is that the Communists are responsible for atrocity murders of hundreds of thousands of captives from various countries, plus the death of 35,000 American boys and the wounding of more than 100,000 other Americans. This was a war which the United States entered not to protect a colony as France did in Indochina but to repel aggression on the theory that the cause of world peace would be advanced by that action. But here this lofty motive is lost sight of as the pressure comes from public opinion in Britain and France to make some sort of deal with the Communists. If it were not for America's stubborn opposition to such a course—prompted by an awakened public opinion in the United States — this conference would wind up quickly in an abject surrender to the Communists. The will to resist communistic aggression is theoretical rather than real and is applied primarily to Europe. Here on this continent isolationism is quite popular, only it is known by the more euphemistic term "nationalism."

Dulles Standing Firm

Here in Europe, moreover, it is considered proper for Frenchmen to believe in France above all else and for Britons to believe in Britain above all else, but somehow when an American back home voices such sentiments with respect to his own country, he is called a "right winger" or an "isolationist," which is supposed to be a first cousin to a Fascist from Nazi Germany. The truth, however, is that isolation is the paramount policy of each country in Europe, and such organizations as the European Defense Community and even the NATO setup are regarded as devices invented by the United States and are tolerated merely as one way of getting economic and military aid, both of which, of course, are sorely needed.

Americans can be proud of John Foster Dulles, their secretary of state, for he manifests on every occasion the firmness so necessary to keep this conference from becoming a victory for the Communists. He naturally has to tread cautiously here as the French play a skillful game in Indochina, and the Communists, well aware of the strains between the free governments, seek to obtain acceptance of a formula which will pay lip service to the unification of divided Korea or a divided Indochina but which can only mean, if not rejected here, the triumph of communistic infiltration.

It will take several days for the preliminary sparring to be completed and Secretary Dulles has already revealed that he plans to stay only 10 days, so the Communists will have to come forward with something concrete or see the conference itself dissolve into a contest of staying power not unlike that at Panmunjom. For the hotels are comfortable and the luxuries of life for the Communists are such a welcome change from their routine as to make the delegates from Moscow and Peiping not at all anxious to hurry back home. It looks like a long-drawn-out conference.

Baering Down On The News

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

The spieling bee in Geneva operates along the general lines of the Tower of Babble.

I am an authority on international doo-dabs for I go to none but the most reliable newsreels.

We don't want Geneva to feel too bad about those wandering microphone minstrels now in executive stalemate. Those guys look that way in any city.

Portfolios are packed for muzzlebursts and monocles are polished to white blisters. This looks like a war of appeacement.

Our man-about-continents Dulles will be there with his hair in a tight braid.

He is there to assure our platonic allies that we will not use the H-bomb until it is too late.

France and England desire to reverse the procedure of problem laundrying. They want to iron it out. And wash it afterward.

The best way to end the trouble in Indochina is for everybody to sign the monsoon.

The only people who haven't said, "Lafayette, we are here" are the French.

Anthony Eden is there to protect England from its best friend. England is worried now that the bombs are bigger than the islands.

Symington's Stock Down, McClellan's Up As Result Of Committee Hearings

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—McCarthy Merry-Go-Round — Senate observers concur that Stu Symington of Missouri has just about lost his bid for the presidential nomination by not speaking out at the McCarthy hearings. An A-1 administrator, who did a great job as air secretary, Stuart is too inarticulate, too meek, too suave in the rough-and-tumble of McCarthy debate. . . Sen. John McClellan has probably re-elected himself senator from Arkansas, thanks to McCarthy. A few weeks ago, McClellan faced likely defeat from Arkansas' popular ex-Gov. Sid McMath. Today McClellan's punches at McCarthy have upped his chances 50 per cent. . . . Arkansas is overwhelmingly anti-McCarthy. . . . McClellan didn't have the courage, as did his Arkansas colleague, Bill Fulbright, to vote against McCarthy's appropriation, but he now sees the handwriting on the wall. Fulbright was the sole senator out of 96 to vote against McCarthy's whopping big appropriation. . . . This is the taxpayers' dough used by McCarthy to send Don Surine, a discharged FBI agent, up to New York to scare Arthur Pierson's mother-in-law out of her wits by telling her her daughter was involved in a hit-and-run accident. This was a ruse to get Pierson's address in an effort to retaliate against Struve Hensel, forthright Defense Department attorney who drew up the Army charges against McCarthy. Hensel was Pierson's old partner.

Mundt Merry-Go-Round — Senator Mundt's handling of the McCarthy hearings is so lame, friends fear it's likely to help his Republican opponent, David Wilkens, South Dakota farmer, who is running against him in the June 1 primary. Mundt has let special counsel Ray Jenkins, the slow-spoken Tennessee criminal lawyer, act as if he was committee chairman. This is unheard of in Senate procedure. . . . During the Kefauver hearings there was never any doubt as to who ran the show—Estes Kefauver. . . . During Truman Committee hearings there was no doubt as to who ran the show—Harry Truman. Harry was not a lawyer but he ran things. Mundt is no lawyer but he's not running things. . . . Mundt gets involved in interminable hassels, which is duck soup for McCarthy. It lets Joe dominate the TV cameras. . . . Mundt is president of the National Forensic League, editor of the Rostrum, associate editor of the Speaker, is supposed to be one of the great public speakers of the U.S.A. But when he gets off the rostrum in the rough-and-tumble of debate, he doesn't know what to say. . . . Ray Jenkins was picked as special counsel because Republicans wanted a spotlighted candidate to run against Kefauver in Tennessee. What's happening is that the snarled-up McCarthy hearings, handled by Jenkins, have made Kefauver a bigger man by contrast, and are likely to encourage GOP opposition to Senator Mundt in South Dakota.

Fear Technique — regardless of changing public opinion, fear of McCarthy is still dominant in the Senate. . . . McCarthy knows where every senatorial body is buried, where every senatorial skeleton is stacked away. If a senator has a girl friend, if he drinks too much, if he's had income-tax trouble, Joe's boys know it. . . . However, most senators are honest, decent. What they fear most is re-election opposition, and they know what Joe has done to Tydings of Maryland, Benton of Connecticut and is now trying to do to Margaret Chase Smith in Maine. . . . Actually he has tried to defeat his critics in several other states, such as Symington in Missouri. But his failures don't get publicized, so fear prevails. . . . For a few speeches by Joe in a senator's state will mean extra thousands of dollars to be raised for campaign funds to offset McCarthy.

Tax Returns — The fear technique is even more effective today due to the fact that Joe seems to have access to income-tax returns. It's against the law for anyone to see these returns without a White House order, but a big pile was on McCarthy's desk the other day, and the President of the United States who has said he disapproves of McCarthy's fear tactics, is the only man who could have given the order. . . . This obviously was how McCarthy got access to the tax returns of the President's own assistant secretary of defense, Struve Hensel — namely, through an order by the President. . . . Irony is that Hensel who served under the Democrats, had just finished writing a magazine piece on how nice it was to serve under the Republicans.

Newspaper Shift — Indicative of the public change on McCarthy is a "box" printed on Page 1 of the New York World-Telegram and Sun. It told readers where to write if they wanted to contribute to the Joe-Must-Go clubs in Wisconsin — namely, to Leroy Gore, Sauk City, Wis. . . . Significance of this is the man behind the World-Telegram and Sun — Roy Howard, head of Scripps-Howard newspapers. Few men in the U. S. and few newspapers in the U. S. pounded the McCarthy theme harder than Roy and his news chain during the early days of McCarthyism. Roy's editorials have now changed abruptly.

Wisconsin's Shift — Editor Gore of Sauk City says there's been an equally abrupt political change in Wisconsin which he attributes to two factors. No. 1 was McCarthy's persecution of Mrs. Annie Lee Moss; Wisconsin folks saw her as a nice old colored lady who wasn't harming anyone and they didn't like their senator picking on her. . . . No. 2 was McCarthy's attack on Brig. Gen. Ralph Swicker, a Wisconsin boy. . . . Also, they don't like McCarthy's methods.

A Winner And A Loser

By Bob Considine

WASHINGTON, (INS)—When the last bellow is heard in the McCarthy-Army debate, and the wicked little red eyes of the TV cameras grow dim, what then? Who pays? And who's minding the store in the meantime?

As this hearing goes along it becomes increasingly evident that there is going to be a winner and there is going to be a loser. Somebody eventually will be exposed before millions as a liar or an incompetent or a perverter of power. Somebody else is going to be revealed as a tower of truth, an efficient public servant, and a guardian of democratic processes.

If it is Sen. McCarthy, Roy M. Cohn and Francis Carr who are revealed as in the wrong in this case, it could mean the end of McCarthy's unique power in his party, and peremptory dismissal from the subcommittee staff of Cohn, who has a remarkable record in the work of fighting domestic communism, and of Carr, who had a fine record with the FBI.

It would be within the power of the subcommittee, the "McCarthy subcommittee", to recommend that its chairman be indicted for perjury, if he loses the "who's lying?" hearing. It could also recommend that he be hit with a Senate censure, which is a form of placing a man "in coventry" for the remainder of his time in the upper house. The Senate has meted out such punishment to a member only three times in this century, twice in 1901 and the last time in 1929, when Sen. Bingham of Connecticut was declared too cozy with a sugar lobbyist.

Well, what about the other side of the picture? If Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens, Army Counsellor John G. Adams and Assit. Secretary of Defense Struve Hensel are judged by the senators on the panel to be the wrongdoers in this matter, it could also recommend that the Justice Department proceed with perjury charges. If such action was considered too dire, but the final report put the finger on the above-mentioned men, there would be little they could do except tender their resignations.

What's happening here is that serious, despite its soap opera facade.

There is unconcealed satisfaction in some Democratic circles about the way this hearing seems to be going. As the subcommittee is set up, its chairman (Karl Mundt) is a Republican, and there are three more Republicans to back him up, meaning that the GOP has the balance of power in any decision the panel will make. The principal combatants, McCarthy and Stevens, are Republicans. So are most, if not all the others who will take the stand in what promises to be an increasingly rough exhibition.

Thus, the losers in this case—and, theoretically, the losers could go to jail—will be Republicans, since they comprise the cast of characters. The Republican senators on the subcommitte would then be accused of turning against their own kind, if they did, and stand accused of dosing matters with whitewash if they didn't. Someone asked the other day, "Why doesn't Sen. Symington (D., Mo.) take more of a part in this? He knows the town, and it's a great chance for him to build a national reputation for 1956. He's the most articulate man on the subcommittee, but he sits back." And the answer was, "he doesn't have anything to say. All he has to do is watch Republican eat Republican and pretty soon he won't even have any competition in 1956."

This case could become the chief talking point of the congressional elections next fall, and its tentacles could conceivably reach into the presidential race two years later. From all accounts, the President isn't at all pleased. Mr. Eisenhower is still a "team" man. He has repeatedly said that he does not approve McCarthy's methods—though he has never spelled out the Wisconsin's name—but he'd be a lot happier about his program's chances of achieving success if McCarthy, Stevens, et al could kiss and make up.

Tremendous problems face the Congress and the country. Pretty soon, now, we are going to have to say out loud whether or not we have intervened in the war in Indochina. The Geneva conference that opened Monday will make us take very positive stands about Red China, and its demand for recognition in U. N. and world diplomacy. The recession isn't as easy to erase as believed. What can be done about Nehru, ECA, NATO, etc. etc. etc. But all eyes are on a debate (which could be endless) centering around a buck private named Schine, and there is a feeling that all else in Washington has come to a halt. It hasn't, of course, but many important matters are being lost sight of. They are telling the story of the GOP senator who is one of the powers of the FHA investigation. He stands outside his committee room imploring reporters and spectators to drop in and hear all about the terrible scandal which commenced back in FDR's time. But the mobs press on to the caucus room, to witness Republican devour Republican.

Food Contamination: Leftovers Are Most Susceptible

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Anyone who becomes violently ill with nausea and vomiting is likely to blame the last thing he ate, particularly if hamburgers, shrimp, or ham were consumed. We now know that these edibles are not the most common causes of food poisoning; in recent years they have been superseded by processed meats, custards, cream pies, pastries, sandwich mixes, dressings, and puddings. Water and milk also play a role, but in most communities both these sources are watched so carefully they rarely get out of hand. Our health departments prefer to investigate the origin of an outbreak in a scientific fashion because epidemics have been traced occasionally to the least suspected foods, such as steaks, noodle soups, or orange juice.

Not every bout of nausea, vomiting, or darrhea is due to food poisoning. In bygone days, infections such as typhoid and bacillary dysentery were high on the list but today intestinal flu often is responsible. In this type of epidemic, many other persons are affected in the same way at the same time. Food poisoning differs in that only those who have consumed the same meal are made ill.

In addition, symptoms develop within six hours after eating the spoiled product. The individual becomes nauseated, dizzy, and breaks out into a cold sweat. This is followed by vomiting, abdominal cramps, and diarrhea. When symptoms are severe, prostration follows and many go into shock.

I have observed big, husky soldiers who were strong enough to lift a cow, wilt completely when overtaken by poisonous food. Distress lasts two to six hours and thereafter the pulse strengthens and the color improves. In severe cases, weakness, nausea, cramps, and loss of appetite may persist 8 to 24 hours. Almost everyone survives because nature sees to it the contaminated material is eliminated, but fast.

Nowadays, most food poisoning epidemics are traceable to infection with the hemolytic staphylococcus. This germ is a frequent inhabitant of the skin and is found in infected cuts, pimples, boils, and in the nose and throat of victims of the common cold.

Most of us are able to tolerate a certain number of these microorganisms in food but the situation changes when they multiply rapidly. This arises when our food handlers develop colds or have cuts and abrasions on their hands and when food is handled in an insanitary manner or is stored in uncovered vessels. Improper refrigeration or inadequate cooking also play a role. The most susceptible foods are leftovers that have been exposed to bacteria several times. Chicken, salads, pastries, and sandwich mixes are most vulnerable because staph germs thrive on these items.

TOMORROW: X-ray for leukemia.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

In his autobiography, "Lying in State," Stanton Griffis tells about a day he and a Wall Street friend wandered into a Paris gallery to see an exhibition of modern pictures. The friend thought that one or two of them would improve the decor of his private office. "How do you go about buying these things without getting the daylights soaked out of you?" he asked. "Put in low bids on all of them," suggested the knowing Mr. Griffis. "When the show is over, you'll probably find that a couple have fallen virtually into your lap."

The frock-coated manager indicated that this procedure was highly unusual, but graciously consented to enter the bids. A few mornings later, Mr. Griffis received a frantic phone call from his friend, "My God," he wailed, "I've bought 46 pictures."

In the Kansas City zoo, writes Bennett Schneider, a keeper was fired for chronic forgetfulness. He couldn't remember his lions.

Grass Roots Survey Reveals:

Lush Days Of Lots Of Jobs, Profits, Sales In Past But Actual Economic Dip Is Slight

Editors' Note — Sam Dawson, Associated Press business news analyst, has traveled thousands of miles in the last five weeks reporting on the state of the nation's business as he found it — in the big cities and at the grass roots. He has been in New England, the South, the Southwest and the Far West and now is taking a look at things in the Middle West. Here is a review of things he has found.

By SAM DAWSON

CHICAGO, April 27 (AP) — There are two ways to look at business today:

1. The lush days of lots of jobs, overtime, profits, sales are in the past tense now.

2. Viewed against the backdrop of last year's dread of what might have happened, the actual dip in U. S. economy to date appears relatively slight.

The recession's bark seems worse than its bite. So, the feeling grows that "it isn't going to be as bad as we thought."

Take the first view. Travel the Atlantic Coast states from New England through the Southeast. Ask the people of the reborn South, from Miami to New Orleans, even in oil-rich Texas and Oklahoma. Test the postwar boom lands—Arizona, California and the Pacific Northwest. Talk to the people of the Great Plains from Kansas City to Minneapolis.

With few exceptions, you'll find them admitting — when pressed — that the business pace has slowed a little, and in a few instances a lot. Usually, the dip was earlier and greater in the industrial East and Midwest, less in the South and West, where they say they scarcely have felt it yet.

Now take the second view. Most business and financial executives seem still to regard the slowdown at a benign adjustment—correcting the excesses of the boom, reducing producer inventories that were out of line with consumer facts.

There are others who say it's too early yet for such complacency. They say there's still time and chance for a malignant recession to grow.

Wait to see what happens to retail trade this month and next, they warn. For retail trade is the true end-product of most manufacturing and farming, no matter how many steps along the way.

And retail trade is spotty around the country.

Find out how merchants are doing in a given town and you get a pretty good picture of how farmers are faring, of whether factory workers have lost overtime pay or gone on short weeks, of how the building trades are holding up.

In New England textile mill towns, retail trade is likely to be poor and unemployment compensation claims high. In New England towns where electronic or metalworking plants have come in to take textiles' place, merchants aren't likely to be complaining.

Or take Seattle, where aircraft payrolls are a large part of the income. There the still-high defense spending of the government is translated quickly into spending at the stores.

Where the drought hit hard last summer and lingered through the winter—whether in parts of the South or in the great Southwestern wheat and livestock regions—retail trade is down.

But to the north—in Minnesota and the Dakotas, for example—where the bumper volume of the crops almost offset lower prices, farm income fell less than the national average and retail trade is hurt less. This year they're counting on farmers spending more than last—given another fair shake in weather for their crops.

Riveting echoes in many of the nation's cities, and hammering in their suburbs. The building industry taps out a cheerful tale almost everywhere.

Construction may not always be at quite as fast a pace. Empty houses may go begging even while newer ones are being started. In the highly industrialized areas, contractors say that business expansion plans this year, while maybe as big as last, tend to lean toward new equipment rather than more buildings.

Employment is spotty too.

One example: in the early months of this year the jobless total grew, especially in the Midwestern and Eastern states, where most of the durable goods manufacturers cluster. But the states of North and South Dakota and Montana report employment higher than a year ago. The reason is oil. The Williston Basin, which these states share, is having a building and business boom based on petroleum.

Public psychology sounds sectional variations on the recessional theme too.

In many parts of the land there's a firm conviction that recessions in their very nature must always start in the east and work west, losing their vigor in dalliance on the way; that business traditionally dips violently in the North and gently in the South.

With this recession, there's an added psychological twist:

The South, the Southwest and the Far West have grown remarkably during and since World War II, and have seen industry grab a new or larger role in their economy. It seems beyond the ken of most folks in these postwar boom areas that growth could stop, that times could ever turn really bad again.

These sections attract a large proportion of younger businessmen, whose only experience is with an economy where everything, year after year, goes on getting bigger and better except the purchasing power of the dollar. They're a little dismayed at not setting new records so far this year. But they can't believe that their particular area won't start going ahead again right away.

Some say that psychology will set the course of business. So, take a sounding of recession psychology around the land:

A Boston banker: "New England is shifting in some pain from a soft goods to a hard goods industrial area—it'll be the better for it."

A Charlotte, N. C., textile mill president: "We're having trouble right now—but a growing population means we'll have plenty of customers coming along."

A Miami Beach, Fla., hotelman: "The resort business usually feels bad times first—but this time—look around: plenty of people here, aren't there? Not spending so much, though."

A Kansas City banker: "The farmers had some very good years. They feel pinched now, in comparison, by the drop in prices but there's not much real distress except where the drought was bad."

A Los Angeles aircraft official: "With the world the way it is, how can defense spending drop much more, if any?"

For a more general view take the word of two noted veterans in the fields of finance, business and government service:

Jesse Jones, the 80-year-old Houstonian who as head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, was tagged "the greatest money lender of all times," says:

"The business decline is moderate and isn't hurting us. It ought to be good for the economy to correct the evils of over-expanding and of building up such a top-heavy structure of debt."

Lewis Douglas, Tucson, Ariz., banker and rancher, and Mutual Life Insurance Company chieftain, who once directed the federal budget and later was U. S. ambassador to Great Britain, says:

"In the East they're always excited, everyone being carried away at once by some new wave of emotion. Out here you see things calmly and you see them whole. That's why we're confident."

W. German Economy Good, Conant Says

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—Dr. James B. Conant, U. S. high commissioner for Germany, said at the White House yesterday that West Germany is getting along fine economically and that the political situation is stable.

Conant made the statement to newsmen after reporting to President Eisenhower.

He declined to say what he told the President, but did say in response to questions that unemployment has been sharply reduced in Germany and that efforts are being made to cut it further.

Conant said he returned to this country primarily to testify before congressional committees on his budget requests for West Germany. He said he plans to return to Bonn Friday.

China's Trade Increases

LONDON, April 27 (AP)—Communist China's foreign trade last year was 36 per cent higher than 1952, the Peiping radio said today.

And it reported 75 per cent of this trade was with non-Communist countries despite the Western embargo. The broadcast gave no specific figures.

6,330,000 More Would Vote If Age Is Lowered

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—The Census Bureau said today that if President Eisenhower's proposal to lower the voting age to 18 is adopted, it would add about 6,330,000 voters.

This estimate was contained in the bureau's latest study of age groups in the population, as of last July 1. The bureau said the nation now has about 101 million persons of voting age in a population estimated at nearly 162 million people. The voting age in most sections now is 21.

The very young in the nation heavily outnumber the aged, and the rise in the birth rate in recent years is checking a tendency, in evidence since 1900, toward an older median age, the study said.

It gave these details:

The nation's already crowded schools are faced with 17½ million children under the age of five years.

Children and youths in the 5-17 age group number a little over 34½ million.

There are 94½ million between 18 and 64, of whom 62 million are between 18 and 44, and 32¼ million are 45 to 64.

The number of men and women 65 or over is about 13¼ million. More than three million of these are employed.

Better-Than-Usual Apple Crop Forecast

ROANOKE, Va., April 27 (AP) — Heavy apple bloom in the four-state area of Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania promises a better-than-usual apple crop, a VPI fruit specialist said here today.

Prof. A. H. Teske predicted a crop of 22 million bushels compared with the average 20 to 21 million for Virginia on the basis of the bloom. The weather has been in favor of heavy fruit bud formations, he added.

Rural Carriers To Hold Spring Session May 1

National Officers Will Be Guests

FROSTBURG — The first organizational meeting of the Allegany and Garrett County Rural Letter Carrier's Association will be held at Anton's Big Savage Inn, one and a half miles west of Frostburg, on Saturday at 7:30 p. m. With the organization of Allegany & Garrett counties, the entire state of Maryland will be organized into eight active group associations.

The committee, under direction of Wilbur L. Rose, secretary-treasurer of the local group, has arranged the program. The rural carriers of Allegany and Garrett counties will have at this meeting, Paul G. Benson, president, National Rural Letter Carrier's Association, and John W. Emeigh, secretary, National Rural Letter Carrier's Association, from the Washington headquarters. Clyde V. Hawes, state president of the Maryland RLC Association, and Mrs. Vesta Moore, state president of the Ladies Auxiliary will also be present. Important messages will be given by these officers relative to the problems of the Rural carriers and the progress of the legislative program of the association.

The annual state convention was held last July in Frostburg and it was decided at the convention to combine Allegany and Garrett counties into one active group. Officers elected to serve were Gordon B. Griffin, Cumberland, president; Walter M. Twigg, Flintstone, vice president; and Wilbur L. Ross, Frostburg, secretary-treasurer. The purpose of the spring meeting is to officially organize the group, elect officers for the coming year, and select delegates to attend the state convention July 12-13 at Ocean City.

The purpose of the National Rural Letter Carrier's Association is to improve the methods used by rural mail carriers, to co-operate with the Post Office Department and the public for the good of the service, to promote a fraternal spirit among its members and to benefit their condition of labor.

It is an organization composed entirely of rural carriers, governed by rural carriers, for the benefit of rural carriers. Their motto is "Service With A Smile." It is composed of national, state and county group associations. The national headquarters is located at 1040 Warner Building, Washington, D. C. It acts as an intermediary for the individual rural carrier, and is always ready and willing to represent its members at the Post Office Department, Civil Service Commission, other Government agencies and the United States Congress.

A dinner will be served by Anton, and all RFD mailmen and their substitutes in Allegany and Garrett Counties are invited to attend along with their wives.

Grant County Schools Play Important Part In 4-H Clubs

Agent Says 320 Are Active Members

PETERSBURG — Six of the 16 county schools of Grant County have a part in the extra curricular activities offered by the national 4-H Club program under supervision of Dortha White, reports county school officials.

There are seven 4-H clubs in the Grant County school system replied Miss White, when asked of the work of the organization in the public schools. "You see," she explained, "two clubs are functioning in Petersburg High School." Other clubs are organized at Bayard High School, Bayard Grade School, Johnson Run, Maysville and Petersburg Grade School.

Students, who enroll in the school clubs, are expected to do the same amount of work per year that boys and girls outside of school do. "That means they must have their projects complete and ready for exhibiting at the Tri-County Fair in September. Also, the projects must be up to date before the boy or girl can qualify to attend camp in July at Camp Echo," added the club agent.

Popular projects with the girls are sewing, baked desserts and foods for fun. The boys lean toward gardening, handicrafts and livestock projects. There are approximately 50 different categories from which the boys and girls have to make their selections.

The county school 4-H projects are only part of the county 4-H program, explained the club agent. "We have 20 clubs in the county with a total enrollment of about 320. Around 155 of these are members of the seven clubs, which function in the schools. Also, we have excellent club leaders, but we have a definite need for more leaders to help with the clubs during the summer months when teachers are attending college and on vacation," Miss White explained.

In the past years, Grant County 4-H members have taken their demonstration work to regional and state contests, where ribbons have been won, and this year should see some of the boys and girls successful again, hopefully commented the club agent.

Club leaders who deserve much credit for the success of the school program concluded Miss White, are Lola Ours and Hazel Glass at Johnson Run; Mrs. Ethel Boltz of the Bayard Grade School Club; Mrs. Richard Hanlin and Harold Shaffer of Bayard High School; Thelma Ruddle of Maysville; Fleta Shobe of the Petersburg Grade School group and the two Petersburg High School leaders Myrtle Groves and Lloyd Snyder.

Shadow Of Drouth Hovers Over East

Drought and dust storms in the Southwest make the headlines, but there have been drought conditions in the northeastern part of the United States for 11 of the past 14 years, with cumulative effects which are being felt in many ways.

New York City has declared a water emergency. With an eye on the 1950 crisis, when, in desperation, cloud seeding was resorted to, the city suburbs have been told to batten down for another "dry one."

Perhaps New York's extensive reservoir system can be used as a gauge of what's ahead. The average reservoir level stands at 72 per cent of normal. In the critical year of 1950 the levels were 78 per cent of normal on this date. The shadow of drought has prompted New York authorities to call for the bothersome measures which were necessary four years ago—no car washing, no lawn watering, no street flushing, and so on.

What the summer holds for other parts of the East it is difficult to say although Cumberland is now getting over a water shortage. The spring hasn't been too generous with precipitation. Ground water is low. Many farmers complain that shallow wells do not snap back the way they formerly did. Many farms have been on semi-rationing for a year. Wells now require long periods of rest.

There are many explanations. The basic one seems to be that the climb in the average winter temperatures in the temperate zones brings milder winters, cooler springs and drier—though not necessarily hotter—summers. The plain fact seems to be that man is taking out more each year than nature is putting back.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

How Wrong Can They Be?

I saw an article in the London "Daily Mirror," which has an enormous circulation.

The headline reads:

"The Appalling Failure of Eisenhower."

The story is by John Walters and of him his newspaper says:

"This dispatch on the present sickening crisis in America reached the 'Mirror' last night. It is from John Walters, who has represented this newspaper in the States for many years. Because of America's world significance today, special prominence is given to his message."

The story opens with this paragraph:

"America is unhappy, bewildered and frightened because of the appalling failure of the self-proclaimed crusader she elected President."

Of course, no American will recognize the diagnosis. We have our troubles, our quarrels, our sensations and our absurdities, but no one who lives here will agree that we are particularly unhappy or bewildered or frightened. In fact, a fair criticism might be that we are too gay, too fun-loving in the face of serious crises.

I walk along Broadway in New York and I see about a million faces on their way to play at something. Are they unhappy? Not while they have jingle money in their pockets. Are they bewildered? If anything, they are bewildered by our friends becoming neutral after we helped them so much.

All the agencies of government have tried to frighten the American people. They have published maps and charts and photographs showing them exactly how they are going to be killed by the H-bomb. Has there been an evacuation of the big cities? Not so anyone would notice it. In fact, in our tenement we are all signing two-year leases at this moment. This is the kind of people who do not scare readily. If the H-bomb came along, some speculator would probably put up grandstands and hope to make an honest dollar.

Now, as to Eisenhower's "appalling failure," it just is too early to judge whether he is a successful, a middling, or a failing President. Americans judge such conditions differently from others. If on the whole everybody works and earns a living and taxes do not go any higher, Americans would say that Eisenhower is a fairly successful President in tough times. If our sons are not sent to fight in foreign countries, we would say he is a very successful President in troubled times. If he gets into trouble with Congress but puts over the essentials of his legislative program, this country is likely to forget some of the political ineptitudes of his administration.

Americans maybe are not as good as the British because they do not take their politics as seriously as the British do. No American really expects his president to be a superman. Perhaps that is why Ike's golf score evokes such interest, and the newspapers publish a serial on how Mamie came to marry Ike and what they have done since then. I am sure that more Americans read such a serial than read the President's speeches, which are no different from any other president's speeches, usually dull except when he speaks extemporaneously. Then this President has wit and humor.

This business about being a crusader never meant anything much. It came from the title of a book. Nobody ever expected any kind of a crusade because the last crusader, Carry Nation, got to be a bit of a bore. Besides, what is there to crusade about?

The next quotation I shall give you from John Walters is this:

"And his fellow crusaders have thrown off their fine election disguise, revealing themselves as soldiers of slick, political opportunism and arrogant capitalism."

I do not know what he means by "slick, political opportunism," unless it be that a president of the United States is limited in his authority by the Constitution and that he has to get along with Congress or the nation stands still. Ours is a government of compromises and always has been. No president can quite lead Congress, as Mr. Roosevelt learned when he tried to pack the courts or to purge his opponents. President Eisenhower faces very serious problems and difficulties which he can only meet with congressional cooperation.

As to "arrogant capitalism," I must leave that where it stands. The United States is a capitalistic country. The American people believe in private enterprise. If Walters has been around, he ought to know that.

Questionable Instinct Of Russian Homing Pigeon

Dulles Stands In Way Of Victory For Reds At Geneva

By David Lawrence

GENEVA — An atmosphere of frigid politeness if not veiled hostility prevails here between the United States delegation and the delegations representing North Korean, Chinese and Soviet Communists.

The other 15 countries which participated in the Korean War and have come here for the so-called peace conference seem to be just interested but not overly concerned spectators.

Wisely Secretary of State Dulles refrained from assuming the post of a rotating chairman, preferring to stay in the background and thus avoiding the embarrassment of sitting in the presiding officer's chair where conceivably he would be dealing in a parliamentary sense with the Red China spokesmen.

Russia's Position Incredible

It seems incredible that Soviet Russia would have the effrontery to ask that Red China be seated as an equal of the powers at this conference. It is even more fantastic that the government at Peiping which not so many months ago was professing to the world that it had nothing to do with the intervention by Chinese Communist troops in Korea and that these were merely "Chinese volunteers" should now be asking for equal recognition as a "major power."

It was only a few months ago, too, that the United Nations was by formal resolution declaring the government of Red China to be an aggressor, but at the conference here one would think the Red Chinese were as respectable as the governments of the free world. Only by reason of the studied aloofness by the United States delegation is there any impression conveyed that the Chinese Communist government is regarded as guilty of one of the worst crimes in all history. So far as public opinion in and around Geneva is concerned—if indeed there is such a thing—the Red Chinese are just another government engaged in some diplomatic exchanges here in one more of the many international conferences which from time to time have been convened in this center of Swiss neutrality.

The Red Chinese and Russians are housed in the best hotels and appear to be enjoying their newfound equality, at least as delegates. What seems to be forgotten is that the Communists are responsible for atrocity murders of hundreds of thousands of captives from various countries, plus the death of 35,000 American boys and the wounding of more than 100,000 other Americans. This was a war which the United States entered not to protect a colony as France did in Indochina but to repel aggression on the theory that the cause of world peace would be advanced by that action. But here this lofty motive is lost sight of as the pressure comes from public opinion in Britain and France to make some sort of deal with the Communists. If it were not for America's stubborn opposition to such a course—prompted by an awakened public opinion in the United States — this conference would wind up quickly in an abject surrender to the Communists. The will to resist communistic aggression is theoretical rather than real and is applied primarily to Europe. Here on this continent isolationism is quite popular, only it is known by the more euphemistic term "nationalism."

Dulles Standing Firm

Here in Europe, moreover, it is considered proper for Frenchmen to believe in France above all else and for Britons to believe in Britain above all else, but somehow when an American back home voices such sentiments with respect to his own country, he is called a "right winger" or an "isolationist," which is supposed to be a first cousin to a Fascist from Nazi Germany. The truth, however, is that isolation is the paramount policy of each country in Europe, and such organizations as the European Defense Community and even the NATO setup are regarded as devices invented by the United States and are tolerated merely as one way of getting economic and military aid, both of which, of course, are sorely needed.

Americans can be proud of John Foster Dulles, their secretary of state, for he manifests on every occasion the firmness so necessary to keep this conference from becoming a victory for the Communists. He naturally has to tread cautiously here as the French play a skillful game in Indochina, and the Communists, well aware of the strains between the free governments, seek to obtain acceptance of a formula which will pay lip service to the unification of divided Korea or a divided Indochina but which can only mean, if not rejected here, the triumph of communistic infiltration.

It will take several days for the preliminary sparring to be completed and Secretary Dulles has already revealed that he plans to stay only 10 days, so the Communists will have to come forward at that time with something concrete or see the conference itself dissolve into a contest of staying power not unlike that at Panmunjom. For the hotels are comfortable and the luxuries of life for the Communists are such a welcome change from their routine as to make the delegates from Moscow and Peiping not at all anxious to hurry back home. It looks like a long-drawn-out conference.

Baering Down On The News

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

The spieling bee in Geneva operates along the general lines of the Tower of Babble.

I am an authority on international doo-dabs for I go to none but the most reliable newsreels.

We don't want Geneva to feel too bad about those wandering microphone minstrels now in executive stalemate. Those guys look that way in any city.

Portfolios are packed for muzzle-bursts and monocles are polished to white blisters. This looks like a war of appeacement.

Our man-about-continents Dulles will be there with his hair in a tight braid.

He is there to assure our platonic allies that we will not use the H-bomb until it is too late.

France and England desire to reverse the procedure of problem laundrying. They want to iron it out. And wash it afterward.

The best way to end the trouble in Indochina is for everybody to sign the monsoon.

The only people who haven't said, "Lafayette, we are here" are the French.

Anthony Eden is there to protect England from its best friend. England is worried now that the bombs are bigger than the islands.

Food Contamination: Leftovers Are Most Susceptible

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Anyone who becomes violently ill with nausea and vomiting is likely to blame the last thing he ate, particularly if hamburgers, shrimp, or ham were consumed. We now know that these edibles are not the most common causes of food poisoning; in recent years they have been superseded by processed meats, custards, cream pies, pastries, sandwich mixes, dressings, and puddings. Water and milk also play a role, but in most communities both these sources are watched so carefully they rarely get out of hand. Our health departments prefer to investigate the origin of an outbreak in a scientific fashion because epidemics have been traced occasionally to the least-suspected foods, such as steaks, noodle soups, or orange juice.

Not every bout of nausea, vomiting, or darrhea is due to food poisoning. In bygone days, infections such as typhoid and bacillary dysentery were high on the list but today intestinal flu often is responsible. In this type of epidemic, many other persons are affected in the same way at the same time. Food poisoning differs in that only those who have consumed the same meal are made ill.

In addition, symptoms develop within six hours after eating the spoiled product. The individual becomes nauseated, dizzy, and breaks out into a cold sweat. This is followed by vomiting, abdominal cramps, and diarrhea. When symptoms are severe, prostration follows and many go into shock.

I have observed big, husky soldiers who were strong enough to lift a cow, wilt completely when overtaken by poisonous food. Distress lasts two to six hours and thereafter the pulse strengthens and the color improves. In severe cases, weakness, nausea, cramps, and loss of appetite may persist 8 to 24 hours. Almost everyone survives because nature sees to it the contaminated material is eliminated, but fast.

Nowadays, most food poisoning epidemics are traceable to infection with the hemolytic staphylococcus. This germ is a frequent inhabitant of the skin and is found in infected cuts, pimples, boils, and in the nose and throat of victims of the common cold.

Most of us are able to tolerate a certain number of these microorganisms in food but the situation changes when they multiply rapidly. This arises when our food handlers develop colds or have cuts and abrasions on their hands and when food is handled in an insanitary manner or is stored in uncovered vessels. Improper refrigeration or inadequate cooking also play a role. The most susceptible foods are leftovers that have been exposed to bacteria several times. Chicken, salads, pastries, and sandwich mixes are most vulnerable because staph germs thrive on these items.

TOMORROW: X-ray for leukemia.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

In his autobiography, "Lying in State," Stanton Griffis tells about a day he and a Wall Street friend wandered into a Paris gallery to see an exhibition of modern pictures. The friend thought that one or two of them would improve the decor of his private office. "How do you go about buying these things without getting the daylights soaked out of you?" he asked. "Put in low bids on all of them," suggested the knowing Mr. Griffis. "When the show is over, you'll probably find that a couple have fallen virtually into your lap."

The frock-coated manager indicated that this procedure was highly unusual, but graciously consented to enter the bids. A few mornings later, Mr. Griffis received a frantic phone call from his friend, "My God," he wailed, "I've bought 46 pictures."

In the Kansas City zoo, writes Bennett Schneider, a keeper was fired for chronic forgetfulness. He couldn't remember his lions.

Why not. Six months from now the other boys will be consulting him as an expert on razors and shaving creams.

TREMOR AND MARRIAGE

Mrs. L. writes: I'm going steady with a friend, the same age as myself, 68. He has Parkinson's disease. Would I be likely to catch it if we got married?

Parkinsonism is not contagious.

HEADACHE AND MENOPAUSE

Mrs. L. writes: Why do women have so many headaches during the change?

Symington's Stock Down, McClellan's Up As Result Of Committee Hearings

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—McCarthy Merry-Go-Round — Senate observers concur that Stu Symington of Missouri has just about lost his bid for the presidential nomination by not speaking out at the McCarthy hearings. An A-1 administrator, who did a great job as air secretary, Stuart is too inarticulate, too meek, too suave in the rough-and-tumble of McCarthy debate. . . Sen. John McClellan has probably re-elected himself senator from Arkansas, thanks to McCarthy. A few weeks ago, McClellan faced likely defeat from Arkansas' popular ex-Gov. Sid McMath. Today McClellan's punches at McCarthy have upped his chances 50 per cent. . . . Arkansas is overwhelmingly anti-McCarthy. . . . McClellan didn't have the courage, as did his Arkansas colleague, Bill Fulbright, to vote against McCarthy's appropriation, but he now sees the handwriting on the wall. Fulbright was the sole senator out of 96 to vote against McCarthy's whopping big appropriation. . . . This is the taxpayers' dough used by McCarthy to send Don Surine, a discharged FBI agent, up to New York to scare Arthur Pierson's mother-in-law out of her wits by telling her her daughter was involved in a hit-and-run accident. This was a ruse to get Pierson's address in an effort to retaliate against Struve Hensel, forthright Defense Department attorney who drew up the Army charges against McCarthy. Hensel was Pierson's old partner.

Mundt Merry-Go-Round — Senator Mundt's handling of the McCarthy hearings is so lame, friends fear it's likely to help his Republican opponent, David Wilkens, South Dakota farmer, who is running against him in the June 1 primary. Mundt has let special counsel Ray Jenkins, the slow-spoken Tennessee criminal lawyer, act as if he was committee chairman. This is unheard of in Senate procedure. . . . During the Kefauver hearings there was never any doubt as to who ran the show—Estes Kefauver. . . . During Truman Committee hearings there was no doubt as to who ran the show—Harry Truman. Harry was not a lawyer but he ran things. Mundt is no lawyer but he's not running things. . . . Mundt gets involved in interminable hassels, which is duck soup for McCarthy. It lets Joe dominate the TV cameras. . . . Mundt is president of the National Forensic League, editor of the Rostrum, associate editor of the Speaker, is supposed to be one of the great public speakers of the U.S.A. But when he gets off the rostrum in the rough-and-tumble of debate, he doesn't know what to say. . . . Ray Jenkins was picked as special counsel because Republicans wanted a spotlighted candidate to run against Kefauver in Tennessee. What's happening is that the snarled-up McCarthy hearings, handled by Jenkins, have made Kefauver a bigger man by contrast, and are likely to encourage GOP opposition to Senator Mundt in South Dakota.

Fear Technique — regardless of changing public opinion, fear of McCarthy is still dominant in the Senate. . . . McCarthy knows where every senatorial body is buried, where every senatorial skeleton is stacked away. If a senator has a girl friend, if he drinks too much, if he's had income-tax trouble, Joe's boys know it. . . . However, most senators are honest, decent. What they fear most is re-election opposition, and they know what Joe has done to Tydings of Maryland, Benton of Connecticut and is now trying to do to Margaret Chase Smith in Maine. . . . Actually he has tried to defeat his critics in several other states, such as Symington in Missouri. But his failures don't get publicized, so fear prevails. . . . For a few speeches by Joe in a senator's state will mean extra thousands of dollars to be raised for campaign funds to offset McCarthy.

Tax Returns — The fear technique is even more effective today due to the fact that Joe seems to have access to income-tax returns. It's against the law for anyone to see these returns without a White House order, but a big pile was on McCarthy's desk the other day, and the President of the United States who has said he disapproves of McCarthy's fear tactics, is the only man who could have given the order. . . . This obviously was how McCarthy got access to the tax returns of the President's own assistant secretary of defense, Struve Hensel — namely, through an order by the President. . . . Irony is that Hensel who served under the Democrats, had just finished writing a magazine piece on how nice it was to serve under the Republicans.

Newspaper Shift — Indicative of the public change on McCarthy is a "box" printed on Page 1 of the New York World-Telegram and Sun. It told readers where to write if they wanted to contribute to the Joe-Must-Go clubs in Wisconsin — namely, to Leroy Gore, Sauk City, Wis. . . . Significance of this is the man behind the World-Telegram and Sun — Roy Howard, head of Scripps-Howard newspapers. Few men in the U. S. and few newspapers in the U. S. pounded the McCarthy theme harder than Roy and his news chain during the early days of McCarthyism. Roy's editorials have now changed abruptly.

Wisconsin's Shift — Editor Gore of Sauk City says there's been an equally abrupt political change in Wisconsin which he attributes to two factors. No. 1 was McCarthy's persecution of Mrs. Annie Lee Moss; Wisconsin folks saw her as a nice old colored lady who wasn't harming anyone and they didn't like their senator picking on her. . . . No. 2 was McCarthy's attack on Brig. Gen. Ralph Swicker, a Wisconsin boy. . . . Also, they don't like McCarthy's methods.

A Winner And A Loser

By Bob Considine

WASHINGTON, (INS)—When the last bell is heard in the McCarthy-Army debate, and the wicked little red eyes of the TV cameras grow dim, what then? Who pays? And who's minding the store in the meantime?

As this hearing goes along it becomes increasingly evident that there is going to be a winner and there is going to be a loser. Somebody eventually will be exposed before millions as a liar or an incompetent or a perverter of power. Somebody else is going to be revealed as a tower of truth, an efficient public servant, and a guardian of democratic processes.

If it is Sen. McCarthy, Roy M. Cohn and Francis Carr who are revealed as in the wrong in this case, it could mean the end of McCarthy's unique power in his party, and peremptory dismissal from the subcommittee staff of Cohn, who has a remarkable record in the work of fighting domestic communism, and of Carr, who had a fine record with the FBI.

It would be within the power of the subcommittee, the "McCarthy subcommittee", to recommend that its chairman be indicted for perjury, if he loses the "who's lying?" hearing. It could also recommend that he be hit with a Senate censure, which is a form of placing a man "in coventry" for the remainder of his time in the upper house. The Senate has meted out such punishment to a member only three times in this century, twice in 1901 and the last time in 1929, when Sen. Bingham of Connecticut was declared too cozy with a sugar lobbyist.

Well, what about the other side of the picture? If Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens, Army Counsellor John G. Adams and Assit. Secretary of Defense Struve Hensel are judged by the senators on the panel to be the wrongdoers in this matter, it could also recommend that the Justice Department proceed with perjury charges. If such action was considered too dire, but the final report put the finger on the above-mentioned men, there would be little they could do except tender their resignations.

What's happening here is that serious, despite its soap opera facade.

There is unconcealed satisfaction in some Democratic circles about the way this hearing seems to be going. As the subcommittee is set up, its chairman (Karl Mundt) is a Republican, and there are three more Republicans to back him up, meaning that the GOP has the balance of power in any decision the panel will make. The principal combatants, McCarthy and Stevens, are Republicans. So are most, if not all the others who will take the stand in what promises to be an increasingly rough exhibition.

Thus, the losers in this case—and, theoretically, the losers could go to jail—will be Republicans, since they comprise the cast of characters. The Republican senators on the subcommitte would then be accused of turning against their own kind, if they did, and stand accused of dosing matters with whitewash if they didn't. Someone asked the other day, "Why doesn't Sen. Symington (D., Mo.) take more of a part in this? He knows the town, and it's a great chance for him to build a national reputation for 1956. He's the most articulate man on the subcommittee, but he sits back." And the answer was, "he doesn't have anything to say. All he has to do is watch Republican eat Republican and pretty soon he won't even have any competition in 1956."

This case could become the chief talking point of the congressional elections next fall, and its tentacles could conceivably reach into the presidential race two years later. From all accounts, the President isn't at all pleased. Mr. Eisenhower is still a "team" man. He has repeatedly said that he does not approve McCarthy's methods—though he has never spelled out the Wisconsin's name—but he'd be a lot happier about his program's chances of achieving success if McCarthy, Stevens, et al could kiss and make up.

Tremendous problems face the Congress and the country. Pretty soon, now, we are going to have to say out loud whether or not we have intervened in the war in Indochina. The Geneva conference that opened Monday will make us take very positive stands about Red China, and its demand for recognition in U. N. and world diplomacy. The recession isn't as easy to erase as believed. What can be done about Nehru, ECA, NATO, etc. etc. etc. But all eyes are on a debate (which could be endless) centering around a buck private named Schine, and there is a feeling that all else in Washington has come to a halt. It hasn't, of course, but many important matters are being lost sight of. They are telling the story of the GOP senator who is one of the powers of the FHA investigation. He stands outside his committee room imploring reporters and spectators to drop in and hear all about the terrible scandal which commenced back in FDR's time. But the mobs press on to the caucus room, to witness Republican devour Republican.

In a Tennessee community's election for mayor one candidate got fewer votes than he had relatives living in the town. Gald it's not up to use to explain that one.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, April 27 (INS) — All was sweetness and light at Apple Valley over the weekend among Dean Martin, Jerry Lewis and Janet Leigh, who went on a junket with the press to exploit "Living It Up."

Janet, who was a big hit at nearby George Air Force Base, has reason to be a happy girl. Not only will she have one of the starring roles in "My Sister Eileen," but she will have the lead in "Picnic" when it is made at Columbia.

She won't do "Picnic" right away because she has to finish "Rogue Cop," "My Sister Eileen," and do a picture with Tony Curtis at U-I first. I'd say this would keep her busy for at least a year and a half.

If Lana Turner has any complaints, it's because she hates being idle. Her vacation ended Monday and she's raring to go.

The reason she is not in the Sigmund Romberg story, "Deep in My Heart," is because the role of Gaby Deslys is too unimportant for her. Besides, Gaby was a dancer, so Ballerina Tamara Toumanova will replace Lana.

In "Cobweb," which is Lana's next at the studio, she'll have Edmund Purdom as her co-star, and they are, I think, a good combination.

Old home week on the Paramount lot for Cary Grant, who paid a visit to the studio where he started in 1934, for pre-picture huddles with Alfred Hitchcock. Cary's been given his old dressing room, and some of his friends hosted a luncheon for him.

Actually he won't do his scenes in "To Catch a Thief" at the studio until after he does the location shots in France in July.

I asked Hitchy what actress would play opposite Cary.

"I don't know," he said. "I want Grace Kelly so much that I haven't thought of any other girl. I'm still hoping that some miracle will happen. But I don't suppose MGM will lend her."

So nice to meet Margaret Hayes, whom I knew when she was an actress in Hollywood before she married Herbert Bayard Swope and became a big TV star.

Margaret practically was on her way back to New York and had told me her husband was meeting her at the airport there. But she never caught the plane because Jack Benny telephoned asking her to be a guest on his TV show next Sunday with David Niven. They'll do a sort of "design for living" skit, and is Margaret thrilled!

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Boni Buehler, the airline hostess who lost an arm and a leg in a motorboat accident is recovering from additional surgery on her leg.

Irene and Robert Hardy Andrews celebrated their 12th wedding anniversary and took some of their guests to the Mocambo.

Dorothy Jameson, who was in the party, went into St. Vincent's Hospital next day for a finger operation.

Also in the Andrews party were Christine Martel and Jon Hall — she says he can talk French to her.

The Charlie Morrisons, too, had a big party celebrating their sixth wedding anniversary.

Dr. A. J. Menzies invited me to a children's party given by the Paul Henreids, celebrating 11-year-old Monica's birthday. Dr. Menzies' own daughter, Nina, age 11 and a beauty, was there. Never have I seen sub-debs have more fun.

At Carol Ann Beery's wedding to Don Hayden it seemed as if Wallace Beery was right there. A huge picture of him was on the piano. Carol was the apple of his eye, and he could well be proud of her now.

At the Captain's table blonde Cleo Moore was dining with Fernando Lamas.

Cute Mrs. Ned Washington was given a surprise dinner by Composer Ned Washington — but the real surprise was when Patti left the Sportsmen's Lodge. She found a beautiful new car waiting for her.

Met Luella Gear at Chasen's, and Walter Winchell said, "Luella, meet Luella" — but we already had met.

Dr. Arthur Hoffman has been appointed chief of staff of Cedars of Lebanon Hospital.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Miss Rogers is the daughter of the late George J. A. Rogers, chief accountant of the Bank for International Settlements.

The bride-elect, a graduate of Chatelard School, Les Avants, Switzerland, will receive her Bachelor of Science degree in June from the Institute of Languages and Linguistics, Georgetown University.

Broadwater completed part of his studies at the University Saint Joseph in Beirut, Lebanon; was graduated from Georgetown University, and is now studying for his master of arts degree in international relations at American University.

The wedding is planned for early autumn.

With the organization of Allegany and Garrett counties, the entire state of Maryland will be organized into eight active group associations.

The committee, under direction of Wilbur L. Rose, secretary-treasurer of the local group, has arranged the program. The rural carriers of Allegany and Garrett counties will have at this meeting, Paul G. Benson, president, National Rural Letter Carrier's Association, and John W. Emeigh, secretary, National Rural Letter Carrier's Association, from the Washington headquarters. Clyde V. Hawes, state president of the Maryland RLC Association, and Mrs. Vesta Moore, state president of the Ladies Auxiliary will also be present. Important messages will be given by these officers relative to the problems of the Rural carriers and the progress of the legislative program of the association.

Officers elected to serve were Gordon B. Griffin, Cumberland, president; Walter M. Twigg, Flintstone, vice president; and Wilbur L. Ross, Frostburg, secretary-treasurer. The purpose of the spring meeting is to officially organize the group, elect officers for the coming year, and select delegates to attend the state convention July 12-13 at Ocean City.

The purpose of the National Rural Letter Carrier's Association is to improve the methods used by rural mail carriers, to co-operate with the Post Office Department and the public for the good of the service, to promote a fraternal spirit among its members and to benefit their condition of labor.

It is an organization composed entirely of rural carriers, governed by rural carriers, for the benefit of rural carriers. Their motto is "Service With A Smile." It is composed of national, state and county group associations. The national headquarters is located at 1040 Warner Building, Washington, D. C. It acts as an intermediary for the individual rural carrier, and is always ready and willing to represent its members at the Post Office Department, Civil Service Commission, other Government agencies and the United States Congress.

A dinner will be served by Anton, and all RFD mailmen and their substitutes in Allegany and Garrett Counties are invited to attend along with their wives.

Grant County Schools Play Important Part In 4-H Clubs

Agent Says 320 Are Active Members

PETERSBURG — Six of the 16 county schools of Grant County have a part in the extra curricular activities offered by the national 4-H Club program under supervision of Dortha White, reports county school officials.

There are seven 4-H clubs in the Grant County school system replied Miss White, when asked of the work of the organization in the public schools. "You see," she explained, "two clubs are functioning in Petersburg High School." Other clubs are organized at Bayard High School, Bayard Grade School, Johnson Run, Maysville and Petersburg Grade School.

Students, who enroll in the school clubs, are expected to do the same amount of work per year that boys and girls outside of school do. "That means they must have their projects complete and ready for exhibiting at the Tri-County Fair in September. Also, the projects must be up to date before the boy or girl can qualify to attend camp in July at Camp Echo," added the club agent.

Popular projects with the girls are sewing, baked desserts and foods for fun. The boys lean toward gardening, handicrafts and livestock projects. There are approximately 50 different categories from which the boys and girls have to make their selections.

The county school 4-H projects are only part of the county 4-H program, explained the club agent. "We have 20 clubs in the county with a total enrollment of about 320. Around 155 of these are members of the seven clubs, which function in the schools. Also, we have excellent club leaders, but we have a definite need for more leaders to help with the clubs during the summer months when teachers are attending college and on vacation," Miss White explained.

In the past years, Grant County 4-H members have taken their demonstration work to regional and state contests, where ribbons have been won, and this year should see some of the boys and girls successful again, hopefully commented the club agent.

Club leaders who deserve much credit for the success of the school program concluded Miss White, are Lola Ours and Hazel Glass at Johnson Run; Mrs. Ethel Boltz of the Bayard Grade School Club; Mrs. Richard Hanlin and Harold Shaffer of Bayard High School; Thelma Ruddle of Maysville; Fleta Shobe of the Petersburg Grade School group and the two Petersburg High School leaders Myrtle Groves and Lloyd Snyder.

Record Crowd Attends Church League Dinner

Lynn Lashley Trophy Given Grace Baptist

By TED TROXELL

Approximately 320 persons, the largest crowd in the history of the event, were on hand last night at the Central YMCA's 11th annual Sunday School Basketball League dinner, to honor the 1953-54 champions, Grace Baptist.

It was also pointed out by Clifton Van Roby, physical director of the Y, that the delegation of well-wishers from the congregation of the Greene Street Church was the largest single turnout by any one group in the history of the banquet. The "happy Baptists," as they were called by toastmaster Mal Campbell, occupied the entire center table.

Winfield Adam, general secretary of the "Y", acting in the absence of James W. Bishop who was unable to attend, gave the address of welcome, stating he was sorry that Bishop was not present, recalling that he was the first president of the 26-year old organization.

Toastmaster Campbell then introduced Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster and Raymond O. McCullough, principal of Allegany High School, and lauded them for their interest in the league, pointing out that its success depends on them. The Allegany gymnasium is made available by these men during the season, for league play.

Also taking bows for their successful efforts in the operation of the league were the following officials—Raymond Stoutamyer, Joe Wagner, John Raupauch, Jack Chisholm, and John "Junior" Eversole. Campbell expressed regret that the other officials, Fred Wolford and Floyd "Pete" Elliott, were not in attendance.

Lashley Presents Trophy

Lynn C. Lashley then presented the trophy bearing his name, to Coach Bob Rahn of the winning Grace Baptist team. Upon accepting the award, Rahn replied that it was a great experience to be able to coach a winner.

In regard to the 27 also-rans of the expansive Sunday School League, Campbell reminded them of the age-old Biblical passage, "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

Arthur Davis, league president and coach of the runnerup Emmanuel Episcopal five, then spoke on behalf of the league and his team, thanking everyone who had any part in the success of the league during the past season.

Walter L. "Bill" Bowers, coach of the state champion Allegany High cagers, offered a reply for Campbell's earlier remark, stating that it reminded him of another saying from the Bible, "First is last and last is first." He hoped that it would serve to console the coaches of the losing teams.

Bowers, referring to the Sunday School league as the stepping stone to high school varsity teams, directed most of his remarks to the players themselves, and said that the qualities that he would look for in choosing his future teams from these Church league "graduates" would be team play and consistency.

Calls League Top Flight

Chester Payne, athletic coach at Ridgeley High School, then spoke, stating that, in his opinion, the league is "top flight," and hoped that the people of Cumberland wouldn't just take it for granted. He pointed out that no other city the size of Cumberland can boast of such a program.

The next speaker on the program, Fort Hill coach John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh, told the audience that this is his 26th anniversary as a coach here in Cumberland, remarking that the league was started in the same year he came here, and that it has been a pleasure to watch it grow.

He jokingly remarked that he wished Coaches Payne and Bowers would "take back what they said about the league sending ready-made players to the high school teams." He was afraid that Mr. Webster would dispose of the high school coaches.

Methodists Given Trophy

The Moose trophy was then presented by the local lodge governor, Paul Allen, to Coach Bob Whetzel and Rev. Kenneth Grove, of Emmanuel Methodist Church. Allen assured the audience that this trophy, which is given to the team that wins the regular season championship, will be an annual award.

The Allegany team was then introduced, and Bob Kirtley, serving as spokesman for the group, produced some laughs when he said he couldn't understand why he was chosen to speak when everyone knows that Dick Rank is the real speechmaker of the team. Kirtley asserted that the experience gained as a member of the Sunday School league has proven invaluable in the high school careers of he and his teammates. All of the Allegany players participated in the Sunday School league at one time or another.

Trinity Team Honored

Roby then presented individual trophies to the winning Grace Baptist team, runnerup certificates to Emmanuel Episcopal, and the annual Sportsmanship trophy to Trinity Methodist, who according to Roby, was the smallest team in the history of the league.

The invocation and benediction were pronounced by Rev. Randolph W. Keefe, pastor of Grace Baptist Church. The meal was served by the YMCA Ladies Auxiliary.

Chisox Beat Yankees, 4-3

Johnson Is Victor Over "Whitey" Ford

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP) — Don Johnson, a former Yankee who had never beaten his old mates since he left the club in 1950, pitched the league-leading Chicago White Sox to a 4-3 victory over New York today.

Johnson needed help in the late innings to nail down Chicago's fourth straight victory and their eighth in the last nine games.

Harry Dorish finally came in from the bull pen to put down a ninth inning Yankee uprising after reliefers Al Sima and Sandy Consuegra faltered.

Just to complete the cycle, Whitey Ford, who never had lost to Chicago in his brief major league career, was charged with the defeat.

Indians Tie Elks For Lead In PVC

PETERSBURG, W. Va., April 27—Coach Guy Propst's Circleville High School Indians, the "surprise team" of the Potomac Valley Conference, won a 10-inning thriller from Petersburg High's Vikings today at Circleville and went into a first place tie with Elk Garden in the 11-school baseball circuit. The score was 3-2.

The triumph was the third in a row for the Indians who whipped Franklin, 11-0, and 8-1 in previous games.

Today's mound duel between Ron Lambert and Jimmy Kessel ended in the 10th when D. Lambert singled to left to score Thompson with the run that broke a 2-2 deadlock. Ron Lambert doubled to open the 10th and was forced at third by Thompson. The latter moved to second on a passed ball and scored on D. Lambert's blow.

Petersburg took a 2-0 lead in the first inning when Collins' timely two-bagger scored Whitmer and George. Circleville scored a run in the third when Raines singled to center and completed the circuit when Brill let the ball get away from him. The Indians knotted the count in the 6th when Hedrick singled, stole second and came home on Raines' base wallop.

Ron Lambert yielded two hits and struck out seven Vikings. Kessel fanned 11 and gave up nine hits, six being shared by Ron Lambert, Raines and Hinkle. Box:

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, April 27 (INS) — All was sweetness and light at Apple Valley over the weekend among Dean Martin, Jerry Lewis and Janet Leigh, who went on a junket with the press to exploit "Living It Up."

Janet, who was a big hit at nearby George Air Force Base, has reason to be a happy girl. Not only will she have one of the starring roles in "My Sister Eileen," but she will have the lead in "Picnic" when it is made at Columbia.

She won't do "Picnic" right away because she has to finish "Rogue Cop," "My Sister Eileen," and do a picture with Tony Curtis at U-I first. I'd say this would keep her busy for at least a year and a half.

If Lana Turner has any complaints, it's because she hates being idle. Her vacation ended Monday and she's raring to go.

The reason she is not in the Sigmund Romberg story, "Deep in My Heart," is because the role of Gaby Deslys is too unimportant for her. Besides, Gaby was a dancer, so Ballerina Tamara Toumanova will replace Lana.

In "Cobweb," which is Lana's next at the studio, she'll have Edmund Purdom as her co-star, and they are, I think, a good combination.

Old home week on the Paramount lot for Cary Grant, who paid a visit to the studio where he started in 1934, for pre-picture huddles with Alfred Hitchcock. Cary's been given his old dressing room, and some of his friends hosted a luncheon for him.

Actually he won't do his scenes in "To Catch a Thief" at the studio until after he does the location shots in France in July.

I asked Hitchy what actress would play opposite Cary.

"I don't know," he said. "I want Grace Kelly so much that I haven't thought of any other girl. I'm still hoping that some miracle will happen. But I don't suppose MGM will lend her."

So nice to meet Margaret Hayes, whom I knew when she was an actress in Hollywood before she married Herbert Bayard Swope and became a big TV star.

Margaret practically was on her way back to New York and had told me her husband was meeting her at the airport there. But she never caught the plane because Jack Benny telephoned asking her to be a guest on his TV show next Sunday with David Niven. They'll do a sort of "design for living" skit, and is Margaret thrilled!

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Boni Buehler, the airline hostess who lost an arm and a leg in a motorboat accident is recovering from additional surgery on her leg.

Irene and Robert Hardy Andrews celebrated their 12th wedding anniversary and took some of their guests to the Mocambo.

Dorothy Jameson, who was in the party, went into St. Vincent's Hospital next day for a finger operation.

Also in the Andrews party were Christine Martel and Jon Hall — she says he can talk French to her.

The Charlie Morrisons, too, had a big party celebrating their sixth wedding anniversary.

Dr. A. J. Menzies invited me to a children's party given by the Paul Henreids, celebrating 11-year-old Monica's birthday. Dr. Menzies' own daughter, Nina, age 11 and a beauty, was there. Never have I seen sub-debs have more fun.

At Carol Ann Beery's wedding to Don Hayden it seemed as if Wallace Beery was right there. A huge picture of him was on the piano. Carol was the apple of his eye, and he could well be proud of her now.

At the Captain's table blonde Cleo Moore was dining with Fernando Lamas.

Cute Mrs. Ned Washington was given a surprise dinner by Composer Ned Washington — but the real surprise was when Patti left the Sportsmen's Lodge. She found a beautiful new car waiting for her.

Met Luella Gear at Chasen's, and Walter Winchell said, "Luella, meet Luella" — but we already had met.

Dr. Arthur Hoffman has been appointed chief of staff of Cedars of Lebanon Hospital.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Runs Mile In 1:35 To Beat Determine

By JOHN CHANDLER

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 27 (AP)—Hasty Road jumped into top consideration for the 80th Kentucky Derby today as he outfought Determine in a blistering head-and-head stretch duel to break the Churchill Downs track record in the $15,350 Derby Trial.

The dark brown son of Roman-Traffic Court, greatest money-winning 2-year-old in history last year, but a bust to date in his 3-year-old campaign, snapped out of it with convincing authority in this 17th Derby Trial.

He led all the waay soon after Determine took a brief lead at the start of the mile gallop.

Beats Hill Gail's Mark

The crowd gasped and yelled as the time of 1:35 was announced. Two years ago Calumet's Hill Gail broke the track clocking with a 1:35 2-5 scorcher, and became the derby favorite which he won with ease.

Last year Cain Hoy's Dark Star won the trial in 1:36, then went on to upset Native Dancer in the big one on Saturday.

This was strictly a two horse race after the first half mile on a lightning fast track.

Determine, a tiny gray colt owned by Andy Crevolin of Alhambra, Calif., had won six straight stakes races until this afternoon. So the crowd backed Determine and his stablemate, Allied, down to 1-2 favoritism.

But Hasty Road, who had failed to win in four previous starts this season, showed his 1953 form this cloudy afternoon. Trainer Harry Trostek finally decided to put blinkers on Hasty Road, and it must have been the remedy.

The big handsome colt ran like he did last fall when he won the rich Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes and jacked his earnings to $277,132, an all-time record for a juvenile.

Win Brings $11,700

The Hasty House Farm star, who earned $11,700 today and shot his total bankroll to $291,232, was the 5-2 second choice and paid $7.40, $2.60 and $2.80.

Determine, who finished 11½ lengths ahead of Allied, paid $2.20 and $22.20. Allied paid $2.20 show.

Maryland Wins, 4-3

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., April 27 (AP)—Reserve catcher Jim Faulkner lined a single to left centerfield to score Ed Miller from second base with one out in the 13th inning here today to give Maryland a 4-3 baseball victory over William and Mary.

Record Crowd Attends Church League Dinner

By TED TROXELL

Approximately 320 persons, the largest crowd in the history of the event, were on hand last night at the Central YMCA's 11th annual Sunday School Basketball League dinner, to honor the 1953-54 champions, Grace Baptist.

It was also pointed out by Clifton Van Roby, physical director of the Y, that the delegation of well-wishers from the congregation of the Greene Street Church was the largest single turnout by any one group in the history of the banquet. The "happy Baptists," as they were called by toastmaster Mal Campbell, occupied the entire center table.

Winfield Adam, general secretary of the "Y", acting in the absence of James W. Bishop who was unable to attend, gave the address of welcome, stating he was sorry that Bishop was not present, recalling that he was the first president of the 26-year old organization.

Toastmaster Campbell then introduced Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster and Raymond O. McCullough, principal of Allegany High School, and lauded them for their interest in the league, pointing out that its success depends on them. The Allegany gymnasium is made available by these men during the season, for league play.

Also taking bows for their successful efforts in the operation of the league were the following officials—Raymond Stoutamyer, Joe Wagner, John Raupauch, Jack Chisholm, and John "Junior" Eversole. Campbell expressed regret that the other officials, Fred Wolford and Floyd "Pete" Elliott, were not in attendance.

Lashley Presents Trophy

Lynn C. Lashley then presented the trophy bearing his name, to Coach Bob Rahn of the winning Grace Baptist team. Upon accepting the award, Rahn replied that it was a great experience to be able to coach a winner.

In regard to the 27 also-rans of the expansive Sunday School League, Campbell reminded them of the age-old Biblical passage, "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

Arthur Davis, league president and coach of the runnerup Emmanuel Episcopal five, then spoke on behalf of the league and his team, thanking everyone who had any part in the success of the league during the past season.

Walter L. "Bill" Bowers, coach of the state champion Allegany High cagers, offered a reply for Campbell's earlier remark, stating that it reminded him of another saying from the Bible, "First is last and last is first." He hoped that it would serve to console the coaches of the losing teams.

Bowers, referring to the Sunday School league as the stepping stone to high school varsity teams, directed most of his remarks to the players themselves, and said that the qualities that he would look for in choosing his future teams from these Church league "graduates" would be team play and consistency.

Calls League Top Flight

Chester Payne, athletic coach at Ridgeley High School, then spoke, stating that, in his opinion, the league is "top flight," and hoped that the people of Cumberland wouldn't just take it for granted. He pointed out that no other city the size of Cumberland can boast of such a program.

The next speaker on the program, Fort Hill coach John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh, told the audience that this is his 26th anniversary as a coach here in Cumberland, remarking that the league was started in the same year he came here, and that it has been a pleasure to watch it grow.

He jokingly remarked that he wished Coaches Payne and Bowers would "take back what they said about the league sending ready-made players to the high school teams." He was afraid that Mr. Webster would dispose of the high school coaches.

Methodists Given Trophy

The Moose trophy was then presented by the local lodge governor, Paul Allen, to Coach Bob Whetzel and Rev. Kenneth Grove, of Emmanuel Methodist Church. Allen assured the audience that this trophy, which is given to the team that wins the regular season championship, will be an annual award.

The Allegany team was then introduced, and Bob Kirtley, serving as spokesman for the group, produced some laughs when he said he couldn't understand why he was chosen to speak when everyone knows that Dick Rank is the real speechmaker of the team. Kirtley asserted that the experience gained as a member of the Sunday School league has proven invaluable in the high school careers of he and his teammates. All of the Allegany players participated in the Sunday School league at one time or another.

Trinity Team Honored

Roby then presented individual trophies to the winning Grace Baptist team, runnerup certificates to Emmanuel Episcopal, and the annual Sportsmanship trophy to Trinity Methodist, who according to Roby, was the smallest team in the history of the league.

The invocation and benediction were pronounced by Rev. Randolph W. Keefe, pastor of Grace Baptist Church. The meal was served by the YMCA Ladies Auxiliary.

Chisox Beat Yankees, 4-3

Johnson Is Victor Over "Whitey" Ford

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP) — Don Johnson, a former Yankee who had never beaten his old mates since he left the club in 1950, pitched the league-leading Chicago White Sox to a 4-3 victory over New York today.

Johnson needed help in the late innings to nail down Chicago's fourth straight victory and their eighth in the last nine games.

Harry Dorish finally came in from the bull pen to put down a ninth inning Yankee uprising after reliefers Al Sima and Sandy Consuegra faltered.

Just to complete the cycle, Whitey Ford, who never had lost to Chicago in his brief major league career, was charged with the defeat.

Vikings Lose To Circleville In Tenth, 3-2

Indians Tie Elks For Lead In PVC

PETERSBURG, W. Va., April 27—Coach Guy Propst's Circleville High School Indians, the "surprise team" of the Potomac Valley Conference, won a 10-inning thriller from Petersburg High's Vikings today at Circleville and went into a first place tie with Elk Garden in the 11-school baseball circuit. The score was 3-2.

The triumph was the third in a row for the Indians who whipped Franklin, 11-0, and 8-1 in previous games.

Today's mound duel between Ron Lambert and Jimmy Kessel ended in the 10th when D. Lambert singled to left to score Thompson with the run that broke a 2-2 deadlock. Ron Lambert doubled to open the 10th and was forced at third by Thompson. The latter moved to second on a passed ball and scored on D. Lambert's blow.

Petersburg took a 2-0 lead in the first inning when Collins' timely two-bagger scored Whitmer and George. Circleville scored a run in the third when Raines singled to center and completed the circuit when Brill let the ball get away from him. The Indians knotted the count in the 6th when Hedrick singled, stole second and came home on Raines' base wallop.

Ron Lambert yielded two hits and struck out seven Vikings. Kessel fanned 11 and gave up nine hits, six being shared by Ron Lambert, Raines and Hinkle. Box:

Rain Halts Game With Score Tied

MOOREFIELD, April 27—Moorefield High School's Yellow Jackets eked out a 6-5 decision over Franklin High School today in a game halted by rain with Moorefield at bat in the 7th inning.

Franklin tied the score in the top of the 7th, when S. Dahmer walked, stole second and crossed the plate on Harry Knicely's hit but the tally was nullified when the rains came. Mongold singled, Wilson walked and both players advanced a base on an infield out when Jupe Pluvius put in his appearance in the Moorefield 7th.

Harold Mongold who relieved Billy Bauserman in the 5th got credit for the win. Bobby Wilson of Moorefield drew four walks in as many trips to the plate. Allen Bean and Bauserman had two hits each for the Jackets, who are now 3-2 in the P.V.C. Franklin's record is 1-3. Box:

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Nighttime Soap Opera

By BOB (ELLIOTT) AND RAY (GOULDING)

Shep Carruthers, an ex-member of our announcing staff, dropped into our office the other day. His new teeth look just fine, and the sibilant trouble he once had is practically gone. (So much so, that he's back on the staff of WSSS, Sioux City.)

In addition to his on-the-air chores, Shep tells us he's also to be assistant program director, and that he's got a lot of new plans for shows. Radio listening habits have changed due to TV, says Shep, and it's now imperative for stations to revise their schedules.

Among his ideas for Sioux City, he may have stumbled upon a few that will bear watching. For instance, instead of the usual early morning "rise and shine" program, (news, weather, farm news, etc.), Shep will sign the station on at 6 a. m. with an educational series, conducted by Dr. Harvey Hurtle, the author, lecturer, and former Soap Box Derby winner. From 9 a. m. to noon, Shep plans three hours of dance band remote broadcasts from local ballrooms. Not that folks would be there dancing that early, but he feels it would be different anyway. Already slated for appearances, are such well-known musical figures as Guyl Ombardo, Tom E. Dawsey, Vonman Rowe, and the one and only Fred E. Martin orchestra, with vocals by Bink Rossbee.

Later in the day, the schedule will spotlight Happy Jack Forbush, and his disc jockey program from the Peeping Tom Country Club, where the good folks from the surrounding fox-hunting country get together in their pink coats and battered top hats, after an afternoon of jumping.

Finally, in a daring departure, the new Carruthers lineup features soap operas for evening listening. Shep feels the men-folk miss too much of the daily pathos and drama so popular with their wives, so from now on, they'll be able to enjoy this truly American institution right along with them. He left with us a sample script from his new series, "Mother McGee, the Best Cook in the Neighborhood," and it sure looks good.

Roughly, the story line of "Mother McGee, the Best Cook in the Neighborhood," revolves around the baking of a layer cake for the country fair, under almost insurmountable difficulties. First, she misplaces her baking powder; then her almond extract turns up on the third shelf of the pantry, when it should have been on the second shelf. Discovering that it is impossible to bake a layer cake with one layer, Mother McGee is thwarted because she has only one nine-inch cake pan.

But let us quote directly from the script. Mother McGee has just welcomed Burford Leffingwell, the village half-wit, into her sunlit kitchen. She tells him to go over and lie down behind the stove, but instead he crawls under the rug and plays he is dust, as a knock sounds on the door . . .

SOUND: Knock on door
MOTHER: Come in . . .
SOUND: Door opens and closes
O'FAIL: How do you do, madam? I am Sean O'Fail, a traveling tinker. I also sell nine-inch cake pans. Could I sell you a nine-inch cake pan?
MOTHER: What did you say?
O'FAIL: I said . . .
MOTHER: Bless you, m'lad! How much is the cake pan?
O'FAIL: Tuppence ha'penny.
MOTHER: Here you are, and bless you, lad.
SOUND: Coins falling into tin dish
O'FAIL: Good day to you kindly.
MOTHER: Good luck attend you, Sean O'Fail, the traveling tinker.
SOUND: Door opens and closes
MOTHER: (Musing) Now that I have another nine-inch pan, I can get on with my baking. (Hums)

Daily Bridge Lesson

PROMOTES A 10 OR 9

DURING the period of a player's initiation into the game, it is hard for him to understand the purpose of covering an honor with an honor. As a general proposition, the player who does that can not gain unless he also holds a lower card of about the height of a 10 or 9 or can deduce the possibility that his partner has one. In that case, the cover may promote such a card for his side, by forcing the opponent to use two high cards on the trick instead of one.

	♠ A Q 7 5 3 ♥ 5 3 2 ♦ K 6 ♣ Q J 5
♠ K 9 4 ♥ Q 4 ♦ J 8 5 4 2 ♣ 8 7 6	N W E S	♠ 10 8 2 ♥ 10 7 6 ♦ Q 9 7 ♣ A K 4 2
	♠ J 6 ♥ A K J 9 8 ♦ A 10 3 ♣ 10 9 3

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	2 ♦	2 ♠	3 ♣
Pass	Pass	Dbl.	Pass
3 NT

Notice South's funny bidding there. He passed the 3-Clubs in order to learn if North wanted to double, and when the latter did, South decided that, with his partner well-fixed in both black suits, he could do better in a vulnerable game, so bid it. He would have been sorry if the defense had not been both unlucky and a little inept, but with both factors working for him he made three overtricks above the game.

The club 8 lead was won by the K and the 2 returned, which the 10 won because the J had been put on the first trick. Now the spade J was led, on which West, a not very experienced player, put his 4 and dummy the 3. Next the spade Q was finessed, the A killed the K and game was sure, plus one extra, since four tricks were in view in the red suits. South therefore refrained from the heart finesse, but his luck caused the two tops to fell the Q and he ran the rest of the suit, managing to take all tricks except the first.

If West had covered the spade J to force the A, the Q would have been the second trick in the suit and East's 10 would have been the third. That, plus two more in clubs, would have held South to exactly his game, with no extras.

All of this was pointed out to West after the hand. Did he get the idea clearly? Partly so. A few experiences of that kind can show him when to cover and when not to. For instance, if South had been marked as holding a singleton spade, it could in certain situations be sound to refrain from covering.

Runs Mile In 1:35 To Beat Determine

By JOHN CHANDLER

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 27 (AP)—Hasty Road jumped into top consideration for the 80th Kentucky Derby today as he outfought Determine in a blistering head-and-head stretch duel to break the Churchill Downs track record in the $15,350 Derby Trial.

The dark brown son of Roman-Traffic Court, greatest money-winning 2-year-old in history last year, but a bust to date in his 3-year-old campaign, snapped out of it with convincing authority in this 17th Derby Trial.

He led all the waay soon after Determine took a brief lead at the start of the mile gallop.

Beats Hill Gail's Mark

The crowd gasped and yelled as the time of 1:35 was announced. Two years ago Calumet's Hill Gail broke the track clocking with a 1:35 2-5 scorcher, and became the derby favorite which he won with ease.

Last year Cain Hoy's Dark Star won the trial in 1:36, then went on to upset Native Dancer in the big one on Saturday.

This was strictly a two horse race after the first half mile on a lightning fast track.

Determine, a tiny gray colt owned by Andy Crevolin of Alhambra, Calif., had won six straight stakes races until this afternoon. So the crowd backed Determine and his stablemate, Allied, down to 1-2 favoritism.

But Hasty Road, who had failed to win in four previous starts this season, showed his 1953 form this cloudy afternoon. Trainer Harry Trostek finally decided to put blinkers on Hasty Road, and it must have been the remedy.

The big handsome colt ran like he did last fall when he won the rich Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes and jacked his earnings to $277,132, an all-time record for a juvenile.

Win Brings $11,700

The Hasty House Farm star, who earned $11,700 today and shot his total bankroll to $291,232, was the 5-2 second choice and paid $7.40, $2.60 and $2.80.

Determine, who finished 11½ lengths ahead of Allied, paid $2.20 and $22.20. Allied paid $2.20 show.

Maryland Wins, 4-3

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., April 27 (AP)—Reserve catcher Jim Faulkner lined a single to left centerfield to score Ed Miller from second base with one out in the 13th inning here today to give Maryland a 4-3 baseball victory over William and Mary.

Miller led off the 13th with a single and stole second. After one out and a walk, Faulkner shot his game-winning single to the outfield.

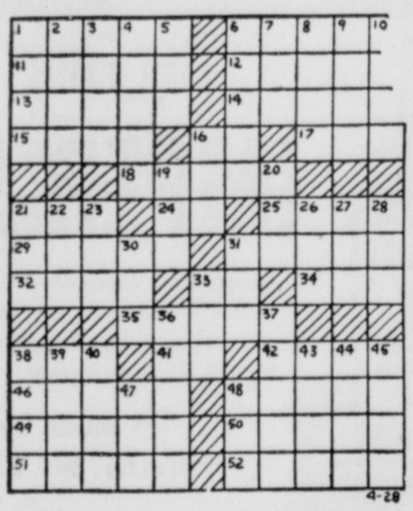
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

D W I V W K H X G S B W I W G X T E A T W D
R Q A T W J D W G A S G O W H E N K E D A T
G V W D P X G — V G X G Y S G Q.

By BOB (ELLIOTT) AND RAY (GOULDING)

Shep Carruthers, an ex-member of our announcing staff, dropped into our office the other day. His new teeth look just fine, and the sibilant trouble he once had is practically gone. (So much so, that he's back on the staff of WSSS, Sioux City.)

In addition to his on-the-air chores, Shep tells us he's also to be assistant program director, and that he's got a lot of new plans for shows. Radio listening habits have changed due to TV, says Shep, and it's now imperative for stations to revise their schedules.

Among his ideas for Sioux City, he may have stumbled upon a few that will bear watching. For instance, instead of the usual early morning "rise and shine" program, (news, weather, farm news, etc.), Shep will sign the station on at 6 a. m. with an educational series, conducted by Dr. Harvey Hurtle, the author, lecturer, and former Soap Box Derby winner. From 9 a. m. to noon, Shep plans three hours of dance band remote broadcasts from local ballrooms. Not that folks would be there dancing that early, but he feels it would be different anyway. Already slated for appearances, are such well-known musical figures as Guyl Ombardo, Tom E. Dawsey, Vonman Rowe, and the one and only Fred E. Martin orchestra, with vocals by Bink Rossbee.

Later in the day, the schedule will spotlight Happy Jack Forbush, and his disc jockey program from the Peeping Tom Country Club, where the good folks from the surrounding fox-hunting country get together in their pink coats and battered top hats, after an afternoon of jumping.

Finally, in a daring departure, the new Carruthers lineup features soap operas for evening listening. Shep feels the men-folk miss too much of the daily pathos and drama so popular with their wives, so from now on, they'll be able to enjoy this truly American institution right along with them. He left with us a sample script from his new series, "Mother McGee, the Best Cook in the Neighborhood," and it sure looks good.

Roughly, the story line of "Mother McGee, the Best Cook in the Neighborhood," revolves around the baking of a layer cake for the country fair, under almost insurmountable difficulties. First, she misplaces her baking powder; then her almond extract turns up on the third shelf of the pantry, when it should have been on the second shelf. Discovering that it is impossible to bake a layer cake with one layer, Mother McGee is thwarted because she has only one nine-inch cake pan.

But let us quote directly from the script. Mother McGee has just welcomed Burford Leffingwell, the village half-wit, into her sunlit kitchen. She tells him to go over and lie down behind the stove, but instead he crawls under the rug and plays he is dust, as a knock sounds on the door . . .

SOUND: Knock on door

MOTHER: Come in . . .

SOUND: Door opens and closes

O'FAIL: How do you do, madam? I am Sean O'Fail, a traveling tinker. I also sell nine-inch cake pans. Could I sell you a nine-inch cake pan?

MOTHER: What did you say?

O'FAIL: I said . . .

MOTHER: Bless you, m'lad! How much is the cake pan?

O'FAIL: Tuppence ha'penny.

MOTHER: Here you are, and bless you, lad.

SOUND: Coins falling into tin dish

O'FAIL: Good day to you kindly.

MOTHER: Good luck attend you, Sean O'Fail, the traveling tinker.

SOUND: Door opens and closes

MOTHER: (Musing) Now that I have another nine-inch pan, I can get on with my baking. (Hums)

Daily Bridge Lesson

PROMOTES A 10 OR 9

DURING the period of a player's initiation into the game, it is hard for him to understand the purpose of covering an honor with an honor. As a general proposition, the player who does that can not gain unless he also holds a lower card of about the height of a 10 or 9 or can deduce the possibility that his partner has one. In that case, the cover may promote such a card for his side, by forcing the opponent to use two high cards on the trick instead of one.

	♠ A Q 7 5 3 ♥ 5 3 2 ♦ K 6 ♣ Q J 5
♠ K 9 4 ♥ Q 4 ♦ J 8 5 4 2 ♣ 8 7 6	N W E S	♠ 10 8 2 ♥ 10 7 6 ♦ Q 9 7 ♣ A K 4 2
	♠ J 6 ♥ A K J 9 8 ♦ A 10 3 ♣ 10 9 3

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	2 ♦	2 ♠	3 ♣
Pass	Pass	Dbl.	Pass

Notice South's funny bidding there. He passed the 3-Clubs in order to learn if North wanted to double, and when the latter did, South decided that, with his partner well-fixed in both black suits, he could do better in a vulnerable game, so bid it. He would have been sorry if the defense had not been both unlucky and a little inept, but with both factors working for him he made three overtricks above the game.

The club 8 lead was won by the K and the 2 returned, which the 10 won because the J had been put on the first trick. Now the spade J was led, on which West, a not very experienced player, put his 4 and dummy the 3. Next the spade Q was finessed, the A killed the K and game was sure, plus one extra, since four tricks were in view in the red suits. South therefore refrained from the heart finesse, but his luck caused the two tops to fell the Q and he ran the rest of the suit, managing to take all tricks except the first.

If West had covered the spade J to force the A, the Q would have been the second trick in the suit and East's 10 would have been the third. That, plus two more in clubs, would have held South to exactly his game, with no extras.

All of this was pointed out to West after the hand. Did he get the idea clearly? Partly so. A few experiences of that kind can show him when to cover and when not to. For instance, if South had been marked as holding a singleton spade, it could in certain situations be sound to refrain from covering.

What would you consider the best bidding of this tournament deal after North opens with 1-Club?

Two Men Jailed In Larceny Of Scrap Metal

Two local residents who were picked up in Johnstown, Pa. yesterday in connection with the theft of scrap metal from a local firm, are in City Jail for questioning by the State's Attorney's office.

Booked at Police Headquarters at 3:50 p. m. yesterday were Herman A. Shook, RD 1, this city, and Robert McMillian, this city. Arresting officer was Lt. James E. Van of the City Police Detective Bureau.

A third suspect is being sought by police. The two men were nabbed following a morning telephone call to Pennsylvania authorities.

Van said culprits broke into the American Iron and Metal Company at the rear of Queen Street during the night and took 125 pounds of brass, copper and bronze metals.

A break in the case came when the owner, Robert F. Gerson, discovered the loot was being sold to M. Glosser and Sons in Johnstown. He called the place and learned that Shook and two other men were there, waiting for a check.

Employes of the Johnstown company "stalled" the trio while Lt. Van put in a fast call to police. The arrests followed.

Warrants for Shook and two "John Does" were obtained. Lt. John E. Sherry and Detective Leo E. P. Law assisted in the investigation.

Van pointed out that a number of similar thefts have occurred at Gerson's establishment. Shook reportedly had been employed by the company at one time.

Police yesterday also probed a breaking and entering at headquarters of Fort Cumberland Lodge, 176, IBPOEW, 151 North Mechanic Street. An undetermined amount of money and whisky was stolen.

Investigation disclosed entrance was gained by removing a bar from a side window. Several cabinets in the place were ransacked.

An employe, Charles Method, discovered the entry. Officer Frank Bohn reported he checked the rear of the club several times before 5 a. m. and found nothing amiss.

He announced the annual meeting will be held in Washington the second week of September.

Fuhrman praised the work of the Upper Potomac River Board, which was formed here in 1929 to coordinate the work of all agencies interested in cleaning up the river in this area, and urged that the board continue its efforts.

Dr. John C. Geyer, professor of sanitary engineering of Johns Hopkins University, termed the Fuhrman report of "tremendous assistance" in showing what is to be done, and said corrective measures will have to be integrated into overall area projects "in relation to the expediency of money."

This is the position which has been taken by the City of Cumberland, which has asked the State Board of Health to allow the city to complete its current construction program before undertaking an expensive project, such as the $2,000,000 sewage treatment plant.

Cites W. Va. Efforts

Geyer added "there is just so much money to go around" and that the best program for the cleanup of the Potomac will be one that leads to the "best ultimate solution."

Cotton added the cleanup job is "a regional problem" and must be solved on the basis of what the people want.

West Virginia's work toward cleaning up the North Branch was related by John W. Lester, sanitary engineer for the West Virginia Water Commission.

He said 11 communities on the North Branch have been asked to prepare preliminary plans for treatment plants but that the state has no plans to push the towns further until treatment is provided on the Maryland side of the stream.

All but four of the towns have indicated they are working on the program, and the department will call those in for hearings soon, he added.

Frank Stranahan Upset By Person

Campbell, Patton Win At Pinehurst

PINEHURST, N. C., April 27 (AP)—Fireworks popped early today as match play began in the North and South Amateur Golf Tournament, with former champion Frank Stranahan and Mal Galletta shunted to the sidelines by a pair of rank outsiders.

Curtis Person, a 43-year-old automobile dealer from Memphis, Tenn., whipped Stranahan, three-time winner here in the last eight years, 3 and 2. Tomorrow morning in the second round he meets the other giant killer, big Tom Draper of Birmingham, Mich., who won, 2 and 1, from Galletta, St. Albany, N. Y., veteran who was runnerup last year and the winner 10 years ago.

Otherwise, favorites generally acted the part. Bill Campbell, the defending champion from Huntington, W. Va., trimmed Hobb Anderson, Wilson, N. C., 5 and 4. Billy Joe Patton, the sensation of the recent Masters Tournament, from Morganton, N. C., scored by the same margin over Bill Williamson, Charlotte, N. C., runnerup for the national collegiate crown last spring. Patton and Campbell meet tomorrow morning.

Medalist Ben Goodes, Reidsville, N. C., and Hobart Manley of Savannah, Ga., the 1951 champion, each gained a 5 and 4 victory and will meet in the second round. Goodes breezed past Edward Rack, McKeesport, Pa., and Manley ousted William Rixey, Farmville, Va.

Newspaper Trial Coverage Gets Pollack Praise

James H. (Jack) Pollack, Baltimore Democratic political leader who was acquitted in Circuit Court here yesterday on a charge of attempting to obstruct justice, commented that he was "very pleased with the fair treatment of the court and Cumberland newspapers concerning the case."

The trial of Pollack was removed from Baltimore City to Circuit Court here on petition of defense attorneys who claimed their client could not receive a fair and impartial trial due to "unfavorable newspaper publicity."

Registrars To Visit Zihlman On May 5

A stop at Zihlman has been added to the itinerary of the substitute registrars for the Allegany County Board of Election Supervisors.

Mrs. Zena J. Davis and John R. Kelly will sit at the Zihlman Community Building from 6 until 9 p. m. Wednesday, May 5.

Judges Grant

the legal sufficiency of the evidence in a criminal case.

"In a criminal case the fact must be shown, or the inference supported, beyond a reasonable doubt and to a moral certainty, or a reasonable doubt of an opposite fact must be created.

Not Sufficient Evidence

"We cannot conclude from the questions asked by James H. Pollack that he was endeavoring to corruptly influence, intimidate or impede these witnesses, nor can we conclude that he was endeavoring to obstruct or impede the due administration of justice.

"If there was any proper and sufficient evidence offered by the State in this case on which to sustain a conviction, we would not grant the motion for a directed verdict. But it is our conclusion that there is not sufficient evidence to go to the jury and the motion will, therefore, be granted."

Counsel Commended

Judge Harris stated from the bench that he and Judge Henderson wished to commend counsel for both sides for the fair and considerate manner in which they conducted the case. Judge Harris said it was "no reflection on State's Attorney Anselm Sodaro" that the court granted the motion for acquittal.

"I have known him (Sodaro) for many years as an able and astute state's attorney," Judge Harris added.

When the decision was announced there was no demonstration of any kind in the court except that Pollack's family and friends broke out in big smiles. The motion for a directed verdict of acquittal was made Monday afternoon by James S. Morrow Jr., one of the defense attorneys. He and G. C. A. Anderson and William A. Gunter were counsel for Pollack. Gunter is a Cumberland attorney while Morrow and Anderson are Baltimoreans.

Prosecuting the case were Sodaro, Harold Grady, assistant state's attorney for Baltimore City, and Paul M. Fletcher, state's attorney for Allegany County.

Two Men Jailed In Larceny Of Scrap Metal

Two local residents who were picked up in Johnstown, Pa. yesterday in connection with the theft of scrap metal from a local firm, are in City Jail for questioning by the State's Attorney's office.

Booked at Police Headquarters at 3:50 p. m. yesterday were Herman A. Shook, RD 1, this city, and Robert McMillian, this city. Arresting officer was Lt. James E. Van of the City Police Detective Bureau.

A third suspect is being sought by police. The two men were nabbed following a morning telephone call to Pennsylvania authorities.

Van said culprits broke into the American Iron and Metal Company at the rear of Queen Street during the night and took 125 pounds of brass, copper and bronze metals.

A break in the case came when the owner, Robert F. Gerson, discovered the loot was being sold to M. Glosser and Sons in Johnstown. He called the place and learned that Shook and two other men were there, waiting for a check.

Employes of the Johnstown company "stalled" the trio while Lt. Van put in a fast call to police. The arrests followed.

Warrants for Shook and two "John Does" were obtained. Lt. John E. Sherry and Detective Leo E. P. Law assisted in the investigation.

Van pointed out that a number of similar thefts have occurred at Gerson's establishment. Shook reportedly had been employed by the company at one time.

Police yesterday also probed a breaking and entering at headquarters of Fort Cumberland Lodge, 176, IBPOEW, 151 North Mechanic Street. An undetermined amount of money and whisky was stolen.

Investigation disclosed entrance was gained by removing a bar from a side window. Several cabinets in the place were ransacked.

An employe, Charles Method, discovered the entry. Officer Frank Bohn reported he checked the rear of the club several times before 5 a. m. and found nothing amiss.

Newspaper Trial Coverage Gets Pollack Praise

James H. (Jack) Pollack, Baltimore Democratic political leader who was acquitted in Circuit Court here yesterday on a charge of attempting to obstruct justice, commented that he was "very pleased with the fair treatment of the court and Cumberland newspapers concerning the case."

The trial of Pollack was removed from Baltimore City to Circuit Court here on petition of defense attorneys who claimed their client could not receive a fair and impartial trial due to "unfavorable newspaper publicity."

"In a criminal case the fact must be shown, or the inference supported, beyond a reasonable doubt and to a moral certainty, or a reasonable doubt of an opposite fact must be created.

Not Sufficient Evidence

"We cannot conclude from the questions asked by James H. Pollack that he was endeavoring to corruptly influence, intimidate or impede these witnesses, nor can we conclude that he was endeavoring to obstruct or impede the due administration of justice.

"If there was any proper and sufficient evidence offered by the State in this case on which to sustain a conviction, we would not grant the motion for a directed verdict. But it is our conclusion that there is not sufficient evidence to go to the jury and the motion will, therefore, be granted."

Counsel Commended

Judge Harris stated from the bench that he and Judge Henderson wished to commend counsel for both sides for the fair and considerate manner in which they conducted the case. Judge Harris said it was "no reflection on State's Attorney Anselm Sodaro" that the court granted the motion for acquittal.

"I have known him (Sodaro) for many years as an able and astute state's attorney," Judge Harris added.

When the decision was announced there was no demonstration of any kind in the court except that Pollack's family and friends broke out in big smiles. The motion for a directed verdict of acquittal was made Monday afternoon by James S. Morrow Jr., one of the defense attorneys. He and G. C. A. Anderson and William A. Gunter were counsel for Pollack. Gunter is a Cumberland attorney while Morrow and Anderson are Baltimoreans.

Prosecuting the case were Sodaro, Harold Grady, assistant state's attorney for Baltimore City, and Paul M. Fletcher, state's attorney for Allegany County.

Dishwashing Machines Now On The Market Labor Savers For American Homemakers

A nurse tips her cap to dishwashing machines because she knows how important sanitary dishes are for the health of a weakened patient. And the dishwasher has been a standard appliance for her for the past 25 years.

She has found that one person eating modest meals uses 14,600 dishes and utensils a year.

To translate that into household terms you have to multiply that figure by four for the average members in a family. That's some stack of dishes, pots and utensils. Estimating that a housewife spends at least an hour each day dishwashing, about 20 days are spent at the chore during the year.

Features that grew out of institutional experience now lighten and simplify dishwashing operations for the housewife, according to makers of automatic home machines. They take up less space than clothes washers and may be installed under the counter in a custom designed kitchen, or as a separate free-standing unit, or a combination cabinet sink. The job is automatic. Lipstick, sticky foods, tough grease are washed off hygenically and quickly. In just minutes of washing, a revolving wash arm at the bottom of the machine misses no corner of the machine with its power spray.

Tableware is scrubbed clean and gets two clean hot water rinsings. Then, in the drying cycle, hot air circulated by a power fan gets into every nook and cranny of the washer to finish the job and leave the glassware and dishes gleaming.

All food particles are trapped in two strainers — a self-cleaning fine straining system from which food waste is washed down the drain at the end of the wash period and a coarse strainer.

By setting the machine to the drying cycle, plates can be warmed before serving a meal.

When operating the washer, once the door is closed and a switch thrown, dishwashing begins. Open the door and the action is suspended. It resumes when the machine is locked.

TIME SAVER — Hospital tested for cleanliness and speed, the dishwasher is becoming more and more a part of the American kitchen. Racks are designed to keep china safe. Completely automatic mechanism frees housewife for other duties and spare time.

Just-Right Coffee Can Be Automatic

Still making very large news in the field of small electric housewares is the growing acceptance of automatic coffee makers. Sales and improvements are both increasing at a fast pace.

An example of what these coffee-brewing marvels now offer is a model that assures perfect coffee every time. The flavor selector is set for whatever strength is preferred—mild, medium or strong; then a light signals when the coffee is done. Temperature stays constant until you're ready to serve.

Refrigerate Your Sprinkled Clothes

You'll find it worthwhile to juggle the food in your refrigerator to make room for freshly sprinkled clean clothes. In hot weather, there's always the chance they'll mildew unless you're able to do the ironing promptly.

When that's not convenient, you can dampen the laundry and put it into a plastic bag—or wrap it in a plastic sheet—and then store it in the refrigerator till you're ready to iron. The heat of the iron striking the chilled fabric creates a light steam which smoothes wrinkles quickly and easily.

Test Yourself In Freezer Quiz

These are the most commonly asked questions about home freezing, according to a survey of leading freezer manufacturers. The answers were compiled by Frigidaire's home economist.

Q—How cold should a freezer be kept?

A—Science has established that near-zero temperatures are adequate. "Way-below-zero" cold unnecessarily increases costs.

Q—What wrappers and containers are necessary for home freezing?

A—Any container with a tight-fitting lid and materials like cellophane or polyethylene will keep frozen foods moisture-and-vapor proof.

Q—How long does it take to freeze foods?

A—A good rule of thumb: leave the foods in contact with the freezing surface overnight.

Q—Can cooked foods be frozen?

A—Yes. It's a time-saver to make combination dishes like stew, chili, spaghetti-and-meat-balls in quantity, and freeze for future meals. But cool the food thoroughly before placing in the freezer. The meals will keep for about a month.

Q—What about frozen sandwiches?

A—They keep very well. But make certain each is wrapped separately in moisture-proof material.

Q—Can dairy products be frozen?

A—Good butter, properly wrapped, will keep more than six months. So will most cheeses, excepting cream, or cottage cheese.

Q—How long will poultry keep, and how long should it be stored?

A—Poultry will keep for about one year. It should be dressed, and can be disjointed. Make certain it's cool before placing it in the box. Once cooked, it will keep for several weeks.

Q—How do meats compare for freezability?

A—Beef will keep for a year or more. So will lamb and veal. But pork, bacon and ground beef should be used up much more quickly.

Q—Is it necessary to thaw meat before cooking?

A—Acceptable results are obtained by either thawing or cooking in the frozen state. If you thaw, do it slowly to prevent the loss of meat juices.

Q—What vegetables do not freeze satisfactorily?

A—Those which are usually eaten raw—lettuce, cabbage, celery, tomatoes, cucumbers, onions and radishes.

Q—Is there a trick to freezing vegetables?

A—For preserving flavor best, you should scald the vegetables either in boiling water or over steam. Cool quickly and freeze.

Q—Is it necessary to blanch fruit?

A—No. Blanching fruit merely protects the color. However, experts say that packing fruit for the freezer in syrup is far better than packing it in sugar alone.

Q—Who can answer further questions about freezing?

A—Your State Agricultural Experiment Station will answer your questions, or direct you to the answers.

The game of dominoes is so named because the "men" used are black and are placed face down at the game's beginning. The men are masked—and domino means "black mask."

Home Cooking Aided By Use Of Electricity

The old kitchen bouquet that used to sizzle from the great, black-coal-burning stove is still part of the warmth of American living. But the noises are different.

For household cookery has been broken up and assigned to more than 30 appliances that have come to make life easier and digestion smoother.

A quick look at the list shows: Blenders, broilers, coffee makers, deep fryers, defrosters, egg cookers, food mixers, juice extractors, roasters, sandwick grills, toasters, coffee mills, hot plates, waffle irons, knife sharpeners, ice cream freezers, trivets, irons.

This list will prove handy (a), if you are called upon to recite at a quiz show and (b), if you want to make your kitchen modern and efficient.

Most department stores, housewares stores or hardware stores carry these appliances. And a cook's tour among the counters ought to be a revelation in what's new since last you shopped for utensils.

If your daughter is a teen-ager now, you can make her parties a breeze to prepare for, with an electric corn popper, a sandwich grill or a waffle iron.

If you're a working wife, you can turn out a complete meal with an electric broiler, a food mixer, and a coffee maker. The new broilers have self-contained sandwich grills, and latest coffee makers turn out a cup of brew per minute.

If there's a baby in your house, or in a friend's home, an automatic bottle warmer is a good gift. It brings the formula up to the right temperature and keeps it there.

All-in-one appliances are blooming, too. A combination cooker and fryer will take care of soups, stews, puddings and deep-fat-fried dishes. This one will sit as neatly in the kitchen as it will on the buffet table or out in the patio.

In addition to the appliances themselves, there is a whole range of cook aids to help you do the job.

Heat rods, for example, used in fowl or meat prepared for the oven act as skewers and at the same time conduct cooking heat inside for quicker roasting. Ecko's heat rods have been tested and results show that they cut oven time down by 25 per cent.

Another cooking aid that does not qualify as an appliance but as a life-saver is a serving cart. On an easily movable frame with smooth-rolling wheels, a kitchen dolly saves steps in bringing food to the table or in moving prepared food about the kitchen.

Serv-Cart, for example, has removable trays. The dishes are wheeled to the table or patio, ready for serving on the tray.

Dandelions are so called because the edges of the leaves are cut into large teeth which are said to resemble the teeth of a lion.

MAKES SERVING EASY—It's easy to serve tasty chilled desserts with the new Crosley Shelvador which has a roll-out interior. A combination of the roll-out shelves and crisper and 18 linear feet of fully recessed door shelves puts 89 per cent of the fresh food at the homemakers' fingertips. The new deep door shelves will take 13 full size quart bottles, two dozen eggs, several pounds of butter and cheese. A tap in the door provides ice cold beverages which can be served without opening the refrigerator.

Appliances Now Take On Hue Of Pastel Colors

News Item: The famous Blackfriars Bridge in London used to be a suicide spot until they painted it a soothing green pastel.

Now people have stopped jumping.

How closely this item is tied with today's swing to pastel-shade kitchen appliances, no one will say. Nor are there statistics available yet on the decrease of suicides at the refrigerator or cooking range.

Nevertheless, the trend in American major appliances is to color.

What designers call the "hospital" look of kitchens—sterile and white—is fading before the advance of color and smart trim.

The kitchen, if the trend continues, will at last become feminine and warm, to meet the demands made on it during many hours of the day. The most popular color will probably be pink, with green running a close second.

A glance into new or remodeled homes demonstrates this swing to color. Walls, floors, ceilings and woodwork are tinted away from the "hospital" severity.

One of the sponsors of this trend has two tones in production—Stratford yellow and Sherwood Green. Ranges and refrigerators are matched, if you want them in color, and the refrigerator carries the color inside as well.

According one of the color experts, America is moving into a new era of colorful living.

The pastels, after much research, were picked because of their harmony with a majority of color schemes and because of their "psychological aspects," a color stylist claims.

Not yet ready to go the whole way, another manufacturer has come up with colored center panel on one line. The choice of colors include green, blue, red and yellow, to match the homemaker's decor.

Laundromat's Flexibility Is Big Feature

MANSFIELD, Ohio—The dial-controlled mechanism of the Westinghouse Laundromat automatic washer is so flexible that any part of the washing cycle can be started, stopped, repeated or eliminated to meet the needs of the type of clothes and fabrics being laundered. Any washing time from two to twenty minutes with full rinsing action is possible, as is any water temperature from cool to as hot as the water heater is set to deliver. The control dial also has a special setting for prewashing and conditioning clothes.

Other features of the Laundromat, as pointed out by John J. Anderson, manager of the laundry equipment department of Westinghouse, include:

A Water-Saver control dial saves both hot and cold water by limiting the amount of water used in the Laundromat when less than a standard nine pound load of clothes is washed. The Water-Saver dial has three settings: "regular" for loads from six to nine pounds; "medium" for loads from three to six pounds; "low" for loads of three pounds or less. The complete washing, rinsing and spin - dry cycles are obtained whether the Water-Saver dial is set for a standard nine-pound load, or for just a handful of "his" socks and "her" lingerie, or the baby's daily quota.

The Weigh-to-Save Door on the Laundromat has been enlarged by 16 per cent to facilitate loading and unloading.

The equally automatic Westinghouse electric clothes dryer has a Three-Way Dial for complete control of all types of drying action, including special settings for the new synthetic fabrics that require a minimum of time and temperature for safe drying.

At the end of any pre-selected drying cycle, the new dryer, a combination 115-230 volt model, signs off to the tune of "How Dry I Am." The chime-like tune, Anderson explained, serves the practical purpose of reminding the homemaker to remove the clothes while they're still fluffy and before wrinkles have a chance to set.

Provision is made for venting the dryer from the side or rear. For use when the dryer is not vented, a screen-type lint trap fitted over the exhaust outlet automatically pops up when the door of the dryer is opened, as a reminder to inspect and clean it if necessary.

An automatic shut-off is also provided on the door of the new dryer, as well as its twin the Laundromat. On either machine, the opening of the door will shut off the power.

The Laundromat and dryer are styled identically, with slanting front and chromium-finished keystone - shaped escutcheon highlighted by an iridescent blue shield.

WESTINGHOUSE LAUNDROMAT—Any part of the washing cycle on the Westinghouse Laundromat automatic clothes washer can be started, stopped, repeated or eliminated to conform to the type of load, and any washing time from two to twenty minutes with full rinsing action is possible. Included in this flexible dial-controlled mechanism is a special setting for prewashing and conditioning clothes. The new model also has a 16 per cent larger Weigh-to-Save door for easier loading and unloading.

Electricity Is Faithful Servant In Life Of American Homemaker

There are few breadwinners in America today who can afford to hire 35 servants, each working 40 hours a week, to help them perform their housework. Yet the average householder now has equivalent help without even being aware of the fact and at a cost of less than $65 per year.

The one servant which does the jobs of so many servants is electricity.

The average U. S. home now has at least nine major appliances working to save time, effort and finances for the homeowner. A television set, radio, washer, electric clock, iron, refrigerator, toaster, vacuum cleaner and coffeemaker are owned by almost every family, along with a host of other electric "servants," such as shavers, mixers, ranges, heating pads and water heaters.

In addition, one out of every 10 homes boasts an air conditioner, electric bed coverings, blender, broiler, dishwasher, clothes dryer, disposal unit and roaster — all electrically operated.

Since the end of World War II, more than 18 million families have introduced refrigerators into their homes, and 19 million have purchased TV sets.

America's 50 millionth electric customer was recently connected to the nation's vast power network. Before too many years that customer may have, thanks to electricity, electronic devices that will cook his family's meals in a few seconds, year-round air conditioning that will keep his home dust-and germ-free, a room-to-room intercommunication system, and lighting adjustable to all degrees of brilliance and color.

With the rising cost of living, the paychecks of servants have also risen. But not that of the electric servant. In fact, this particular helper has taken a cut in salary. The cost of living has risen 90 per cent over the 1935-39 level, but the electric index is down 8 per cent.

In 1929, the average home's electric bill was $31.78. Today, it is only twice that figure, even though the same home uses four times as much electricity.

By 1975, it is predicted that an average home may use 25,000 kilowatt-hours a year, compared to one-tenth that amount at present. Fully-equipped electric kitchens of revolutionary design and appearance, standard use of the heat pump and many other changes will cause the house of tomorrow to bear very little resemblance to today's dwelling.

New Kitchens Easy To Install

On a list of a woman's frustrated dreams, "modernizing" her kitchen would probably rank pretty high.

The reason in many cases is not that it's too expensive, but that being "torn up" while the work is done — often for several days — seems to be too much trouble.

Like most problems, however, this one has a solution. By buying the kitchen already made, the bulk of the job can be finishd in hours.

Several leading firms now offer all-steel kitchen cabinet and sink units than can be installed simply and quickly. If you can hang a picture, or move furniture into place, you can put in the wall and base units with no professional help.

Available in many sizes, the cabinets can be fitted snugly into almost any space. Most dealers will be happy to supply you with instructions for planning your own best layout. Some will offer to plan it for you.

Just because the cabinets are steel doesn't mean they have to be cold-looking. Many makers now offer a wide variety of decorator colors to conform to your favorite color scheme. And the stain-resistant baked enamel, besides being easier to clean, will outlast the paint on wooden cabinets.

Some new wall units have sliding glass doors, handy appliance outlets and fluorescent lighting to illuminate underneath work surfaces. And for real convenience, there's the automatic sink, with built-in dishwasher and disposal unit.

'Little Shavers' Grow Into Daily Shavers

For the rest of his life, "that man" in your life is chained by bonds of convention and necessity to a sharp blade and soapy brush, for the daily ritual of shaving.

He is, that is, unless he joins the ever-growing army of men who fight the endless battle of the beard with an electric shaver.

Equipped with a near-silent motor which won't affect your television or radio set, a shaver is a long-term investment in good-grooming and economy. Its current consumption is minute, and considering the service any good shaver is designed to give, it's a money-saver.

Protect Yourself, Family And Home Against Fire; Utilize And Maintain Your Appliances With Care

From midnight tonight until midnight tomorrow, 800 U. S. homes are destined to be struck by fire.

That, of course, is an average figure. Some 300,000 residential fires occur in the United States each year.

Sad to say, neither 800 nor 300,000 is likely to impress you—until you have a fire yourself. Yet the safety experts keep on trying to make you heed their warnings, in the hope that you'll finally listen and consent to save your own skin.

Now that spring clean-up time is here, for instance, why not check up on your home appliances?

These wonder machines make life a hundred-fold easier and more comfortable. They're as safe as a modern science can make them. But just like everything else, they do require some care.

"Shocking" Casualties

Misuse of electricity alone causes more than one out of every 10 fires ever year, fires which last year took 11,000 lives and resulted in property damage of $900,000,000.

Take your electric cords, for example. Do they show signs of wear? Are they frayed? Do you keep them away from heat and water? Are they run under a rug, or placed where they will get unnecessary wear, or where people can trip over them?

If any of these things are true, take corrective measures immediately.

First of all, play it safe. Use the right electric cord.

If it's for a heating appliance, use a cord with asbestos insulation.

For hard wear in damp places, an electric cord designed for such usage is best. For household use—on lamps, clocks, radios—ordinary cords may be used.

Is The Cord Approved?

But the best way to check on how safe a new cord will be is to look for the colored bracelet of the Underwriter's Laboratories, Inc. a little yellow label with 'UL" printed upon it. This non-profit organization makes tests for safety and strength of electric cords on request from a manufacturer.

When it comes to making repairs on cords, be sure to take time to do a thorough job. Never handle any cord with wet hands. Many fatal accidents happen that way.

The use of long extension cords is not recommended. Fastening them closely to baseboard or walls is dangerous. If you're using one, it should never be plugged permanently into an outlet. If you run the cord part way around the room, it should not be attached to anything. Don't run it around door casings—never across a doorway, over steam or hot water pipes, or over hot air registers.

If the covering is worn off the wires, the result may be a short circuit...fire....or dangerous electrical shock.

Know Your Appliances

Your check shouldn't end with cords. You should become familiar enough with all your appliances that you can recognize when they're not running properly.

Maintenance measures you can handle yourself are described in the instruction book that came with the appliance when you bought it. If you've lost the book, or didn't bother to pick it up, write to the manufacturer. He'll be glad to send you one.

For repair jobs, of course, call in a qualified serviceman. The temptation to fix it yourself may backfire, resulting in a serious accident.

It's important to check your wiring system. Make sure that all rooms have an adequate number of outlets to handle all your appliances, and that you've done away with all multiple attachment plugs.

Buy Tested Items

If you buy a new appliance, of course look for the seal of a qualified testing agency—the UL seal on electrical equipment, and the AGA (American Gas Association) seal on gas equipment.

GE FREEZER GIVES NEW BENEFITS IN 1954 MODELS — The highlighting feature of the 1954 General Electric freezer line is the sealed-in refrigeration mechanism. It's an improved version of the same type that has been used in more than 3,500,000 GE refrigerators and freezers that have given unsurpassed service for more than 10 years. Other improved features are uniform zero temperature, locking latch, larger interior light and temperature control.

Informative Tips Given In Care And Feeding Of Home Appliances

Electric sheets and blankets can be washed successfully in warm

soapsuds if you don't twist or wring them. To avoid damage to delicate wires, just squeeze out excess water by hand.

Keep all small appliances covered with plastic or cloth protectors when not in use. Keeps dust and dirt out, and retards tarnishing. Saves you hours of polishing.

Pay special attention to keeping the drain pipe clean in a non-mechanical refrigerator chilled by "real" ice. Remove the pipe and drain trap often, wash them in hot soapsuds, and scald with boiling water to kill bacteria.

Use a cloth soaked in turpentine to remove paint splashes from enamel-surface equipment such as refrigerators and washing machines. Once the paint is off, wash away the turpentine with soapy water; otherwise, it will dry to a sticky film.

It's modern efficiency to keep your flatware and silver service as bright as your appliances. And there's one way to do it.

Reserve one drawer or compartment for the silver and line it with silver cloth. This is a soft, beaver-brown flannel that contains millions of silver particles that act as a barrier against tarnish-causing sulphur gases in the air.

Thirsty appliances can't perform their task efficiently. Keep a small oil can filled with light oil in the kitchen utility cabinet, for first-aid to hard-working motors.

Don't overload your washing machine, because free circulation of soapsuds and rinse water is essential for maximum soil removal. It pays to run an extra load, if necessary, to avoid crowding the washer.

Never allow egg mixtures to dry on mixer beaters. Soak in cold water, never hot water, immediately after use. Makes washing-up easier.

An electric toaster should never be immersed in water. Instead, brush away crumbs and wipe the outside with a well - wrung - out soapy cloth. Rinse with a clean damp cloth, and then rub the surface dry.

When a freezer is completely defrosted is the time to wash the inner walls with warm soapy water. Take out baskets and dividers and suds them carefully, too. Rinse and dry all surfaces and equipment.

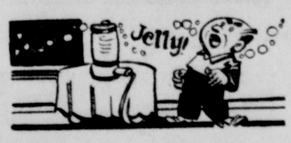
An electric blender is a quick way to make the thick soap jelly recommended for washing surfaces and fabrics that should not be saturated with water.



Just place 1 cup of warm or cool water and 1/5 cup soap in the glass container of the blender, put on the cover, and run about one minute until the contents are thoroughly blended.

What if you don't have help around when you need to shove your refrigerator aside to wash its case and the floor underneath?

It will be an easy pushover if you first wet the floor and rub it with soap. Wherever you have washable flooring, use the same soapy-slide system for shifting big, rollerless pieces of equipment that otherwise would demand more strength than one woman should exert.

The Pribilof islands, off the coast of Alaska, are the headquarters for the largest number of fur seals.

Some of the largest deposits of peat in the world are in Canada, Finland, Russia and Sweden.

Good Ol' Days Recalled But Modern Living's Better

Sure, they were wonderful. Wondefully tiring, that is.

Remember all the fun it was to drag the coaster wagon down to the ice house, load up, pull the ice home (losing half of it to the summer sun, and then the fun of manhandling the slippery chunk into the icebox?

Remember the pleasure of those dozen trips a day up and downstairs to tend the furnace, before the advent of automatic controls?

Remember holes in the rug from acid when you dropped the storage battery for the radio, and the jolly times when the batteries went dead on the eve of an outstanding broadcast?

Remember when "swelter" was the only solution to the problem of what to do in hot weather, before air conditioning came along?

Hey — where are you going? Down to look at a new deep freeze?

Wait a minute—I'll come along. We'll talk about the good old days another time.

Laundromat's Flexibility Is Big Feature

MANSFIELD, Ohio—The dial-controlled mechanism of the Westinghouse Laundromat automatic washer is so flexible that any part of the washing cycle can be started, stopped, repeated or eliminated to meet the needs of the type of clothes and fabrics being laundered. Any washing time from two to twenty minutes with full rinsing action is possible, as is any water temperature from cool to as hot as the water heater is set to deliver. The control dial also has a special setting for prewashing and conditioning clothes.

Other features of the Laundromat, as pointed out by John J. Anderson, manager of the laundry equipment department of Westinghouse, include:

A Water-Saver control dial saves both hot and cold water by limiting the amount of water used in the Laundromat when less than a standard nine pound load of clothes is washed. The Water-Saver dial has three settings: "regular" for loads from six to nine pounds; "medium" for loads from three to six pounds; "low" for loads of three pounds or less. The complete washing, rinsing and spin - dry cycles are obtained whether the Water-Saver dial is set for a standard nine-pound load, or for just a handful of "his" socks and "her" lingerie, or the baby's daily quota.

The Weigh-to-Save Door on the Laundromat has been enlarged by 16 per cent to facilitate loading and unloading.

The equally automatic Westinghouse electric clothes dryer has a Three-Way Dial for complete control of all types of drying action, including special settings for the new synthetic fabrics that require a minimum of time and temperature for safe drying.

At the end of any pre-selected drying cycle, the new dryer, a combination 115-230 volt model, signs off to the tune of "How Dry I Am." The chime-like tune, Anderson explained, serves the practical purpose of reminding the homemaker to remove the clothes while they're still fluffy and before wrinkles have a chance to set.

Provision is made for venting the dryer from the side or rear. For use when the dryer is not vented, a screen-type lint trap fitted over the exhaust outlet automatically pops up when the door of the dryer is opened, as a reminder to inspect and clean it if necessary.

An automatic shut-off is also provided on the door of the new dryer, as well as its twin the Laundromat. On either machine, the opening of the door will shut off the power.

The Laundromat and dryer are styled identically, with slanting front and chromium-finished keystone - shaped escutcheon highlighted by an iridescent blue shield.

WESTINGHOUSE LAUNDROMAT—Any part of the washing cycle on the Westinghouse Laundromat automatic clothes washer can be started, stopped, repeated or eliminated to conform to the type of load, and any washing time from two to twenty minutes with full rinsing action is possible. Included in this flexible dial-controlled mechanism is a special setting for prewashing and conditioning clothes. The new model also has a 16 per cent larger Weigh-to-Save door for easier loading and unloading.

Protect Yourself, Family And Home Against Fire; Utilize And Maintain Your Appliances With Care

From midnight tonight until midnight tomorrow, 800 U. S. homes are destined to be struck by fire.

Electricity Is Faithful Servant In Life Of American Homemaker

There are few breadwinners in America today who can afford to hire 35 servants, each working 40 hours a week, to help them perform their housework. Yet the average householder now has equivalent help without even being aware of the fact and at a cost of less than $65 per year.

The one servant which does the jobs of so many servants is electricity.

The average U. S. home now has at least nine major appliances working to save time, effort and finances for the homeowner. A television set, radio, washer, electric clock, iron, refrigerator, toaster, vacuum cleaner and coffeemaker are owned by almost every family, along with a host of other electric "servants," such as shavers, mixers, ranges, heating pads and water heaters.

In addition, one out of every 10 homes boasts an air conditioner, electric bed coverings, blender, broiler, dishwasher, clothes dryer, disposal unit and roaster — all electrically operated.

Since the end of World War II, more than 18 million families have introduced refrigerators into their homes, and 19 million have purchased TV sets.

America's 50 millionth electric customer was recently connected to the nation's vast power network. Before too many years that customer may have, thanks to electricity, electronic devices that will cook his family's meals in a few seconds, year-round air conditioning that will keep his home dust- and germ-free, a room-to-room intercommunication system, and lighting adjustable to all degrees of brilliance and color.

With the rising cost of living, the paychecks of servants have also risen. But not that of the electric servant. In fact, this particular helper has taken a cut in salary. The cost of living has risen 90 per cent over the 1935-39 level, but the electric index is down 8 per cent.

In 1929, the average home's electric bill was $31.78. Today, it is only twice that figure, even though the same home uses four times as much electricity.

By 1975, it is predicted that an average home may use 25,000 kilowatt-hours a year, compared to one-tenth that amount at present. Fully-equipped electric kitchens of revolutionary design and appearance, standard use of the heat pump and many other changes will cause the house of tomorrow to bear very little resemblance to today's dwelling.

New Kitchens Easy To Install

On a list of a woman's frustrated dreams, "modernizing" her kitchen would probably rank pretty high.

The reason in many cases is not that it's too expensive, but that being "torn up" while the work is done — often for several days — seems to be too much trouble.

Like most problems, however, this one has a solution. By buying the kitchen already made, the bulk of the job can be finishd in hours.

Several leading firms now offer all-steel kitchen cabinet and sink units than can be installed simply and quickly. If you can hang a picture, or move furniture into place, you can put in the wall and base units with no professional help.

Available in many sizes, the cabinets can be fitted snugly into almost any space. Most dealers will be happy to supply you with instructions for planning your own best layout. Some will offer to plan it for you.

Just because the cabinets are steel doesn't mean they have to be cold-looking. Many makers now offer a wide variety of decorator colors to conform to your favorite color scheme. And the stain-resistant baked enamel, besides being easier to clean, will outlast the paint on wooden cabinets.

Some new wall units have sliding glass doors, handy appliance outlets and fluorescent lighting to illuminate underneath work surfaces. And for real convenience, there's the automatic sink, with built-in dishwasher and disposal unit.

'Little Shavers' Grow Into Daily Shavers

For the rest of his life, "that man" in your life is chained by bonds of convention and necessity to a sharp blade and soapy brush, for the daily ritual of shaving.

He is, that is, unless he joins the ever-growing army of men who fight the endless battle of the beard with an electric shaver.

Equipped with a near-silent motor which won't affect your television or radio set, a shaver is a long-term investment in good-grooming and economy. Its current consumption is minute, and considering the service any good shaver is designed to give, it's a money-saver.

Home Devices Arrangement Can Save Steps

When it comes to buying a major appliance, like a washer, freezer or range, there's scarcely a woman around who doesn't get mighty particular.

Before she lays her money on the line, she'll spend hours scanning the advertisements, talking to the neighbors and shopping through the stores. For she's out to find the model that will save her the most time and effort in return for her investment.

All this is fine. But what she often doesn't realize, according to leading home economists, is that few appliances made will save her maximum work unless she knows where to keep them.

Modern homemaking aids are automatic marvels. They are engineered to save you as much time and drudgery as present human knowledge can make a machine perform for you. But there's a right way and a wrong way of adding them to your home.

The wrong way is to place them anywhere there is room, without figuring out ahead of time if that's the particular spot that will save you the most steps. The right way is to work out an efficient work area plan before you do your buying, and then be sure to stick to it.

You don't have to be an efficiency expert, either. You just have to master a few simple rules.

First, the major appliances that you'll want to give the most care to placing are those that do two major jobs:

1. Washing, drying and ironing your clothes.
2. Preparing your meals.

These are the larger devices that you won't be moving around. You'll install them once and there they'll stay.

It's important to know that a right-handed person works best from right to left; a left-handed person from left to right.

In your kitchen, most of your work will flow from refrigerator and/or freezer to sink to range. If you're a "righty" then, the refrigerator should go on the right, the range on the left and the sink in between them.

In the laundry, the work flow is from washer to dryer to ironing center. So the best right-to-left arrangement is washer, dryer, ironer.

To save yourself the most possible steps, your kitchen appliances should be placed in a triangle. Counter space between them depends upon the kitchen, but the maximum distance between sink and range should be four feet, and the minimum three feet. That between sink and refrigerator should be five to five-and-one-half feet.

If possible, have your laundry on the first or second floor instead of the basement. A first-floor site near the kitchen will center your homemaking work in one spot, and maybe save plumbing and wiring costs. A second-floor site will be nearest the spots where you gather and store the clothes.

Whatever you do, keep everything together. Don't have the washer in one room, the dryer in another and your ironing equipment still elsewhere. You'll run yourself ragged.

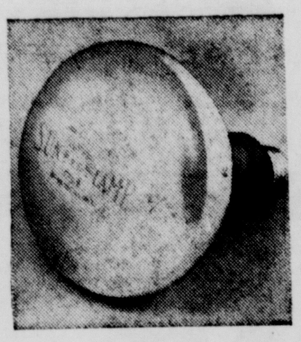
New Type Sweeper

A new carpet sweeper has recently been introduced that permits cleaning close to walls, under low furniture and around furniture legs. It is smaller and more compact than regulation models, but sweeps the same area because it is equipped with a brush that extends the full length of the sweeper itself.

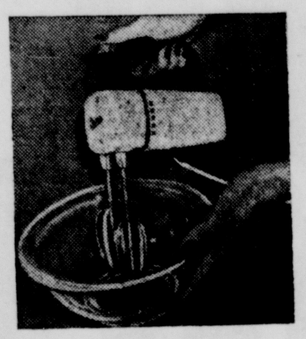
Only about two per cent of the people in the United States have what is called "perfect vision."

New Labor Savers For You

COFFEE MILL gives you a choice of 16 different grinds. Pick the one that best suits your taste and have it at the flick of a switch. The glass hopper holds 1¼ pounds of coffee beans. Finished grind is deposited in a graduated receiving glass. Coffee experts say that grinding just before the brewing preserves the delicate flavor oils which evaporate quickly when exposed to the air.



SUN LAMP that needs no awkward auxiliary equipment can be screwed into any convenient light socket. Use it whenever you like. Operated on 50-60-cycle, alternating current, it's made with a built-in reflector and retails for $8.95. The lamp is accepted by the American Medical Association . . . is so rich in ultraviolet rays that it suntans three times quicker than the mid-summer sun.



PORTABLE MIXER will do all the chores of a stationary model, but will work at any angle and is usually cheaper to buy. This model features "knee action," an advance which makes the beaters self-adjusting in length. They adapt to the contours of a bowl, do a thorough job in those hard-to-reach areas. Mixer has three speeds, an extra-long cord, and hangs on the wall in a special handy bracket.

ELECTRIC MASSAGER fits in your hand and does all the hard work of general body massage, facials and scalp massage. Several thousand rotating-patting impulses are delivered to the fingers each minute. After a hard day's work, men and women both will find it a wonderful relaxer. It comes in a handsome, durable case, with a powerful but lightweight motor that works on both AC and DC.

FRENCH FRYER and buffet cooker handles dozens of cooking jobs — from soups, stews and puddings to all types of deep-fat frying. Recently introduced, it has a tapered bowl of six-quart capacity, with chrome-finished exterior, aluminum lid and plastic handles and base. Inner basket clips to the bowl for draining. Automatic heat control has temperature range of 150-450 degrees.

GLASS BASTER simplifies the task of basting roasts and poultry. The risk of burned fingers and the need for clumsy scratching and scraping with a spoon to remove drippings from the bottom of a hot roasting pan are eliminated. The long glass tube and rubber bulb easily siphon up the sizzling juices and a squeeze of the bulb distributes them evenly over the entire roast or bird.

GE FREEZER GIVES NEW BENEFITS IN 1954 MODELS — The highlighting feature of the 1954 General Electric freezer line is the sealed-in refrigeration mechanism. It's an improved version of the same type that has been used in more than 3,500,000 GE refrigerators and freezers that have given unsurpassed service for more than 10 years. Other improved features are uniform zero temperature, locking latch, larger interior light and temperature control.

Informative Tips Given In Care And Feeding Of Home Appliances

Electric sheets and blankets can be washed successfully in warm

soapsuds if you don't twist or wring them. To avoid damage to delicate wires, just squeeze out excess water by hand.

Keep all small appliances covered with plastic or cloth protectors when not in use. Keeps dust and dirt out, and retards tarnishing. Saves you hours of polishing.

Pay special attention to keeping the drain pipe clean in a non-mechanical refrigerator chilled by "real" ice. Remove the pipe and drain trap often, wash them in hot soapsuds, and scald with boiling water to kill bacteria.

Use a cloth soaked in turpentine to remove paint splashes from enamel-surface equipment such as refrigerators and washing machines. Once the paint is off, wash away the turpentine with soapy water; otherwise, it will dry to a sticky film.

It's modern efficiency to keep your flatware and silver service as bright as your appliances. And there's one way to do it.

Reserve one drawer or compartment for the silver and line it with silver cloth. This is a soft, beaver-brown flannel that contains millions of silver particles that act as a barrier against tarnish-causing sulphur gases in the air.

Thirsty appliances can't perform their task efficiently. Keep a small oil can filled with light oil in the kitchen utility cabinet, for first-aid to hard-working motors.

Don't overload your washing machine, because free circulation of soapsuds and rinse water is essential for maximum soil removal. It pays to run an extra load, if necessary, to avoid crowding the washer.

Never allow egg mixtures to dry on mixer beaters. Soak in cold water, never hot water, immediately after use. Makes washing-up easier.

An electric toaster should never be immersed in water. Instead, brush away crumbs and wipe the outside with a well - wrung - out soapy cloth. Rinse with a clean damp cloth, and then rub the surface dry.

When a freezer is completely defrosted is the time to wash the inner walls with warm soapy water. Take out baskets and dividers and suds them carefully, too. Rinse and dry all surfaces and equipment.

An electric blender is a quick way to make the thick soap jelly recommended for washing surfaces and fabrics that should not be saturated with water.

Just place 1 cup of warm or cool water and 1/5 cup soap in the glass container of the blender, put on the cover, and run about one minute until the contents are thoroughly blended.

What if you don't have help around when you need to shove your refrigerator aside to wash its case and the floor underneath?

It will be an easy pushover if you first wet the floor and rub it with soap. Wherever you have washable flooring, use the same soapy-slide system for shifting big, rollerless pieces of equipment that otherwise would demand more strength than one woman should exert.

Good Ol' Days Recalled But Modern Living's Better

Sure, they were wonderful. Wondefully tiring, that is.

Remember all the fun it was to drag the coaster wagon down to the ice house, load up, pull the ice home (losing half of it to the summer sun, and then the fun of manhandling the slippery chunk into the icebox?

Remember the pleasure of those dozen trips a day up and downstairs to tend the furnace, before the advent of automatic controls?

Remember holes in the rug from acid when you dropped the storage battery for the radio, and the jolly times when the batteries went dead on the eve of an outstanding broadcast?

Remember when "swelter" was the only solution to the problem of what to do in hot weather, before air conditioning came along?

Hey — where are you going? Down to look at a new deep freeze?

Wait a minute—I'll come along. We'll talk about the good old days another time.

WASHING HOLIDAY—The scrubbing board is all right for dolly's clothes, but Mrs. Homemaker herself now enjoys a holiday from old laundering chores. This new automatic washer, using a unique and effective x-centric agitation principle, "shampoo" washing and overflow rinsing, gets the dirtiest of play and work clothes really clean, yet operates so gently that even the most delicate fabrics may be laundered without harm.

2 Combinations Feature Norge Refrigerators

Manual Controls Are Eliminated

Two new refrigerator - freezer combinations head the four-model 1954 refrigerator line of the Norge Division of the Borg-Warner Corporation, Chicago.

Called the Customatics, the two single - door refrigerator - freezer combinations feature a refrigeration system which eliminates all manual controls and makes defrosting unnecessary.

All four top models feature Handidor shelves, cross-top freezer chests, butter banks, and aluminum roll-out shelves.

Entirely insulated from the refrigerator section, the separate Customatic freezer chests automatically maintain zero-zone temperatures, low enough to insure safe freezing and long-term storage of hard-to-keep foods such as ice cream and fat meats.

A food freshener plate at the rear of the Customatic refrigerator storage compartment keeps temperatures automatically between 38 and 42 degrees. These temperatures are maintained regardless of varying food loads and room temperature fluctuations.

Since the Customatics defrost after each cycle, no special defrosting mechanism is needed. Balanced humidity in the refrigerator compartment keeps foods from drying out, whether covered or uncovered.

All shelves on the Customatics are gold anodized aluminum roll-outs. Other features include Handidor shelves, butter bank, tall bottle basket, removable egg nest, twin porcelain vegetable bins, and a meat saver.

Model 835 Jet-D-Frost refrigerator defrosts at the user's convenience by pushing the defrost button. Model 834 Deluxe refrigerator is defrosted manually.

Both models have a 34-pound capacity full-width aluminum freezer chest, insulated frozen storage tray, full-width porcelain crisper, roll-out shelf, Handidor with egg storage shelves, and butter bank.

New arctic mist color tone and gold tone trim the inner liner of main door, throat lining, front of freezer compartment, and crispers on all 1954 Norge models. Customatics have gold tone trim on all shelves, egg nest, and exterior base.

Interiors are of titanium porcelain. Exteriors are of Norgloss baked enamel.

All models have a new angular chrome-plated Handilatch, the Norge Power King compressor, interior recessed light, a five-year protection plan, and the insulation throughout is high density glass fiber.

NORGE REFRIGERATION SYSTEM—A new system makes this refrigerator-freezer completely independent of manual controls. Temperatures are kept just right no matter how large the food load or how many times you open the door. There's never any need to defrost and food doesn't have to be covered.

Eye Thermometer With Comfort

For supplying information on how to dress, for satisfying your own curiosity, and for an ideal topic of conversation, there's nothing quite like an out-of-doors thermometer. However, if you mount a thermometer too near the window, you'll pick up heat from the house.

A perfect solution to the problem is provided by an indoor-outdoor thermometer. The bulb is mounted on a bracket which extends from the sill of your window, and a thin, flexible capillary tube leads from it to the thermometer scale indoors.

Keep Broiler Clean

Wash the broiler of your cooking range after each use, so grease won't collect and cause the pan to smoke. Pour off the grease while warm. When cool, soak pan and broiler grills in rich, hot soapsuds. Scrub with a stiff brush, rinse and dry.

USE THE ATTACHMENTS—Attachments for every purpose are available for your Singer sewing machine. This one is putting a blind-stitched hem into a garment. Others will accomplish button holes, point-tucking and other intricate needle work.

Utilizing Sewing Machine Aids Is Most Helpful To Seamstress

Time was when the home seamstress shied away from anything more mechanical than a pair of scissors.

Today, however, the smart woman is using every possible gadget to ease and shorten her sewing jobs. And sewing machine attachments take care of such tedious jobs as tucking, ruffling, hemming, binding, making buttonholes and inserting zippers.

Experts at the local Singer Sewing Centers are ready to give free instruction on using any of the attachments, and show you how to achieve custom-made effects on your sewing machine.

The tucker, for example, guarantees uniform tucks . . . either a fine pin tuck or one an inch wide. While one tuck is being stitched, the attachment makes a guiding mark for the next tuck.

The ruffler is one of the most versatile attachments. With it, you can ruffle a piece of fabric and sew it to a garment in one operation. A simple adjustment turns it into a pleater, capable of making perfectly spaced pleats of varying fullness.

The making of another sewing bugaboo, the buttonhole, is made extraordinarily simple by use of the buttonholer attachment. This simple device gauges the size of buttonhole from less than one-half to 1 1/16 inches by means of inserting templates. Because of its forward and reverse action, it is unnecessary to turn the material in the sewing machine.

Another simple device, the narrow hemmer, can roll and stitch a tiny hem. The multi-slotted binder stitches both edges of bias binding neatly in place—no pinning or basting is necessary. Five small slots in graduated sizes are arranged to hold various sizes of commercial single-folded binding, ranging from the smallest size 1 to size 5.

Another gadget, the zipper foot, may be adjusted to permit stitching to the left or the right of a slide fastener. This makes it possible for stitching to travel in the same direction — important when sewing off-grain edges such as those found at the hipline.

High platform shoes were worn in Europe many centuries ago to help keep women's feet out of the mud.

The color white is more common in flowers than any other.

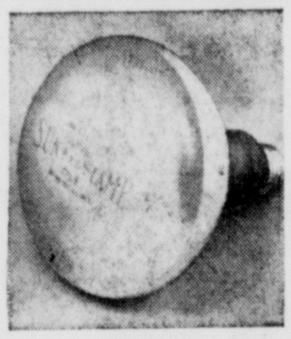
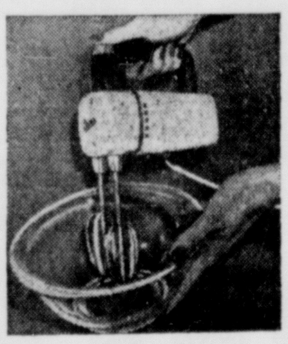
COFFEE MILL gives you a choice of 16 different grinds. Pick the one that best suits your taste and have it at the flick of a switch. The glass hopper holds 1¼ pounds of coffee beans. Finished grind is deposited in a graduated receiving glass. Coffee experts say that grinding just before the brewing preserves the delicate flavor oils which evaporate quickly when exposed to the air.



SUN LAMP that needs no awkward auxiliary equipment can be screwed into any convenient light socket. Use it whenever you like. Operated on 50-60-cycle, alternating current, it's made with a built-in reflector and retails for $8.95. The lamp is accepted by the American Medical Association . . . is so rich in ultraviolet rays that it suntans three times quicker than the mid-summer sun.



PORTABLE MIXER will do all the chores of a stationary model, but will work at any angle and is usually cheaper to buy. This model features "knee action," an advance which makes the beaters self-adjusting in length. They adapt to the contours of a bowl, do a thorough job in those hard-to-reach areas. Mixer has three speeds, an extra-long cord, and hangs on the wall in a special handy bracket.

ELECTRIC MASSAGER fits in your hand and does all the hard work of general body massage, facials and scalp massage. Several thousand rotating-patting impulses are delivered to the fingers each minute. After a hard day's work, men and women both will find it a wonderful relaxer. It comes in a handsome, durable case, with a powerful but lightweight motor that works on both AC and DC.

FRENCH FRYER and buffet cooker handles dozens of cooking jobs — from soups, stews and puddings to all types of deep-fat frying. Recently introduced, it has a tapered bowl of six-quart capacity, with chrome-finished exterior, aluminum lid and plastic handles and base. Inner basket clips to the bowl for draining. Automatic heat control has temperature range of 150-450 degrees.

GLASS BASTER simplifies the task of basting roasts and poultry. The risk of burned fingers and the need for clumsy scratching and scraping with a spoon to remove drippings from the bottom of a hot roasting pan are eliminated. The long glass tube and rubber bulb easily siphon up the sizzling juices and a squeeze of the bulb distributes them evenly over the entire roast or bird.

Remington Features Complete Room Air Conditioning Line

Offers Window, Console Units

Specialists in room air conditioning since 1937, and the one major firm in the field devoted exclusively to the manufacture of room air conditioners, Remington Corporation is this year featuring a most complete line of window and console units for all-year-round health, comfort and personal efficiency.

Units are available in the following sizes:

⅓ h.p. Model 4 — "The Roomette"

½ h.p. Master and Deluxe Models 6—"The Bedfellow"

¾ h.p.p Model 8—"The Professional"

1 h.p. Model 11—"The Diplomat"

1 h.p. Console 10—"The Director"

1½ h.p. Console 12 — "The Overton"

and have these outstanding features:

⅓ and ½ h.p. Window Models

Decorator Styling — Housed in mist green rust-proofed furniture steel cabinets with heavy-duty plastic grilles and trim in a choice of cascade green or antique ivory, these units have uncluttered simplicity of line that makes for harmony in modern or traditional settings.

"Out or In" Installation — One-piece tube type cabinet, into which the chassis fits, permits installation almost entirely outside or inside the window, as customer preference or building codes may dictate. In addition, the operating unit also slides in or out of the tubular cabinet like a dresser drawer to make for easy installation and inexpensive servicing. Air intake grilles are at the front, instead of at the side, to eliminate interference with draperies and permit them to hang straight alongside.

Ultra-Quiet Operation—Units are fully insulated and resilient mounted for quietest possible operation. Fans are placed well behind other functioning parts of unit to deaden noises.

Chlorophyll, Too—A special cartridge holds a new compound containing chlorophyll to sweeten room air and kill odors in a jiffy. Developed jointly by Remington and Airkem Inc., this new exclusive Air Fresh'ner may be turned on or off as desired. Depending on amount of usage, one container should last all season and replacements, readily available, are inexpensive. (Standard on ½ h.p. deluxe, optional on ⅓ and ½ h.p. master models).

New Positive Ventilation — A new, advanced two-stage fan system brings in fresh, conditioned air in controlled quantities regardless of wind direction, and exhausts stale air without interruption of the cooling action.

New Exclusive Pressurized Exhaust—The air brought in raises the room air pressure slightly above that of the atmosphere and forces stale air and smoke out through cracks and crevices.

AIR CONDITIONER—This Remington deluxe window model air conditioner, star of the line, comes in mist green rust-proof furniture steel cabinet with plastic grille in choice of cascade green or antique ivory. It has a number of attractive features.

Entire Grille Area Works — The grills are adjustable for draft-free upward or downward air deflection and for maximum and quiet air flow.

Thermostatic Temperature Control—In addition, the ½ h.p. deluxe unit, the star of the Remington window line, features a factory-equipped thermostat for automatic temperature control. When room temperature drops, the refrigeration system shuts off. With a rise in room temperature, "cooling" automatically turns on.

Provides Heating, Too—Electric heat, the kind that is not dependent on outside temperatures may also be had on the ½ h.p. deluxe model as optional equipment. This "tween-season" heat warms room air or tempers ventilating air, is ideal for brisk fall or spring days when central heat is disconnected, or for all winter auxiliary heat.

One Master Control—Six positions clearly marked, on one master control give easy, exact regulation of comfort.

Easy to Clean—Plastic grille may be easily snapped out for cleaning, washed under faucet if desired. Filter may be changed without removing the cabinet. Just lift up the Remington name plate and the filter comes out.

¾ and 1 H.P. Window Models

Cabinet and Styling—Mist green plastic room cabinet with smart waffle-weave grille design in cascade green, handsomely trimmed in gold, is housed in rust-proofed furniture steel weather cabinet.

Single Dial Control—One simple dial, plainly marked and recessed so as not to interfere with window or blinds, controls filtering, circulation, exhaust, ventilation, with or without cooling and dehumidification. Multi-way louvers may be set to direct air up, down or to either side.

Automatic Temperature Control—Thermostat for additional temperature control is standard equipment on the 1 h.p. model and optional on the ¾ h.p. unit. Electric heating is optional on both units. The ¾ h.p. model also features new quick-comfort hi-power setting for fast cooling when unit is first started, to lower room temperature quickly, and the Remington exclusive climate compensator designed to provide greater moisture removal on humid, muggy days and additional cooling on hot, dry days.

Keep Ironer Clean For Spotless Wash

Freshly laundered clothes may pick up stains as they're fed through your ironer unless it is kept scrupulously clean.

Starch, scorch, and dye spots, left on the metal shoe and roll-cover from previous ironings, are likely to rub off on damp laundry. To end this nuisance, wipe the metal shoe with a sudsy cloth after each use, as soon as it's cool enough. Next, wipe with a clean damp cloth, then polish with a dry one.

And wash the roll cover as soon as it shows soil.

Better still, keep spare covers on tap so you'll always have a fresh supply to draw from when you sit down to iron.

Home Video Unit Is Safeguard In Care Of Children

Rumors have it that would-be mischievous youngsters are about to form a Born-30-Years-Too-Late Club. A new scientific development threatens to ruin their fun by tattling their pranks to Mommy.

Announced by a well known laboratory it's an electronic baby sitter—a miniature television camera. The camera can be hooked up to the regular TV receiver and the viewer can watch the children at play in the yard or in any part of the house on which the camera is focused.

Actually, of course, the device is not intended for spying on children old enough to resent it. It's for guarding infants and toddlers from the possibility of danger.

Gas Model Washer-Dryer Does Full Job In One Continuous Operation

The gas model Bendix Duomatic all-in-one washer-dryer is a revolutionary new appliance that dries as well as washes in one continuous automatic operation. It can wash and dry an average eight-pound load in just 59 minutes.

Installed as simply as an ordinary automatic washer and gas dryer together, it occupies only three linear feet of wall space to five or five and a half for the two separate units. It takes less than two thirds of a square yard in the kitchen, utility room, recreation room, basement or even bathroom.

The gas model Duomatic is operated by two simple controls and a water temperature selector dial. The washer control also governs the exclusive but automatic speed soak cycle which does a better job in minutes than overnight soaking can do. During the washing cycle, the clothes are given Bendix famous high-lift, deep surge tumble-action washing, the gentlest and most thorough method known.

The water temperature selector, in the center of the control panel, gives the user the option of employing the exclusive Bendix Magic Heater during the washing cycle. This immersion heater makes the wash water hotter and thus gets clothes cleaner.

The dryer timer control operates the drying cycle and can be set to fluff and tumble dry the clothes up to 90 minutes. However, the average drying time for a standard eight-pound load is the gas Duomatic is approximately 40 minutes.

The operator merely puts in the clothes, fills the Duomatic — its automatic fill control prevents the start of tumbling until the unit has filled to the proper level, regardless of water temperature — adds soap and softener, sets the wash and drying timers and walks away from washday.

The Duomatic will automatically wash, drain, rinse, spin dry, fluff the clothes and then finally dry them completely in one continuous automatic operation with no further attention from the homemaker. At any time during the cycle, the Duomatic can be stopped merely by opening the door. The regular "off-on" switch is built into the Magic Heater dial.

The drying principles involved are identical to those in the individual Bendix gas dryer. The gas Duomatic employs automatic ignition and thermostatic control of heat to keep the temperatures low and safe for all fabrics.

Heat and moisture can be exhausted from the home by means of the Pow-R-Vent system exclusive to Bendix. The air circulator in the gas Duomatic develops an exhaust pressure of 75 miles per hour and moves 135 cubic feet of air per minute.

The gas Duomatic, like all Bendix automatic washers, is so perfectly balanced it does not require a vibration cut off switch.

So It's Raining? Just Fan The Wash

For a woman who doesn't own a clothes dryer, there are few things more downright irritating than a sudden storm on washday. Trying to dry the laundry means a tangle of lines in the basement, and prayers for a clear tomorrow.

One way to speed the process is to use an electric fan. Just place the fan two or three feet from the clothes and direct the air stream between the lines of wash. The results will be well worth the trouble.

If you don't have a fan, but you do own a hair dryer, by all means use the dryer. It won't dry the heavier stuff, but at least it will handle the lighter things.

This is one way to "cool-off" but you can select the temperature for . . . .

2 Combinations Feature Norge Refrigerators

Manual Controls Are Eliminated

Two new refrigerator - freezer combinations head the four-model 1954 refrigerator line of the Norge Division of the Borg-Warner Corporation, Chicago.

Called the Customatics, the two single - door refrigerator - freezer combinations feature a refrigeration system which eliminates all manual controls and makes defrosting unnecessary.

All four top models feature Handidor shelves, cross-top freezer chests, butter banks, and aluminum roll-out shelves.

Entirely insulated from the refrigerator section, the separate Customatic freezer chests automatically maintain zero-zone temperatures, low enough to insure safe freezing and long-term storage of hard-to-keep foods such as ice cream and fat meats.

A food freshener plate at the rear of the Customatic refrigerator storage compartment keeps temperatures automatically between 38 and 42 degrees. These temperatures are maintained regardless of varying food loads and room temperature fluctuations.

Since the Customatics defrost after each cycle, no special defrosting mechanism is needed. Balanced humidity in the refrigerator compartment keeps foods from drying out, whether covered or uncovered.

All shelves on the Customatics are gold anodized aluminum roll-outs. Other features include Handidor shelves, butter bank, tall bottle basket, removable egg nest, twin porcelain vegetable bins, and a meat saver.

Model 835 Jet-D-Frost refrigerator defrosts at the user's convenience by pushing the defrost button. Model 834 Deluxe refrigerator is defrosted manually.

Both models have a 34-pound capacity full-width aluminum freezer chest, insulated frozen storage tray, full-width porcelain crisper, roll-out shelf, Handidor with egg storage shelves, and butter bank.

New arctic mist color tone and gold tone trim the inner liner of main door, throat lining, front of freezer compartment, and crispers on all 1954 Norge models. Customatics have gold tone trim on all shelves, egg nest, and exterior base.

Interiors are of titanium porcelain. Exteriors are of Norgloss baked enamel.

All models have a new angular chrome-plated Handilatch, the Norge Power King compressor, interior recessed light, a five-year protection plan, and the insulation throughout is high density glass fiber.

NORGE REFRIGERATION SYSTEM—A new system makes this refrigerator-freezer completely independent of manual controls. Temperatures are kept just right no matter how large the food load or how many times you open the door. There's never any need to defrost and food doesn't have to be covered.

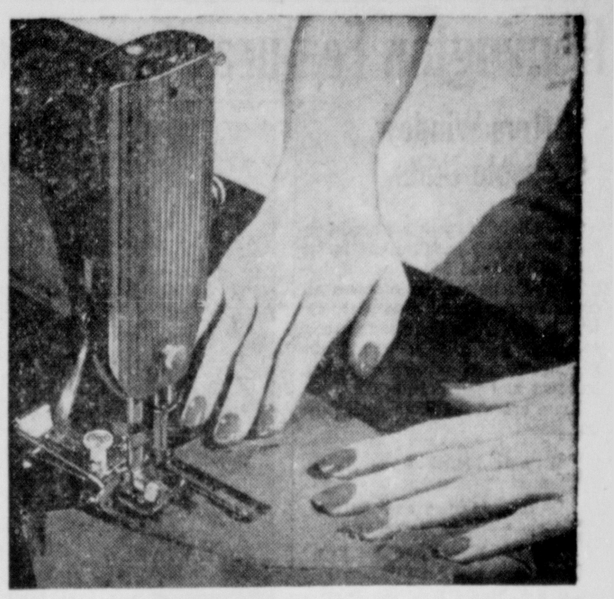
Eye Thermometer With Comfort

For supplying information on how to dress, for satisfying your own curiosity, and for an ideal topic of conversation, there's nothing quite like an out-of-doors thermometer. However, if you mount a thermometer too near the window, you'll pick up heat from the house.

A perfect solution to the problem is provided by an indoor-outdoor thermometer. The bulb is mounted on a bracket which extends from the sill of your window, and a thin, flexible capillary tube leads from it to the thermometer scale indoors.

Keep Broiler Clean

Wash the broiler of your cooking range after each use, so grease won't collect and cause the pan to smoke. Pour off the grease while warm. When cool, soak pan and broiler grills in rich, hot soapsuds. Scrub with a stiff brush, rinse and dry.



USE THE ATTACHMENTS—Attachments for every purpose are available for your Singer sewing machine. This one is putting a blind-stitched hem into a garment. Others will accomplish button holes, point-tucking and other intricate needle work.

Utilizing Sewing Machine Aids Is Most Helpful To Seamstress

Time was when the home seamstress shied away from anything more mechanical than a pair of scissors.

Today, however, the smart woman is using every possible gadget to ease and shorten her sewing jobs. And sewing machine attachments take care of such tedious jobs as tucking, ruffling, hemming, binding, making buttonholes and inserting zippers.

Experts at the local Singer Sewing Centers are ready to give free instruction on using any of the attachments, and show you how to achieve custom-made effects on your sewing machine.

The tucker, for example, guarantees uniform tucks . . . either a fine pin tuck or one an inch wide. While one tuck is being stitched, the attachment makes a guiding mark for the next tuck.

The ruffler is one of the most versatile attachments. With it, you can ruffle a piece of fabric and sew it to a garment in one operation. A simple adjustment turns it into a pleater, capable of making perfectly spaced pleats of varying fullness.

The making of another sewing bugaboo, the buttonhole, is made extraordinarily simple by use of the buttonholer attachment. This simple device gauges the size of buttonhole from less than one-half to 1 1/16 inches by means of inserting templates. Because of its forward and reverse action, it is unnecessary to turn the material in the sewing machine.

Another simple device, the narrow hemmer, can roll and stitch a tiny hem. The multi-slotted binder stitches both edges of bias binding neatly in place—no pinning or basting is necessary. Five small slots in graduated sizes are arranged to hold various sizes of commercial single-folded binding, ranging from the smallest size 1 to size 5.

Another gadget, the zipper foot, may be adjusted to permit stitching to the left or the right of a slide fastener. This makes it possible for stitching to travel in the same direction — important when sewing off-grain edges such as those found at the hipline.

High platform shoes were worn in Europe many centuries ago to help keep women's feet out of the mud.

The color white is more common in flowers than any other.

America's Food-Buying Habits Are Being Changed Through Extensive Use Of Home Deep Freezers

American women, according to a recent survey, are adding new freezer space in their homes at the rate of 162 million cubic feet each year.

For storage in these 1,200,000 home food freezers they are buying food in quantity at the rate of $2.5 billion per year.

But the statistics of today show only part of the picture. For while householders are buying both upright and chest-type freezers, new plans are in the works that may revolutionize the whole industry.

A look into the engineering laboratories reveals that theories and models are tending toward:

1. A refrigerator built into the breakfast table that puts morning food at your finger tips.
2. A two-door freezing cabinet that will share the berth next to your standard refrigerator in the kitchen.
3. An air conditioning unit that will be built into the wall, or become the wall, finished to match the rest of the room.

Today, however, the housewife is still deciding whether or not it's the upright or horizontal freezer she wants. A poll of her and her sisters shows that they want their freezer in the kitchen, with the food at hand.

A look at production plans of the major manufacturers, though, shows that the upright model is at present gaining in popularity for it economizes in floor space without sacrificing cubic-footage.

The general run of freezers today—Philco, Frigidaire, Westinghouse, General Electric—are packing as much storage space as possible in the home chest.

New racks, holders, and notched and adjustable shelves are making it easier to store, identify and remove any frozen food container.

Even sandwiches, complete dishes, soups—the whole meal in fact—all are provided for in today's freezer. Doors are being fitted out with storage space as at no other time. And new interior lighting is saving strain on women's eyes.

The new freezer designs, which make the unit practical for American homes, are changing the nation's food-buying habits.

According to one recent study, seven of every 10 freezer owners now buy sale-priced foods in larger than normal quantities. And three out of every four take advantage of seasonal specials—buying foods when they're plentiful on the market and not paying higher prices at a time when they're out of season.

And perhaps most revealing of all, 88 per cent of those questioned — nearly nine out of 10—liked frozen foods better than canned foods, and made their purchases accordingly.

PHILCO FREEZER—This chest model deep freeze has sliding shelves that make food selection easy. Most of the storage space is kept above knee level. Added equipment on this one: an alarm bell rings if power fails.

Automatic Washer Safer For Housewife

Those ads you read in the papers about automatic home laundry equipment usually stress convenience. They really ought to emphasize safety. Probably none of the modern marvels in today's home has eliminated more hazards for the homemaker.

Almost everyone knows of a neighbor who once mashed her finger in a wringer or tripped on the stairs with a bundle of wet clothes or of a haggard husband who nearly strangled himself at night on the clothesline in the yard or basement. And hot-water scalds are frequent in homes practicing old-fashioned laundry methods.

Although statistics on wringer accidents are not available newspaper clipping services will provide any skeptic with literally bushes of stories on wringer mishaps that occurred in any given period.

These safety hazards are just about eliminated by modern washday equipment—automatic washers, automatic dryers, or a combination of both in one unit.

In the days before automatics, homemakers had to puzzle over an apparent contradiction. They knew that the "hotter the water the whiter the wash." But they also knew from painful experience that hot wate scalded and burned. The automatic washer has eliminated this hazard.

Today, the homemaker's hands need never touch water. She can use water as hot as she chooses. And this is especially important in view of research conducted by the University of Michigan, which indicates that clothes must be washed at least three minutes in water at 145 degrees or more in order to kill bacteria present in the clothes.

Another potential hazard — the danger of electric shock—is no longer the threat it once was. With old-fashioned washers, the careless homemaker sometimes used to work on a wet basement floor, instead of standing on a raised wooden platform. Every now and then, someone reached for a light switch while standing in water and got a nasty shock. That doesn't happen with today's automatics.

Dryers have done a great deal more to get rid of germs and bacteria. Clothing dried outdoors on the line is a catch-all for airborne germs, soot and grime. It frequently dries harsh and stiff, and is often irritating to wear.

A dryer dries the clothes fluffily and softly. And some models even feature germicidal lamps, although their use isn't necessary if clothes are washed automatically at proper water temperatures.

Appliance makers now have built an even safer machine—a washer-dryer combination, all in one unit. With this amazing device, you can turn out "super-sanitary" laundry.

Plug-In Night Lights Prove Safety Factor

High on the list of most effective ways to break your neck is to stumble around the house at night without turning on a light—because you don't want to wake the family.

To guard you from just this danger, there's a new line of tiny, plug-in night lights on the market which sell for less than 50 cents apiece. Small, seven-watt bulbs will burn for several nights on a penny's worth of current. They're dim enough to let you sleep, but bright enough to let you see. The lamps can be placed in strategic spots, such as near stairways, the bathroom and the telephone table, and left to burn all night long.

Remington Features Complete Room Air Conditioning Line

Offers Window, Console Units

Specialists in room air conditioning since 1937, and the one major firm in the field devoted exclusively to the manufacture of room air conditioners, Remington Corporation is this year featuring a most complete line of window and console units for all-year-round health, comfort and personal efficiency.

Units are available in the following sizes:

⅓ h.p. Model 4 — "The Roomette"

½ h.p. Master and Deluxe Models 6—"The Bedfellow"

¾ h.p.p Model 8—"The Professional"

1 h.p. Model 11—"The Diplomat"

1 h.p. Console 10—"The Director"

1½ h.p. Console 12 — "The Overton"

and have these outstanding features:

⅓ and ½ h.p. Window Models

Decorator Styling — Housed in mist green rust-proofed furniture steel cabinets with heavy-duty plastic grilles and trim in a choice of cascade green or antique ivory, these units have uncluttered simplicity of line that makes for harmony in modern or traditional settings.

"Out or In" Installation — One-piece tube type cabinet, into which the chassis fits, permits installation almost entirely outside or inside the window, as customer preference or building codes may dictate. In addition, the operating unit also slides in or out of the tubular cabinet like a dresser drawer to make for easy installation and inexpensive servicing. Air intake grilles are at the front, instead of at the side, to eliminate interference with draperies and permit them to hang straight alongside.

Ultra-Quiet Operation—Units are fully insulated and resilient mounted for quietest possible operation. Fans are placed well behind other functioning parts of unit to deaden noises.

Chlorophyll, Too—A special cartridge holds a new compound containing chlorophyll to sweeten room air and kill odors in a jiffy. Developed jointly by Remington and Airkem Inc., this new exclusive Air Fresh'ner may be turned on or off as desired. Depending on amount of usage, one container should last all season and replacements, readily available, are inexpensive. (Standard on ½ h.p. deluxe, optional on ⅓ and ½ h.p. master models).

New Positive Ventilation — A new, advanced two-stage fan system brings in fresh, conditioned air in controlled quantities regardless of wind direction, and exhausts stale air without interruption of the cooling action.

New Exclusive Pressurized Exhaust—The air brought in raises the room air pressure slightly above that of the atmosphere and forces stale air and smoke out through cracks and crevices.

Entire Grille Area Works — The grills are adjustable for draft-free upward or downward air deflection and for maximum and quiet air flow.

Thermostatic Temperature Control—In addition, the ½ h.p. deluxe unit, the star of the Remington window line, features a factory-equipped thermostat for automatic temperature control. When room temperature drops, the refrigeration system shuts off. With a rise in room temperature, "cooling" automatically turns on.

Provides Heating, Too—Electric heat, the kind that is not dependent on outside temperatures may also be had on the ½ h.p. deluxe model as optional equipment. This "tween-season" heat warms room air or tempers ventilating air, is ideal for brisk fall or spring days when central heat is disconnected, or for all winter auxiliary heat.

One Master Control—Six positions clearly marked, on one master control give easy, exact regulation of comfort.

Easy to Clean—Plastic grille may be easily snapped out for cleaning, washed under faucet if desired. Filter may be changed without removing the cabinet. Just lift up the Remington name plate and the filter comes out.

¾ and 1 H.P. Window Models

Cabinet and Styling—Mist green plastic room cabinet with smart waffle-weave grille design in cascade green, handsomely trimmed in gold, is housed in rust-proofed furniture steel weather cabinet.

Single Dial Control—One simple dial, plainly marked and recessed so as not to interfere with window or blinds, controls filtering, circulation, exhaust, ventilation, with or without cooling and dehumidification. Multi-way louvers may be set to direct air up, down or to either side.

Automatic Temperature Control—Thermostat for additional temperature control is standard equipment on the 1 h.p. model and optional on the ¾ h.p. unit. Electric heating is optional on both units. The ¾ h.p. model also features new quick-comfort hi-power setting for fast cooling when unit is first started, to lower room temperature quickly, and the Remington exclusive climate compensator designed to provide greater moisture removal on humid, muggy days and additional cooling on hot, dry days.

AIR CONDITIONER—This Remington deluxe window model air conditioner, star of the line, comes in mist green rust-proof furniture steel cabinet with plastic grille in choice of cascade green or antique ivory. It has a number of attractive features.

Keep Ironer Clean For Spotless Wash

Freshly laundered clothes may pick up stains as they're fed through your ironer unless it is kept scrupulously clean.

Starch, scorch, and dye spots, left on the metal shoe and roll-cover from previous ironings, are likely to rub off on damp laundry. To end this nuisance, wipe the metal shoe with a sudsy cloth after each use, as soon as it's cool enough. Next, wipe with a clean damp cloth, then polish with a dry one.

And wash the roll cover as soon as it shows soil.

Better still, keep spare covers on tap so you'll always have a fresh supply to draw from when you sit down to iron.

Home Video Unit Is Safeguard In Care Of Children

Rumors have it that would-be mischievous youngsters are about to form a Born-30-Years-Too-Late Club. A new scientific development threatens to ruin their fun by tattling their pranks to Mommy.

Announced by a well known laboratory it's an electronic baby sitter—a miniature television camera. The camera can be hooked up to the regular TV receiver and the viewer can watch the children at play in the yard or in any part of the house on which the camera is focused.

Actually, of course, the device is not intended for spying on children old enough to resent it. It's for guarding infants and toddlers from the possibility of danger.

Gas Model Washer-Dryer Does Full Job In One Continuous Operation

The gas model Bendix Duomatic all-in-one washer-dryer is a revolutionary new appliance that dries as well as washes in one continuous automatic operation. It can wash and dry an average eight-pound load in just 59 minutes.

Installed as simply as an ordinary automatic washer and gas dryer together, it occupies only three linear feet of wall space to five or five and a half for the two separate units. It takes less than two thirds of a square yard in the kitchen, utility room, recreation room, basement or even bathroom.

The gas model Duomatic is operated by two simple controls and a water temperature selector dial. The washer control also governs the exclusive but automatic speed soak cycle which does a better job in minutes than overnight soaking can do. During the washing cycle, the clothes are given Bendix famous high-lift, deep surge tumble-action washing, the gentlest and most thorough method known.

The water temperature selector, in the center of the control panel, gives the user the option of employing the exclusive Bendix Magic Heater during the washing cycle. This immersion heater makes the wash water hotter and thus gets clothes cleaner.

The dryer timer control operates the drying cycle and can be set to fluff and tumble dry the clothes up to 90 minutes. However, the average drying time for a standard eight-pound load is the gas Duomatic is approximately 40 minutes.

The operator merely puts in the clothes, fills the Duomatic — its automatic fill control prevents the start of tumbling until the unit has filled to the proper level, regardless of water temperature — adds soap and softener, sets the wash and drying timers and walks away from washday.

The Duomatic will automatically wash, drain, rinse, spin dry, fluff the clothes and then finally dry them completely in one continuous automatic operation with no further attention from the homemaker. At any time during the cycle, the Duomatic can be stopped merely by opening the door. The regular "off-on" switch is built into the Magic Heater dial.

The drying principles involved are identical to those in the individual Bendix gas dryer. The gas Duomatic employs automatic ignition and thermostatic control of heat to keep the temperatures low and safe for all fabrics.

Heat and moisture can be exhausted from the home by means of the Pow-R-Vent system exclusive to Bendix. The air circulator in the gas Duomatic develops an exhaust pressure of 75 miles per hour and moves 135 cubic feet of air per minute.

The gas Duomatic, like all Bendix automatic washers, is so perfectly balanced it does not require a vibration cut off switch.

So It's Raining? Just Fan The Wash

For a woman who doesn't own a clothes dryer, there are few things more downright irritating than a sudden storm on washday. Trying to dry the laundry means a tangle of lines in the basement, and prayers for a clear tomorrow.

One way to speed the process is to use an electric fan. Just place the fan two or three feet from the clothes and direct the air stream between the lines of wash. The results will be well worth the trouble.

If you don't have a fan, but you do own a hair dryer, by all means use the dryer. It won't dry the heavier stuff, but at least it will handle the lighter things.

This is one way to "cool-off" but you can select the temperature for . . . .

Whirlpool Laundry Appliances Help Save Much Time And Energy For Housewife

The average happy bride, who says "I do" so eagerly, might be somewhat less cheerful if she realized she was facing a sentence of five and a half years of hard labor. She is pledging, indirectly, to do the family washing for the rest of her life! In many homes this means lifting 92 tons of wet laundry, walking 45 miles, and making 1,176,000 motions each year as she washes, dries, and irons the clothes and linens.

Home economists of Whirlpool Corporation, world's largest manufacturer of home laundry appliances, decided to find out just how much a woman gains by using modern home laundry equipment. Applying the same basic scientific methods used to reduce time and motion in the factory, where every lost minute or movement means lost dollars, the economists repeatedly followed housewives through the job of doing the washing.

They were as thorough in their time studies as their engineer associates would have been in testing time and motion required to cover an automatic dryer with gleaming white enamel. They did the testing twice. The first time, the housewife used an electric wringer washer, an old fashioned clothesline, and a hand iron. The next time, she breezed through the test with an automatic washer, clothes dryer and electric ironer.

The results were astounding. Working time was cut by 60 per cent; but that wasn't the entire story. The tons of weight lifting—of dripping clothes, heavy laundry baskets, and the weight of the iron—dropped from 92 tons to two and a half tons!

Almost as spectacular was the difference in distance walked in each method of doing the laundry. The old-fashioned way took 45 miles. This included steps from the machine to the rinse tubs, from the laundry room out to the yard, from one end of the clothesline to the other and back again. But, it also took into account the steps from the ironing board to the rack where the freshly-ironed clothes and linens were hung. With a modern laundry consisting of an automatic washer, clothes dryer and ironer, the miles were cut from 45 to two and a half!

Finally, the economists found that the number of manual motions was cut from 1,176,000 to 453,000.

It is the wise bride today who knows her own strength. Who knows that her real strength lies in building a home, not in exerting needless manual labor which, in many cases, not only results in wrecking her health but also her home.

Play Safe, Install A Circuit Breaker In Your Home

There's a little box in your basement which guards you and your appliances. It's stamped "FUSES," and should be stamped "TEMPTATION." It's so easy to replace a blown fuse with one of higher amperage or with a bit of metal. Oh, yes, you'll get power. You'll also most certainly burn out an appliance or burn down your house.

Play safe—have a circuit-breaker installed. When it trips under overload, return the control handle to "on." If it continues to trip, call an electrician. He's less expensive than the fire department.

Be Snug As Bug All Year 'Round

There are two ways to keep warm at night, no matter what the outside temperature.

The first involves keeping a large, well-stocked closet of blankets in your room, and someone willing to put them on the bed and yank them off again as temperatures change.

The second, more practical method, is to purchase an electric sheet or blanket. Interlaced with fine, insulated heating wires which serve as a heating element, and thermostatically controlled, your all-weather covering will keep you comfortable at all times.

Fan Keeps Closets Fresh

When your closets begin to smell musty, as happens in the best-kept homes, you can freshen them quickly and easily with the aid of a electric fan.

Set the fan in the doorway so that it faces into the closet. If the closet has no window, open a window in the adjoining room and turn on the fan.

For closets which do have windows, reverse the fan's position—so that it faces outward—and open the window. This method will pull in fresh air from outdoors and have the closet smelling "airy" fn a jiffy.

Manufacturer Shows Advantages With Use Of Deep Freeze Units

The average homemaker might find it profitable to take a lesson from her butcher on how long unfrozen meats can be stored in the regular food compartment of her household refrigerator without spoiling, or losing quality.

Contrary to popular belief, the refrigerated "storage life" of all types of meat is not the same. The safe storage period of certain types of meat can vary as much as from two to 40 days, if kept in the regular food compartment of the refrigerator.

According to experts on food refrigeration, homemakers should, whenever possible, freeze meats for long storage periods.

A good storage rule to follow is this: "when in doubt, freeze the meat."

Recent tests conducted by a manufacturer with the food compartment of a household refrigerator maintaining 38 degrees (F) proved that the average safe storage period for fresh, unfrozen hamburger was about four days, while beefsteak stored in the same refrigerator had a safe storage life of about eight days. Therefore, if the homemaker expects hamburger to keep as long as steak, she is bound to be disappointed.

Some o the more perishable beef items such as liver and heart, have an even shorter storage life. The average storage time for heart was two days and liver ranged from two to six days. A rib roast of beef showed that it could be safely stored for over ten days.

The safe refrigerated storage period for lamb and veal was about six days as far as chops and cutlets were concerned. However, veal kidneys had a safe storage life of only about two days. Approximate safe storage times for other meats were found to be:

Chicken, seven to nine days; sausage, seven days; chops, three to five days; frankfurters, eight to nine days; ham, twenty-five days; sliced bacon, twenty-six days, and smoked tongue, forty days.

More perishable meats such as liver and hamburger should be stored in the freezing compartment of a refrigerator if the homemaker does not plan to cook them within a day or so after purchase.

Gas, Electric Devices Cited As Work Savers

Character references for the new mechanical servants designed to take over the heavy housework in kitchen and laundry are just about as impressive as a particular homemaker could ask for.

They include efficiency, a thrifty concern for the family's dollar, quiet operation, an ability to work without constant supervision, no back talk and few, if any, bad habits.

Add to these such physical facts as neatness and tasteful design, and it's no wonder they coax you to think seriously of hiring them.

Although there is no lack of de luxe models available this spring, it heartens the thrifty shopper to note the emphasis on high-quality design and performance in lower-priced models. Manufacturers are making a great effort to provide for every housekeeping need and for every family's personal requirements.

What's "Cooking"

In stoves, for example, one finds emphasis on design. Gas or electric, there are some with extra-wide ovens. One model, 30 inches wide, for instance, will take care of the biggest family turkey with room to spare. Or, smaller double ovens with individual controls accommodate fast- and slow-baking times simultaneously.

The back panels are inching upwards, which puts some controls within easier reach, cuts down on splattered walls.

One stove builds in an ozone air refresher to reduce kitchen odors, another builds in a gas heater to warm up the kitchen. Storage space in stoves has a better-planned look. In one model doors open and a rack with hooks slides out for utensils or pans to eliminate the jumble of drawer storage.

Color is splashed around to greater extent and with a custom-made look. You can choose the color of stove handles on one gas range from a bright list including yellow, turquoise, flamingo.

On electric ranges, you get your choice of colored trim on the back control panel. Built-in burner tops and ovens gleam with a soft antique copper finish.

Refrigerators, too, are brightened up by copper trim, by colored interiors. From the design standpoint the guiding rule for refrigerators seems to be a place for everything and everything in its place.

Doors are deeper to allow more door-shelf space for specific storage. Neatly compartmented nooks for cheese, butter, eggs, beverage bottles, meats and so on, are labeled so you can't miss them. One refrigerator has a cold-water bottle inside and a dispensing tap on the outside.

In the interest of greater convenience, another new refrigerator has a spectacular door that opens to left or right. A V-shaped handle in the midle tips one way to release catches on the left, or the other way to release catches on the right.

No "Freeze" On Progress

Improvements in refrigeration techniques have stepped up the "automatic features in all lines and most models. Many require no defrosting at all and some don't even have controls.

Although freezer chests built into refrigerators answer the needs of many families, the demand for separate home freezers has resulted in several new models. These range from a compact four-cubic-foot model which holds 150 pounds of food and could fit easily into a kitchen, to a mammoth 20-cubic-foot upright freezer. Both chest and upright freezers boast the color touches you see on refrigerators.

Hand-in-glove with more home cooking has come new garbage disposing units. One new disposer that fits into the sink is lower in cost than previous models, is easier to install and has reversible cutter blades for a longer life.

America's Food-Buying Habits Are Being Changed Through Extensive Use Of Home Deep Freezers

American women, according to a recent survey, are adding new freezer space in their homes at the rate of 162 million cubic feet each year.

For storage in these 1,200,000 home food freezers they are buying food in quantity at the rate of $2.5 billion per year.

But the statistics of today show only part of the picture. For while householders are buying both upright and chest-type freezers, new plans are in the works that may revolutionize the whole industry.

A look into the engineering laboratories reveals that theories and models are tending toward:

1. A refrigerator built into the breakfast table that puts morning food at your finger tips.
2. A two-door freezing cabinet that will share the berth next to your standard refrigerator in the kitchen.
3. An air conditioning unit that will be built into the wall, or become the wall, finished to match the rest of the room.

Today, however, the housewife is still deciding whether or not it's the upright or horizontal freezer she wants. A poll of her and her sisters shows that they want their freezer in the kitchen, with the food at hand.

A look at production plans of the major manufacturers, though, shows that the upright model is at present gaining in popularity for it economizes in floor space without sacrificing cubic-footage.

The general run of freezers today—Philco, Frigidaire, Westinghouse, General Electric—are packing as much storage space as possible in the home chest.

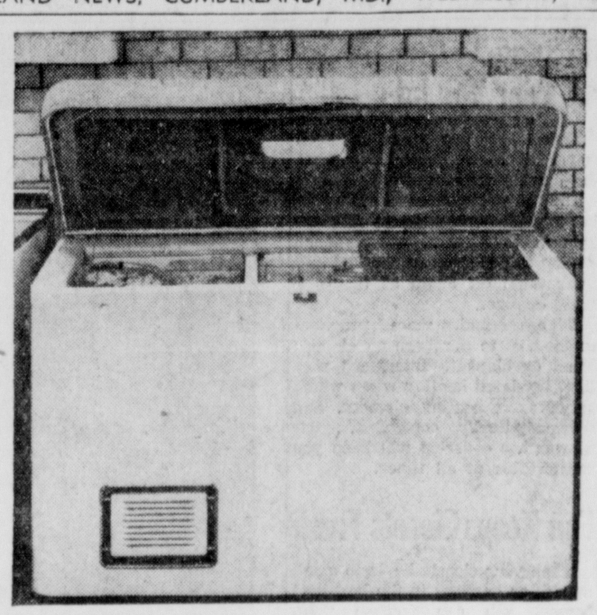
New racks, holders, and notched and adjustable shelves are making it easier to store, identify and remove any frozen food container.

Even sandwiches, complete dishes, soups—the whole meal in fact—all are provided for in today's freezer. Doors are being fitted out with storage space as at no other time. And new interior lighting is saving strain on women's eyes.

The new freezer designs, which make the unit practical for American homes, are changing the nation's food-buying habits.

According to one recent study, seven of every 10 freezer owners now buy sale-priced foods in larger than normal quantities. And three out of every four take advantage of seasonal specials—buying foods when they're plentiful on the market and not paying higher prices at a time when they're out of season.

And perhaps most revealing of all, 88 per cent of those questioned — nearly nine out of 10—liked frozen foods better than canned foods, and made their purchases accordingly.



PHILCO FREEZER—This chest model deep freeze has sliding shelves that make food selection easy. Most of the storage space is kept above knee level. Added equipment on this one: an alarm bell rings if power fails.

Automatic Washer Safer For Housewife

Those ads you read in the papers about automatic home laundry equipment usually stress convenience. They really ought to emphasize safety. Probably none of the modern marvels in today's home has eliminated more hazards for the homemaker.

Almost everyone knows of a neighbor who once mashed her finger in a wringer or tripped on the stairs with a bundle of wet clothes or of a haggard husband who nearly strangled himself at night on the clothesline in the yard or basement. And hot-water scalds are frequent in homes practicing old-fashioned laundry methods.

Although statistics on wringer accidents are not available newspaper clipping services will provide any skeptic with literally bushes of stories on wringer mishaps that occurred in any given period.

These safety hazards are just about eliminated by modern washday equipment—automatic washers, automatic dryers, or a combination of both in one unit.

In the days before automatics, homemakers had to puzzle over an apparent contradiction. They knew that the "hotter the water the whiter the wash." But they also knew from painful experience that hot wate scalded and burned. The automatic washer has eliminated this hazard.

Today, the homemaker's hands need never touch water. She can use water as hot as she chooses. And this is especially important in view of research conducted by the University of Michigan, which indicates that clothes must be washed at least three minutes in water at 145 degrees or more in order to kill bacteria present in the clothes.

Another potential hazard — the danger of electric shock—is no longer the threat it once was. With old-fashioned washers, the careless homemaker sometimes used to work on a wet basement floor, instead of standing on a raised wooden platform. Every now and then, someone reached for a light switch while standing in water and got a nasty shock. That doesn't happen with today's automatics.

Dryers have done a great deal more to get rid of germs and bacteria. Clothing dried outdoors on the line is a catch-all for airborne germs, soot and grime. It frequently dries harsh and stiff, and is often irritating to wear.

A dryer dries the clothes fluffily and softly. And some models even feature germicidal lamps, although their use isn't necessary if clothes are washed automatically at proper water temperatures.

Appliance makers now have built an even safer machine—a washer-dryer combination, all in one unit. With this amazing device, you can turn out "super-sanitary" laundry.

Plug-In Night Lights Prove Safety Factor

High on the list of most effective ways to break your neck is to stumble around the house at night without turning on a light—because you don't want to wake the family.

To guard you from just this danger, there's a new line of tiny, plug-in night lights on the market which sell for less than 50 cents apiece. Small, seven-watt bulbs will burn for several nights on a penny's worth of current. They're dim enough to let you sleep, but bright enough to let you see. The lamps can be placed in strategic spots, such as near stairways, the bathroom and the telephone table, and left to burn all night long.

Hotpoint Enters Built-In Range Market

A new "Customline" series of built-in electric ovens and surface units has been introduced by Hotpoint as an addition to the company's 1954 line of 39 inch and 30 inch ranges.

In announcing the new custom series, John F. McDaniel, vice president, marketing, said Hotpoint is entering the built-in range market to supply the growing trend to custom kitchens now developing in many sections of the country, particularly the far west and south. Customer demand for built-in ranges is still not large compared to standard 39 inch and 30 inch ranges now available, he said. But market studies conducted during the last five years show a definite trend to "personalized" kitchens as more families build new homes and modernize old kitchens, he said.

Styling, construction and use-value features of the new Hotpoint built-in range series closely follow style patterns established for the company's standard ranges, except that oven and surface unit sections can be purchased separately and installed separately in any convenient kitchen location.

The new "Customline" oven has a useable capacity of over 4900 cubic inches, 40 per cent larger than any other built-in oven now available and above standard 39 inch and 30 inch ranges. The complete oven front, including a two-position oven door, in stainless steel polished to a special satin finish, rated the most durable in the range industry.

A control panel below the oven door holds a horizontal grouping of time and heat switches. Lighted pushbuttons indicate oven heat settings for broil, bake, timed bake and off. A rotary switch controls oven temperatures from off to 550 degrees Fahrenheit. A timer control, integrated with a built-in electric clock, lets the user cook complete oven meals by remote control.

Other convenience features incorporated in the new built-in oven include an enclosed Calrod broiler for more delicate radiant heat control and a "Golden Bake" heating unit that circles the oven floor, increasing capacity and simplifying oven cleaning.

A surface section containing four heating units and control switches can be purchased separately as a companion piece to the built-in oven. This section measures 34 inches long by 20 inches wide and contains two heating units of 1250 watts each and 2 heating units of 2050 watts each. Finish of the surface section is stainless steel in a special satin finish to match the oven front.

As a result of home tests conducted by Hotpoint for finger-tip convenience, the four surface units are arranged in a semi-circle with the two smaller units in the rear position and the two utility units in front. Heat control switches for all four units are grouped in a similar pattern in the center of the built-in section. All heating units use new small-diameter enclosed elements that are 15% faster and more efficient. These units give a marked gain in cooking speed because of smaller diameter and greater utensil contact.

This Hotpoint engineering advance contrasts with other "fast" units that short circuit 220 volts through a fragile 115 volt heating element to get quick heat.

One additional convenience feature found only on Hotpoint built-in surface unit sections is a separate indicator light located below each surface unit. These indicator lights automatically tell the user even from across the room which unit is in operation.

Because of new mass-production and marketing methods, built-in electric range components no longer are restricted to high-priced kitchens, McDaniel said. Families in the $8,000 per year income bracket and up can now afford the convenience and flexibility of a custom kitchen, he said. In addition to an increasing demand for built-in units from families building new homes, thousands of apartment owners, especially those on cooperative agreements, are buying built-in oven and surface unit sections. Other families who already own standard electric ranges but need extra cooking facilities for growing families or entertaining are also buying built-in units.

Installations vary with family size and kitchen construction, but most families install built-in ovens flush with the kitchen wall or incorporated as a distinct part of the kitchen cabinet arrangement. Ovens are usually installed at eye level but can be installed at any height desired. Surface heating units can be set in counter tops adjacent to the oven or in some cases completely across the kitchen in islands, extended snack bars or storage peninsulas. This gives full utilization of cabinet storage space below the oven and surface units.

When additional units are desired, another oven or another range surface unit section can be added.

Freeze Food 'By The Book'

Your home freezer will keep a year-'round supply of delicacies on hand for you, if you do just two things. Follow the manufacturer's instructions for operation of the freezer, and observe his, or a good cookbook's advice on preparation of food.

Here are cardinal points to keep in mind:

1. Choose only top-quality foods suitable for freezing.
2. Prepare the fresh food quickly, to preserve its vitamin and mineral content.
3. Chill foods before freezing, with the exception of fresh fruits, which may be popped right in the freezer at room temperature. Scalded vegetables should be cooled with ice water before freezing.
4. Pack in meal-size portions. Label packages carefully. No one wants to eat a "wonder" (Wonder what it is?) meal.
5. Freeze as soon as possible after preparation.

Read Temperature Inside, Outside

You can now keep an accurate check on the temperature of your home freezer without having to open it. A new type thermometer hangs on the wall beside the freezer and is connected by a flexible metal capillary tube to a temperature-sensitive bulb which hangs inside the freezer.

The instrument is easily mounted on the well by key-hole slots on the back of the case. It gives a clear view of the metal scale, which ranges from 40 degres below zero to 70 degrees above. And for fast reading, it is divided at the zero mark into light and dark green shades.

REFRIGERATOR-FREEZER—Top deluxe single door combination refrigerator-freezer for 1954 introduced by Hotpoint Company is an 11.5 cubic foot model with a separate food freezer which holds 74 pounds of frozen foods. For the first time, Hotpoint is offering the customer a choice of either all white or a light pastel green colored interior on all 1954 models. Other features of this 11.5 cubic foot model include a swing-out meat tray, foil dispenser for either waxed paper or aluminum foil for ease of wrapping left-overs, sliding rust-proof aluminum shelves that slide out for accessibility of foods, and all rounded interior corners for ease of cleaning.

Automatic Dishwashers Gain Wider Acceptance In Smaller Families

Automatic dishwashers, long considered a "luxury" kitchen appliance, are gaining wider acceptance each month with middle and low income families. Equally important, smaller families are now buying dishwashing machines.

Strong indications of this growing dishwasher acceptance were found by Hotpoint Company in a recently-completed market study. Panel reports for late 1953, based on hundreds of personal interviews, show that more families in middle and low income groups are now buying dishwashers than at any other time in the history of this appliance. Company officials predict that if this buying trend continues to grow, almost 7 million American homes will have this labor-saving appliances by 1964.

When compared to 1952, these market reports show that eight times as many families earning $3,600 or less a year are now buying dishwashers. In the same period, purchases of these machines by middle income families have increased 25 per cent.

According to Hotpoint officials, mobile dishwashers introduced in recent years for apartments and rented homes, have helped stimulate consumer interest by all income groups. Since these mobile models require no special plumbing or installation, many more families have been able to "try out" a dishwasher at home. As a result of first-hand or neighborhood experience with automatic dishwashing, homemakers and entire families have been convinced that these time and labor-saving "electric servants" can efficiently take over one of the most disagreeable housekeeping chores.

Additional studies by Hotpoint on time, labor and money needed for hand-dishwashing and automatic dishwashing show that an automatic dishwasher costs less than five cents an hour to operate and can save the average housewife up to 10 hours of work a week. These figures are based on the fact that the average homemaker has to wash about 340 tons of dirty dishes in her normal lifetime.

Other changes in American family life have helped increase public demand for dishwashers. First came the almost complete disappearance of "Bridget," the family maid, from the household scene. Then, during World War II and continuing today, millions of women have taken jobs in factories and offices to increase family income. This quickened pace has placed a growing premium on automatic equipment that helps cut down time required for kitchen chores. Another home appliance, pushed into the limelight, is the food freezer that lets the homemaker plan ahead and cut shopping trips to a minimum.

To most American families, the automatic dishwasher is a relatively new appliance. Actually its history goes back to 1860 when the first patents were issued. Since that time hundreds of improvements in operation and appearance have been made. These include modern styling in white enamel, sliding, two-position racks, electric drying and dual detergent dispensers that assure spotless glasses and silver under practically all operating conditions.

Full Color Now Being Used By Frigidaire

A brilliant new line of household refrigerators and electric ranges with exteriors finished in full color as well as conventional white, have been unveiled here by Frigidaire and The Potomac Edison Co.

The new colored products are being mass-produced in two distinctive pastel shades—rich Stratford yellow and cool Sherwood green. The colored refrigerators have matching interiors and the white models also have new full-color styling inside.

Announcement of the 1954 appliances was made by The Potomac Edison Company, local Frigidaire dealer. In discussing the new products they reported three significant trends affecting the design of refrigerators today:

1. We obviously are moving into a new era of colorful living. Color-conscious Americans are buying bright automobiles and clothes, and there is a growing demand for more color in kitchens, dictated in part by modern home design.

2. Modern living has created a demand for refrigerators of larger capacity. In answe., Frigidaire has included 13 and 15-cubic-foot food freezer-refrigerator combinations in its new line. The latter is particularly striking in appearance, with two full-length vertical doors.

3. Finally, homemakers are demanding more and more food storage convenience. Frigidaire has developed a number of new features for 1954 which virtually place the refrigerator's contents at the homemakers fingertips.

Cycla-matic food freezer-refrigerator combinations are produced with colored cabinets in three sizes, including models with storage capacities of 8.4, 10.3 and 13 cubic feet. These new models with pastel cabinets are available with either Dulux or porcelain finish.

Four porcelain-finished ranges, including three top Imperial models and a 30-inch range, have colored exteriors, which match the refrigerators.

Other products making up the 1954 Frigidaire line include electric ranges, chest-type food freezers, an automatic clothes washer, automatic electric Filtramatic dryers, an electric ironer, water heaters, an electric dehumidifier and window room air conditioners.

NEW GENERAL ELECTRIC RANGE NOW IN PRODUCTION — This is General Electric's new addition to their 1954 line of outstanding electric ranges. It's an economy model, offering deluxe features at a new low budget price. General Electric's complete '54 line features eight models consisting of deluxe Stratoliner range to the compact 24" apartment size Spacemaker.

Scientists estimate that the maximum age to which a human being can live is between 112 and 115 years.

Kelvinator Features New Washer

A new automatic washer with a unique laundering action that is gentle with fine fabrics yet effective on the heaviest soil, has been added to the Kelvinator family of home appliances this year.

Features that make the new washer unusually effective are "shampoo" washing, "x-centric" agitation and overflow rinsing.

With these features, the new Kelvinator gets the dirtiest of clothes really clean, yet is so gentle that even the finest fabrics can be washed with complete confidence.

Washing in the new Kelvinator automatic starts in rich creamy suds, with the tub only half full of water. This produces a shampooing action that loosens dirt in even the grimiest of clothes. As water slowly continues to fill the tub, the fabrics are flexed up and down and around by the agitator, and gently rubbed and squeezed by large rubber fins, as soft and pliable as hands.

The agitator pivots steadily in an off-center circle, without thrashing clothes back and forth. As the clothes are flexed from the bottom upward and down again, the rubber fins rub and squeeze them to loosen dirt and rinse it away, similar to the action of hand-washing.

$25,000 Home Is Top Prize By Kelvinator

A $25,000 contemporary home is the top prize in a new national contest, open to every American family, according to local Kelvinator dealers.

The $25,000 home is one of 1,181 prizes, worth a total of $75,000, being offered by Kelvinator in its second annual "Homemaker's Holiday" contest. Contest theme is the holiday from former arduous, time-killing chores made possible in the home by modern electrical appliances.

The first prize is a ranch-type three-bedroom "Holiday House," featuring a new type of room for family living that includes kitchen, dining, laundry and recreation areas. The winner may choose the house award, which includes $3,000 cash toward the purchase of a suitable lot, or $25,000 in cash.

Other awards are five second prizes of $1,000 each, 75 awards of Kelvinator appliances, 100 prizes of $100 each, and 1,000 prizes of $10 each.

All residents of the United States except company employes are eligible for the contest, which runs from Easter Sunday through midnight July Fourth.

Designed by Charles M. Goodman, noted Washington, D. C. architect, the "Holiday House" is a one-story ranch house of contemporary design, introducing a new concept in informal living.

"The living center of the home is a large L-shaped family room that incorporates a fabulous holiday kitchen. In addition there is a large formal living room with fireplace and built in woodbox; three full-size bedrooms grouped into a sleeping wing; complete bath and extra lavatory; and a carport and workroom separated from the rest of the house by a covered breezeway.

"For privacy, the house partially encloses a garden court to the rear, away from the street. Extensive use of glass walls and doors along the inner sides of the house helps to make the garden court part of the living area, and a homemaker from her holiday kitchen can survey her family at work or play, inside or out, at a glance."

The holiday kitchen is L-shaped in arrangement, and stands at the corner of the large L formed by the family room. The kitchen area has two walls, one including an 11-cubic-foot automatic defrosting refrigerator, sink and storage cabinets, the other including an 18-cubic-foot upright freezer and storage cabinets.

The electric range stands as an island, surrounded by a breakfast bar. Other Kelvinator appliances in the home include an automatic washer, dryer and ironer in a laundry area nearby in the family room, a garbage disposal unit and a room air conditioner.

WORKS AUTOMATIC 40-HOUR WEEK—The new 1954 Crosley air conditioners not only automatically heat or cool the room to desired temperatures but they also can be pre-set to operate for a whole season only at needed hours and on needed days. A reverse cycle that operates automatically off a built-in thermostat, switches the operation from cooling to heating in case the room gets too cold or to take off the chill on cool spring or fall mornings. A seven-day timing device permits operation only on needed days at needed hours, thus cutting operating costs by as much as two-thirds.

Adventure For You On Every Inch Of Recorder Tape

Owning a tape recorder is like carrying on a never-ending experiment. You'll always be finding new ways to use the device.

Favorite uses of present owners are almost as many as the owners. Businessmen employ the machine to polish up sales addresses and housewives make extra cash at home by typing business letters which have been taped. Home-movie addicts record their own sound tracks. And a favorite use everywhere is making a permanent sound album of family occasions.

Newest models are light and compact, easily operated. One has an airplane-luggage carrying case; it records and plays up to two hours on a single reel of tape.

New Kitchens Easy To Install

On a list of a woman's frustrated dreams, "modernizing" her kitchen would probably rank pretty high.

The reason in many cases is not that it's too expensive, but that being "torn up" while the work is done — often for several days — seems to be too much trouble.

Like most problems, however, this one has a solution. By buying the kitchen already made the bulk of the job can be finished in hours.

Several leading firms now offer all-steel kitchen cabinet and sink units that can be installed simply and quickly. If you can hang a picture, or move furniture into place, you can put in the wall and base units with no professional help.

Available in many sizes, the cabinets can be fitted snugly into almost any space. Most dealers will be happy to supply you with instructions for planning your own best layout. Some will offer to plan it for you.

Just because the cabinets are steel doesn't mean they have to be cold-looking. Many makers now offer a wide variety of decorator colors to conform to your favorite color scheme. And the stain-resistant baked enamel, besides being easier to clean, will outlast the paint on wooden cabinets.

Some new wall units have sliding glass doors, handy appliance outlets and fluorescent lighting to illuminate underneath work surfaces. And for real convenience, there's the automatic sink, with built-in dishwasher and disposal unit.

Do Your Sewing In The Kitchen

There's a trend toward sewing in the kitchen, according to several surveys. And makers of sewing machines are making the most of the trend by redesigning their products to blend with the rest of the kitchen equipment.

Grip-Snip Handy

If there are many little jobs around the house you could do but don't have the proper tool, then get yourself a Grip-Snip. This handy gadget is a plier, a wrench and a powerful wire cutter. It'll exert pressure even in awkward places.

Food Will Stay Fresh Despite Power Failure

A thought that can chill any homemaker who owns or wants to own a food freezer is "what will happen to my food if a storm cuts off my electric service?"

According to refrigeration experts, there's really little cause for alarm. They point out, first of all, that a shut-off for many hours has been a definite rarity. And, second, your freezer has been designed to cope with such emergencies.

Electric suppliers across the nation are equipped to restore service quickly and efficiently at all times. And until they do, a properly insulated freezer with a well-sealed lid or door will keep food frozen for as long as two days without operating.

Experts have found that frozen food in a well-filled modern freezer of 12 to 36 cubic foot capacity is safe for about five days. It may thaw in less than that time, but usually will not begin to spoil.

In cases where the freezer must be shut off for long periods of time, as when moving, the lid should be opened only when absolutely necessary; otherwise the warm room air will get inside.

If the shut-off period will reach a critical stage, use dry ice to keep the foods frozen. Fifty pounds will keep the temperature down to 15 degrees for two days in the freezer of average size.

But never use ordinary "wet" ice. It will damage your food when it melts.

Cold-Box Twins Take Same Room As Kitchen Table

A refrigerator and a freezer, two separate appliances, can now be fitted in the same amount of space consumed by a small kitchen table.

One company has produced a matching set which occupies a total wall space of only 48 inches. The appliances are each waist-high and covered with plastic tops, which provide an extra work area of 7.5 cubic feet. Storage capacity is 9.8 cubic feet.

Whirlpool Laundry Appliances Help Save Much Time And Energy For Housewife

The average happy bride, who says "I do" so eagerly, might be somewhat less cheerful if she realized she was facing a sentence of five and a half years of hard labor. She is pledging, indirectly, to do the family washing for the rest of her life! In many homes this means lifting 92 tons of wet laundry, walking 45 miles, and making 1,176,000 motions each year as she washes, dries, and irons the clothes and linens.

Home economists of Whirlpool Corporation, world's largest manufacturer of home laundry appliances, decided to find out just how much a woman gains by using modern home laundry equipment. Applying the same basic scientific methods used to reduce time and motion in the factory, where every lost minute or movement means lost dollars, the economists repeatedly followed housewives through the job of doing the washing.

They were as thorough in their time studies as their engineer associates would have been in testing time and motion required to cover an automatic dryer with gleaming white enamel. They did the testing twice. The first time, the housewife used an electric wringer washer, an old fashioned clothesline, and a hand iron. The next time, she breezed through the test with an automatic washer, clothes dryer and electric ironer.

The results were astounding. Working time was cut by 60 per cent; but that wasn't the entire story. The tons of weight lifting—of dripping clothes, heavy laundry baskets, and the weight of the iron—dropped from 92 tons to two and a half tons!

Almost as spectacular was the difference in distance walked in each method of doing the laundry. The old-fashioned way took 45 miles. This included steps from the machine to the rinse tubs, from the laundry room out to the yard, from one end of the clothesline to the other and back again. But, it also took into account the steps from the ironing board to the rack where the freshly-ironed clothes and linens were hung. With a modern laundry consisting of an automatic washer, clothes dryer and ironer, the miles were cut from 45 to two and a half!

Finally, the economists found that the number of manual motions was cut from 1,176,000 to 453,000.

It is the wise bride today who knows her own strength. Who knows that her real strength lies in building a home, not in exerting needless manual labor which, in many cases, not only results in wrecking her health but also her home.

Play Safe, Install A Circuit Breaker In Your Home

There's a little box in your basement which guards you and your appliances. It's stamped "FUSES," and should be stamped "TEMPTATION." It's so easy to replace a blown fuse with one of higher amperage or with a bit of metal. Oh, yes, you'll get power. You'll also most certainly burn out an appliance or burn down your house.

Play safe—have a circuit-breaker installed. When it trips under overload, return the control handle to "on." If it continues to trip, call an electrician. He's less expensive than the fire department.

Be Snug As Bug All Year 'Round

There are two ways to keep warm at night, no matter what the outside temperature.

The first involves keeping a large, well-stocked closet of blankets in your room, and someone willing to put them on the bed and yank them off again as temperatures change.

The second, more practical method, is to purchase an electric sheet or blanket. Interlaced with fine, insulated heating wires which serve as a heating element, and thermostatically controlled, your all-weather covering will keep you comfortable at all times.

Fan Keeps Closets Fresh

When your closets begin to smell musty, as happens in the best-kept homes, you can freshen them quickly and easily with the aid of a electric fan.

Set the fan in the doorway so that it faces into the closet. If the closet has no window, open a window in the adjoining room and turn on the fan.

For closets which do have windows, reverse the fan's position—so that it faces outward—and open the window. This method will pull in fresh air from outdoors and have the closet smelling "airy" in a jiffy.

Manufacturer Shows Advantages With Use Of Deep Freeze Units

The average homemaker might find it profitable to take a lesson from her butcher on how long unfrozen meats can be stored in the regular food compartment of her household refrigerator without spoiling, or losing quality.

Contrary to popular belief, the refrigerated "storage life" of all types of meat is not the same. The safe storage period of certain types of meat can vary as much as from two to 40 days, if kept in the regular food compartment of the refrigerator.

According to experts on food refrigeration, homemakers should, whenever possible, freeze meats for long storage periods.

A good storage rule to follow is this: "when in doubt, freeze the meat."

Recent tests conducted by a manufacturer with the food compartment of a household refrigerator maintaining 38 degrees (F) proved that the average safe storage period for fresh, unfrozen hamburger was about four days, while beefsteak stored in the same refrigerator had a safe storage life of about eight days. Therefore, if the homemaker expects hamburger to keep as long as steak, she is bound to be disappointed.

Some o the more perishable beef items such as liver and heart, have an even shorter storage life. The average storage time for heart was two days and liver ranged from two to six days. A rib roast of beef showed that it could be safely stored for over ten days.

The safe refrigerated storage period for lamb and veal was about six days as far as chops and cutlets were concerned. However, veal kidneys had a safe storage life of only about two days. Approximate safe storage times for other meats were found to be:

Chicken, seven to nine days; sausage, seven days; chops, three to five days; frankfurters, eight to nine days; ham, twenty-five days; sliced bacon, twenty-six days, and smoked tongue, forty days.

More perishable meats such as liver and hamburger should be stored in the freezing compartment of a refrigerator if the homemaker does not plan to cook them within a day or so after purchase.

Gas, Electric Devices Cited As Work Savers

Character references for the new mechanical servants designed to take over the heavy housework in kitchen and laundry are just about as impressive as a particular homemaker could ask for.

They include efficiency, a thrifty concern for the family's dollar, quiet operation, an ability to work without constant supervision, no back talk and few, if any, bad habits.

Add to these such physical facts as neatness and tasteful design, and it's no wonder they coax you to think seriously of hiring them.

Although there is no lack of de luxe models available this spring, it heartens the thrifty shopper to note the emphasis on high-quality design and performance in lower-priced models. Manufacturers are making a great effort to provide for every housekeeping need and for every family's personal requirements.

What's "Cooking"

In stoves, for example, one finds emphasis on design. Gas or electric, there are some with extra-wide ovens. One model, 30 inches wide, for instance, will take care of the biggest family turkey with room to spare. Or, smaller double ovens with individual controls accommodate fast- and slow-baking times simultaneously.

The back panels are inching upwards, which puts some controls within easier reach, cuts down on splattered walls.

One stove builds in an ozone air refresher to reduce kitchen odors, another builds in a gas heater to warm up the kitchen. Storage space in stoves has a better-planned look. In one model doors open and a rack with hooks slides out for utensils or pans to eliminate the jumble of drawer storage.

Color is splashed around to greater extent and with a custom-made look. You can choose the color of stove handles on one gas range from a bright list including yellow, turquoise, flamingo.

On electric ranges, you get your choice of colored trim on the back control panel. Built-in burner tops and ovens gleam with a soft antique copper finish.

Refrigerators, too, are brightened up by copper trim, by colored interiors. From the design standpoint the guiding rule for refrigerators seems to be a place for everything and everything in its place.

Doors are deeper to allow more door-shelf space for specific storage. Neatly compartmented nooks for cheese, butter, eggs, beverage bottles, meats and so on, are labeled so you can't miss them. One refrigerator has a cold-water bottle inside and a dispensing tap on the outside.

In the interest of greater convenience, another new refrigerator has a spectacular door that opens to left or right. A V-shaped handle in the midle tips one way to release catches on the left, or the other way to release catches on the right.

No "Freeze" On Progress

Improvements in refrigeration techniques have stepped up the "automatic features in all lines and most models. Many require no defrosting at all and some don't even have controls.

Although freezer chests built into refrigerators answer the needs of many families, the demand for separate home freezers has resulted in several new models. These range from a compact four-cubic-foot model which holds 150 pounds of food and could fit easily into a kitchen, to a mammoth 20-cubic-foot upright freezer. Both chest and upright freezers boast the color touches you see on refrigerators.

Hand-in-glove with more home cooking has come new garbage disposing units. One new disposer that fits into the sink is lower in cost than previous models, is easier to install and has reversible cutter blades for a longer life.

Westinghouse Corp. Enters Room Air-Conditioner Field

Returning to the room air conditioner field after an 11-year absence, the Westinghouse Electric Corporation has introduced its new line of room air conditioners.

Introducing the new line of window-type Westinghouse room air conditioners, H. F. Hildreth, manager of refrigeration specialties for the company's Electric Appliance Division, said, "The highly competitive nature of the room air conditioner field today demands that any company entering the field at this time must have a superior product. We believe the new Westinghouse line more than meets this requirement in both attractiveness and advanced engineering."

There are five models in the new Westinghouse line, ranging from ½ to 1½ horsepower. Push-button comfort controls on the three Deluxe models provide a choice of 10 comfort zones, while dial-type controls on the two Special models have six settings. All are equipped with draft-free grilles that are individually adjustable to direct the flow of conditioned air up, down, left, right or combinations of directions. To give year-round use, heating elements are built into the ¾ and 1 horsepower Deluxe models, and thermostats are standard equipment on all Deluxe models.

With a smooth, sleek outside appearance to harmonize with contemporary furniture, all models in the Westinghouse room air conditioner line boast of concealed controls that are easily accessible at a no-stoop level beneath the cabinet lid. Color used in all cabinets is two-tone rose beige.

"In deciding upon a cabinet design," continued Mr. Hildreth, "we have aimed for a design that would blend with any decor or motif in today's homes. From an engineering standpoint too, we believe the Westinghouse line will solve the air conditioning problems in 95 per cent of all home and office applications."

1½ HP Deluxe Model Tops 1954 Room Air Conditioner Line

Heading the Westinghouse 1954 room air conditioner line is the 1½ HP Deluxe model.

Push-button controls provide six comfort conditions. A built-in thermostat provides automatic regulation.

Zones for cool and dehumidify conditions include "full cool" setting for removing up to 30 quarts of moisture from the room air every day; "cool and ventilate" to bring in outside air which has been filtered, dehumidified and cooled; and "cool and exhaust" to pump out stale, smoky air and at the same time maintain a dry, cool comfort zone.

Ventilating comfort control settings provide: "fresh air" to bring in filtered air and no-draft room ventilation; "stale air out" to expel stale, smoky air and cooking odors; and "circulate" to provide constant circulation and filtering.

Four grilles can be individually adjusted to direct the flow of conditioned air up, down, right or left, as desired.

This model wil cool a room with a floor area up to 850 square feet. The blower and fan motor is powered with a two-speed one-ninth horsepower shaded pole motor.

ELECTRIC BLENDER has two speeds, will handle more than 75 dishes hitherto impossible to make with ordinary one-speed blenders. This versatile kitchen helper can perform all types of grinding, chopping, grating, blending, liquefying jobs; is excellent, too, as a drink-mixer. Low center of gravity keeps it always stationary. Clover leaf Pyrex container is resistant to heat and cold.

PORTABLE COOKING appliance will fry, broil, grill and toast—and bake waffles, too. Large cooking surface (190 square inches) holds 16 hamburgers, eight pancakes, four full-sized toasted sandwiches, four big waffles, or enough bacon and eggs for a family breakfast. Heating up kitchen range for breakfast, lunch and between-times snacks becomes a forgotten, unnecessary chore.

Refrigerator Has Two-Way Doors

A spanking-new something for refrigerators is the two-way-opening door.

Introduced by Philco as part of its '54 line, the two-way door does just what the name implies—it opens to right or to left, to suit your convenience.

Besides the convenience angle, the door does away with kitchen planning problems of whether to buy a refrigerator equipped with a right-handed or left-handed door. You can place the refrigerator anywhere.

The next door is hailed by the manufacturer as a great engineering achievement. It marks the first practical application of the "double hinge" principle on an appliance, they say.

The mechanism is operated by a center-mounted V-shaped handle. Under no circumstances can both hinged sides be released at the same time.

A roll-out shelf for small items makes them easily accessible. And temperatures in the freezer can be dropped to 20 below for sharp freezing action.

WHIRLPOOL APPLIANCES—The new Whirlpool Imperial washer presents a raft of work-saving devices. Automatic water filling (even at low pressure), a three temperature water selector with fabric indicator, an automatic water level selector and a delicate fabric washing cycle provide the desired conditions for washing a particular load with the flick of a dial. A colored guide light indicates the progress of the wash from start to finish. And the suds-miser, available if desired, saves soap and water for re-use on a second-or-third load. The Imperial dryer (gas or electric) is just as complete in saving time and work. Full range heat control makes possible the correct drying temperatures for nylons and woolens—and any weight and weave in between. A delicate fabric control provides the proper drying temperature for the new synthetics. And a guide light similar to the one on the washer reports progress of the drying down the line. A built-in lint screen is introduced in this new model. Located on top of the cabinet, it is easy to clean. A convenient interior light turns on and off with the opening and closing of the dryer door.

Food Mixers Tackle Multitude Of Tasks

If food mixers get any more versatile, they'll soon be demanding full-time servants' wages. Attachments have steadily been added to make each of these popular sellers many appliance in one.

Some new models have special attachments for each of the following jobs: opening cans, freezing ice cream, polishing silver, slicing and chopping vegetables, grating and shredding, extracting juice, adding oils and syrups, and shelling peas.

Foil Food Spoilage With Built-In Aluminum Foil

As many housewives have already learned, wrapping foods in aluminum foil is an excellent protective measure. It speeds cooling, prevents loss of flavor and stops dehydration.

To help encourage the practice by making it more convenient, a new refrigerator, made by Hotpoint, has a foil dispenser built into its door.

Well-Serviced Fan Lasts For Years

Here's how to prepare a fan for storage: First, make sure it's disconnected. Then wipe the blades, wire frame, and base with a sudsy cloth, well wrung out. Repeat with a clean damp cloth, and wipe dry. Draw the electric cord, if of the rubber variety, through a soapy cloth or sponge, then through the folds of a dry cloth.

Wrap the fan well in a cloth cover, or in a piece of transparent plastic, and store it in a dry place.

Hotpoint Enters Built-In Range Market

A new "Customline" series of built-in electric ovens and surface units has been introduced by Hotpoint as an addition to the company's 1954 line of 39 inch and 30 inch ranges.

In announcing the new custom series, John F. McDaniel, vice president, marketing, said Hotpoint is entering the built-in range market to supply the growing trend to custom kitchens now developing in many sections of the country, particularly the far west and south. Customer demand for built-in ranges is still not large compared to standard 39 inch and 30 inch ranges now available, he said. But market studies conducted during the last five years show a definite trend to "personalized" kitchens as more families build new homes and modernize old kitchens, he said.

Styling, construction and use-value features of the new Hotpoint built-in range series closely follow style patterns established for the company's standard ranges, except that oven and surface unit sections can be purchased separately and installed separately in any convenient kitchen location.

The new "Customline" oven has a useable capacity of over 4900 cubic inches, 40 per cent larger than any other built-in oven now available and above standard 39 inch and 30 inch ranges. The complete oven front, including a two-position oven door, in stainless steel polished to a special satin finish, rated the most durable in the range industry.

A control panel below the oven door holds a horizontal grouping of time and heat switches. Lighted pushbuttons indicate oven heat settings for broil, bake, timed bake and off. A rotary switch controls oven temperatures from off to 550 degrees Fahrenheit. A timer control, integrated with a built-in electric clock, lets the user cook complete oven meals by remote control.

Other convenience features incorporated in the new built-in oven include an enclosed Calrod broiler for more delicate radiant heat control and a "Golden Bake" heating unit that circles the oven floor, increasing capacity and simplifying oven cleaning.

A surface section containing four heating units and control switches can be purchased separately as a companion piece to the built-in oven. This section measures 34 inches long by 20 inches wide and contains two heating units of 1250 watts each and 2 heating units of 2050 watts each. Finish of the surface section is stainless steel in a special satin finish to match the oven front.

As a result of home tests conducted by Hotpoint for finger-tip convenience, the four surface units are arranged in a semi-circle with the two smaller units in the rear position and the two utility units in front. Heat control switches for all four units are grouped in a similar pattern in the center of the built-in section. All heating units use new small-diameter enclosed elements that are 15% faster and more efficient. These units give a marked gain in cooking speed because of smaller diameter and greater utensil contact.

This Hotpoint engineering advance contrasts with other "fast" units that short circuit 220 volts through a fragile 115 volt heating element to get quick heat.

One additional convenience feature found only on Hotpoint built-in surface unit sections is a separate indicator light located below each surface unit. These indicator lights automatically tell the user even from across the room which unit is in operation.

Because of new mass-production and marketing methods, built-in electric range components no longer are restricted to high-priced kitchens, McDaniel said. Families in the $8,000 per year income bracket and up can now afford the convenience and flexibility of a custom kitchen, he said. In addition to an increasing demand for built-in units from families building new homes, thousands of apartment owners, especially those on cooperative agreements, are buying built-in oven and surface unit sections. Other families who already own standard electric ranges but need extra cooking facilities for growing families or entertaining are also buying built-in units.

Installations vary with family size and kitchen construction, but most families install built-in ovens flush with the kitchen wall or incorporated as a distinct part of the kitchen cabinet arrangement. Ovens are usually installed at eye level but can be installed at any height desired. Surface heating units can be set in counter tops adjacent to the oven or in some cases completely across the kitchen in islands, extended snack bars or storage peninsulas. This gives full utilization of cabinet storage space below the oven and surface units.

When additional units are desired, another oven or another range surface unit section can be added.

Freeze Food 'By The Book'

Your home freezer will keep a year-'round supply of delicacies on hand for you, if you do just two things. Follow the manufacturer's instructions for operation of the freezer, and observe his, or a good cookbook's advice on preparation of food.

Here are cardinal points to keep in mind:

1. Choose only top-quality foods suitable for freezing.
2. Prepare the fresh food quickly, to preserve its vitamin and mineral content.
3. Chill foods before freezing, with the exception of fresh fruits, which may be popped right in the freezer at room temperature. Scalded vegetables should be cooled with ice water before freezing.
4. Pack in meal-size portions. Label packages carefully. No one wants to eat a "wonder" (Wonder what it is?) meal.
5. Freeze as soon as possible after preparation.

Read Temperature Inside, Outside

You can now keep an accurate check on the temperature of your home freezer without having to open it. A new type thermometer hangs on the wall beside the freezer and is connected by a flexible metal capillary tube to a temperature-sensitive bulb which hangs inside the freezer.

The instrument is easily mounted on the well by key-hole slots on the back of the case. It gives a clear view of the metal scale, which ranges from 40 degres below zero to 70 degrees above. And for fast reading, it is divided at the zero mark into light and dark green shades.

REFRIGERATOR-FREEZER—Top deluxe single door combination refrigerator-freezer for 1954 introduced by Hotpoint Company is an 11.5 cubic foot model with a separate food freezer which holds 74 pounds of frozen foods. For the first time, Hotpoint is offering the customer a choice of either all white or a light pastel green colored interior on all 1954 models. Other features of this 11.5 cubic foot model include a swing-out meat tray, foil dispenser for either waxed paper or aluminum foil for ease of wrapping left-overs, sliding rust-proof aluminum shelves that slide out for accessibility of foods, and all rounded interior corners for ease of cleaning.

Automatic Dishwashers Gain Wider Acceptance In Smaller Families

Automatic dishwashers, long considered a "luxury" kitchen appliance, are gaining wider acceptance each month with middle and low income families. Equally important, smaller families are now buying dishwashing machines.

Strong indications of this growing dishwasher acceptance were found by Hotpoint Company in a recently-completed market study. Panel reports for late 1953, based on hundreds of personal interviews, show that more families in middle and low income groups are now buying dishwashers than at any other time in the history of this appliance. Company officials predict that if this buying trend continues to grow, almost 7 million American homes will have this labor-saving appliances by 1964.

When compared to 1952, these market reports show that eight times as many families earning $3,600 or less a year are now buying dishwashers. In the same period, purchases of these machines by middle income families have increased 25 per cent.

According to Hotpoint officials, mobile dishwashers introduced in recent years for apartments and rented homes, have helped stimulate consumer interest by all income groups. Since these mobile models require no special plumbing or installation, many more families have been able to "try out" a dishwasher at home. As a result of first-hand or neighborhood experience with automatic dishwashing, homemakers and entire families have been convinced that these time and labor-saving "electric servants" can efficiently take over one of the most disagreeable housekeeping chores.

Additional studies by Hotpoint on time, labor and money needed for hand-dishwashing and automatic dishwashing show that an automatic dishwasher costs less than five cents an hour to operate and can save the average housewife up to 10 hours of work a week. These figures are based on the fact that the average homemaker has to wash about 340 tons of dirty dishes in her normal lifetime.

Other changes in American family life have helped increase public demand for dishwashers. First came the almost complete disappearance of "Bridget," the family maid, from the household scene. Then, during World War II and continuing today, millions of women have taken jobs in factories and offices to increase family income. This quickened pace has placed a growing premium on automatic equipment that helps cut down time required for kitchen chores. Another home appliance, pushed into the limelight, is the food freezer that lets the homemaker plan ahead and cut shopping trips to a minimum.

To most American families, the automatic dishwasher is a relatively new appliance. Actually its history goes back to 1860 when the first patents were issued. Since that time hundreds of improvements in operation and appearance have been made. These include modern styling in white enamel, sliding, two-position racks, electric drying and dual detergent dispensers that assure spotless glasses and silver under practically all operating conditions.

Brush-On Enamels Brighten Up Those Marred Appliances

Jane Doe, looking at her husband, says tearfully: "Either you buy new kitchen equipment or I'm going home to Mother."

And John Doe, sighing, says: "It just needs fixing, my love. I'll do it on Saturday."

In many cases, he's right. And in many cases he can be dead wrong. For a leaking gas line or a broken wire needs expert attention. And, like the wonderful one-hoss shay, the appliances may just be worn out and ready for replacement.

According to experts who make much of the equipment used to carry electrical power, many old ranges, ovens, griddles and other household helps can be a severe drain on the power lines and the pocketbook.

Gas industry spokesmen warn that expert care is necessary in repairing burners and gas lines. A phone call to your local utility office will bring immediate help.

But for the reconditioning of major kitchen appliances that have fallen heir to scorches, stains, heat-blackening and nicks, the man-of-the-house can make himself an expert.

It's all done with special—and available—paint and a paint brush. For laboratory developments have put heat-and-cold-resistant enamels on the market, suitable for home use, which are available in hues from pastel to high-fashion tints.

One of the manufacturers has a paint for each kitchen appliance, as well as for woodwork and walls. The heat-resistant enamel withstands temperatures as high as 400 degrees without peeling, cracking, blistering or discoloring. In most cases, the outside of the range or oven never reaches this temperature.

Usually, the appliance paints dry to a low luster if they are applied to a well-prepared surface, free of soap, grease and oil.

BRIGHTEN 'EM UP—Reconditioned appliances can revamp the kitchen. New paints withstand kitchen heat and splatter.

Ultra-Modern Theme Of Gas Appliances

The nation's housewives have prompted marked improvements in gas appliances over the past ten years.

No longer is the modern homemaker satisfied with an "adequate" performance by her gas range or water-heater. She insists upon, and the gas appliance manufacturers have readily provided, sleek, ultra-modern equipment that is clean, cool and efficient.

Today's gas ranges not only look smart, but they also feature fully-automatic controls, require a minimum of fuel and save the homemaker's time and energy.

Modern automatic gas water heaters are the result of today's home-maker's need for plenty of hot water. As a "must" in up-to-date homes, they are constructed to give years of carefree service at the most economical cost. There are several sizes available to supply clean hot water in the amount each family needs for household uses.

The automatic gas clothes dryer is, possibly one of the most outstanding appliance developments since World War II. In much less than one hour it is capable of drying an entire wash, thus eliminating the drudgery of hanging clothes in damp basements, or carrying a wet load of wash to the outdoors clothes line.

Tests have proved that clothes dry better, fade less and last longer with the gas dryer.

Ultra modern, the silent gas refrigerator makes ice cubes automatically without trays.

A growing problem today is the disposal of rubbish and refuse. But the gas industry has met the problem head-on and developed the gas-fired incinerator which has the situation "well in hand."

The biggest increase in the use of gas has been in home-heating. The demand has been so great since 1945, that gas companies have been unable to meet all their customer's requirements. But millions of dollars have been spent to build facilities to meet these sky-rocketing demands and those expenditures are resulting in the delivery of more and more gas to more and more gas-heated homes.

The gas industry and the American Gas Association have also developed an all-year heating and air-conditioning unit which gives year-round comfort at a moderate cost in a single unit.

Beat The Heat With The Use Of Attic Fans

When hot weather sails into town across the heat waves, Eskimo igloos look pretty good to sweltering home owners, who would gladly trade the conveniences in modern homes for one cool, comfortable night's sleep.

There are, of course, many ways to beat the heat short of glacier-hopping to far-off Arctic reaches. Here attic and window exhaust fans come highly recommended, as means of discharging the heat pent-up in homes during hot weather.

This much is obvious: a little perspiration spent now in installing an attic fan will save many a soggy night when hot, humid weather prevails.

Just as the modern furnace is a central heating system, the attic fan is, in effect, a central ventilating system. It keeps a constant flow of fresh air circulating through a house by forcing stale, dead air outside.

One of the most effective ways to use the attic fan for heat relief is in "night cooling." The fan is able to cool the house as much as 20 degrees at night because of the difference between outside and inside air temperatures after the sun goes down, according to the Propeller Fan Manufacturers' Association.

Without a ventilation system, houses retain the heat that has accumulated during the day and are likely to cool off no more than five degrees all night. In addition, the attic fan which has run during the night will cool the house so thoroughly that heat buildup the next day is substantially retarded.

The home owner handy with tools can install an attic fan without too much difficulty, but where to put it is the most important consideration.

In homes with finished and sealed attics, the fan may be placed to discharge directly to the outside through an existing window or other opening provided for this purpose.

In houses with unfinished attic space and low-pitched roofs, the fan should be placed in or near an opening in the attic floor, discharging to the outside through louvres. (It is important to follow the fan manufacturer's instructions as to size of the louvred opening. Too small an opening will impair the fan's efficiency.)

In the last-mentioned installation, the fan discharges vertically. A similar setup is to place a suction box over the floor opening with the fan in one end of the box. The fan then discharges horizontally—preferably toward the exhaust opening.

Exhaust fans can often be installed in basements — if basement windows are large enough to permit ample exhaust areas — or in adjoining garage walls or connected breezeways.

Dutch Oven Range Unusually Easy To Keep Sparkling Clean All Over

First on the lips of owners are praise, enthusiasm and appreciation for the ease of cleaning their Maytag Ranges. The entire top is a single unit with built-in, not built-on, burner bowls—no hard-to-clean cracks or grease-cracking crevices. Lift-out burners, removable parts and glass-smooth, bolt-free surfaces within the oven, the broiler and on every area of the range reduce cleaning to a simple operation. No other range is as easy to clean and keep clean.

Inadequate insulation, unsealed oven doors and open oven vents common on most ranges are wasters of fuel and foes to efficiency. However, on Maytag Ranges three revolutionary features bring heat loss under control (1) 41 pounds of extra-thick insulation holds heat inside the oven. (2) A compression-type seal, similar to weather stripping, surrounds the oven door and seals in heat when the oven door is closed. (3) A damper, mechanically linked to the oven valve, closes the vent when the oven is turned off. With heat so efficiently sealed in the oven your food cooks to perfection, your kitchen is cooler.

In harmony with any setting selected on the thermostat dial the massive-time-enduring, oven bottom plate completely floods the entire oven with a steady heat flow of uniform temperature. Pies, cakes and pastries bake to thrilling perfection. Simultaneously, the massive bottom plate serves as a reservoir for heat and working in combination with 41 pounds of super-insulation around the oven, the oven door seal and the damper-controlled vent, achieves true Dutch Oven efficiency.

Typical of Maytag advance engineering and design is the famous Dutch Cooker Well. This exclusive Maytag feature provides three-burner utility with single-burner operation. It releases the three top burners for other uses. Simmering, roasting, steaming, frying, braising, boiling and stewing are all simplified with this outstanding equipment. And, it is economical—entire meals are prepared with only a tiny low burner flame burning two-thirds of the actual cooking time.

Need Closet Space

You can put twice as much in your closets by using space-saving gadgets, specially designed racks for shoes, ties, hats, coats and trousers. They can be installed in a few minutes with only a screwdriver.

Do-It-Yourself And Save Money On Paint Bills

Anyone handy with a paint brush—or anyone willing to learn—can save himself money, gain satisfaction and have some fun by buying unfinished furniture and finishing it himself. And this includes the television set.

Some leading firms now cater to the large field of do-it-yourself fans by marketing a line of their regular TV receivers in unfinished wood. These sets are usually much cheaper in price than finished models.

With a clean brush, paints or stain, and a small amount of time, the sets can be made to match any decor. And there's great satisfaction in telling admiring guests that you've finished the set yourself.

Suds Away Batter

To clean the glass container of an electric blender after mixing a sticky batter, fill it about two thirds full of soapy water. Cover, turn on and let run a few seconds until no batter is visible on the inside surface.

Your Weather Is Made To Order By Using Room Air Conditioner

Room air conditioners, once the ugly ducklings of the appliance field, have had a beauty treatment in the last two years. Designers have proved these room units don't have to be duckbilled or buck-toothed.

As a result, and for several other reasons, also, room air conditioners are a hot sales item. They're hot because they're cool, for one thing. They are easily installed and the initial cost of each unit is comparatively low.

Major drawback of the room air conditioner used to be its ungainliness. At least half of the unit hung into the room over the window sill. This has been eliminated in most 1954 models and flush mounting is becoming the rule. One can be installed through a wall and built into bookcases and storage walls, among other applications.

Some new models will serve to both heat and cool a room, besides performing other duties for your comfort, such as filtering the air.

With all the different models available this year in air conditioning, appliance and department [illegible] here are some tips for people in the market for comfort:

Don't count on buying the smallest size unit in the beginning and advancing to the more powerful models. There is no well-developed trade-in market for room air conditioners at this time.

You will need a model sized for the particular room you plan to air condition or you won't get satisfactory results. A rough rule of thumb for what you'll need—assuming average rooms in your house—would be a ¾ to 1 h.p. unit for the living room, ½ to ¾ h.p. for the master bedroom and ⅓ to ½ h.p. for smaller bedrooms.

"Seagoing" Grill

If you've felt more like a slave than a master of yuor electric grill, because of all the do's and don'ts about keeping it clean and efficient, you'll want to hear about a new development. It's a grill attractive enough to go on the table for informal entertaining, and yet can go from there right into a dishpan full of hot soapsuds for thorough washing inside and out.

It features a new type of informal family living room that includes a fabulous "holiday" kitchen and dining, laundry and recreation space all in one large L-shaped area. In addition there are three bedrooms, bath and lavatory, large formal living room with fireplace and built-in woodbox, carport and workroom separated from the rest of the house by a covered breezeway, and an enclosed garden court. Kelvinator-equipped kitchen features a novel work-saving arrangement that includes refrigerator, freezer and clean-up "work centers," and an electric range and breakfast bar combined in a centrally-located "island." Contest information is available at any store handling Kelvinator appliances.

Full Color Now Being Used By Frigidaire

A brilliant new line of household refrigerators and electric ranges with exteriors finished in full color as well as conventional white, have been unveiled here by Frigidaire and The Potomac Edison Co.

The new colored products are being mass-produced in two distinctive pastel shades—rich Stratford yellow and cool Sherwood green. The colored refrigerators have matching interiors and the white models also have new full-color styling inside.

Announcement of the 1954 appliances was made by The Potomac Edison Company, local Frigidaire dealer. In discussing the new products they reported three significant trends affecting the design of refrigerators today:

1. We obviously are moving into a new era of colorful living. Color-conscious Americans are buying bright automobiles and clothes, and there is a growing demand for more color in kitchens, dictated in part by modern home design.

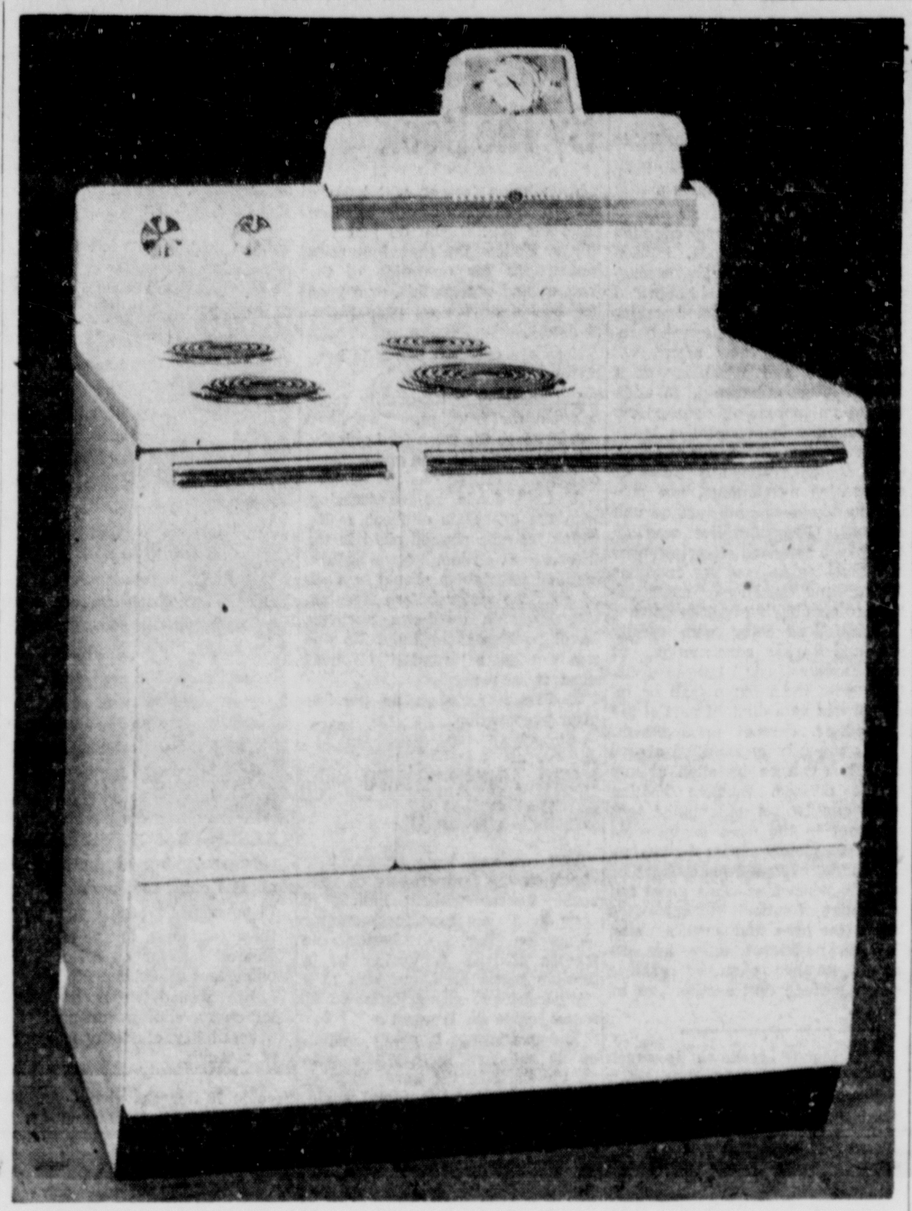
2. Modern living has created a demand for refrigerators of larger capacity. In answe., Frigidaire has included 13 and 15-cubic-foot food freezer-refrigerator combinations in its new line. The latter is particularly striking in appearance, with two full-length vertical doors.

3. Finally, homemakers are demanding more and more food storage convenience. Frigidaire has developed a number of new features for 1954 which virtually place the refrigerator's contents at the homemakers fingertips.

Cycla-matic food freezer-refrigerator combinations are produced with colored cabinets in three sizes, including models with storage capacities of 8.4, 10.3 and 13 cubic feet. These new models with pastel cabinets are available with either Dulux or porcelain finish.

Four porcelain-finished ranges, including three top Imperial models and a 30-inch range, have colored exteriors, which match the refrigerators.

Other products making up the 1954 Frigidaire line include electric ranges, chest-type food freezers, an automatic clothes washer, automatic electric Filtramatic dryers, an electric ironer, water heaters, an electric dehumidifier and window room air conditioners.



NEW GENERAL ELECTRIC RANGE NOW IN PRODUCTION — This is General Electric's new addition to their 1954 line of outstanding electric ranges. It's an economy model, offering deluxe features at a new low budget price. General Electric's complete '54 line features eight models consisting of deluxe Stratoliner range to the compact 24" apartment size Spacemaker.

Scientists estimate that the maximum age to which a human being can live is between 112 and 115 years.

Kelvinator Features New Washer

A new automatic washer with a unique laundering action that is gentle with fine fabrics yet effective on the heaviest soil, has been added to the Kelvinator family of home appliances this vear.

Features that make the new washer unusually effective are "shampoo" washing, "x-centric" agitation and overflow rinsing.

With these features, the new Kelvinator gets the dirtiest of clothes really clean, yet is so gentle that even the finest fabrics can be washed with complete confidence.

Washing in the new Kelvinator automatic starts in rich creamy suds, with the tub only half full of water. This produces a shampooing action that loosens dirt in even the grimiest of clothes. As water slowly continues to fill the tub, the fabrics are flexed up and down and around by the agitator, and gently rubbed and squeezed by large rubber fins, as soft and pliable as hands.

The agitator pivots steadily in an off-center circle, without thrashing clothes back and forth. As the clothes are flexed from the bottom upward and down again, the rubber fins rub and squeeze them to loosen dirt and rinse it away, similar to the action of hand-washing.

$25,000 Home Is Top Prize By Kelvinator

A $25,000 contemporary home is the top prize in a new national contest, open to every American family, according to local Kelvinator dealers.

The $25,000 home is one of 1,181 prizes, worth a total of $75,000, being offered by Kelvinator in its second annual "Homemaker's Holiday" contest. Contest theme is the holiday from former arduous, time-killing chores made possible in the home by modern electrical appliances.

The first prize is a ranch-type three-bedroom "Holiday House," featuring a new type of room for family living that includes kitchen, dining, laundry and recreation areas. The winner may choose the house award, which includes $3,000 cash toward the purchase of a suitable lot, or $25,000 in cash.

Other awards are five second prizes of $1,000 each, 75 awards of Kelvinator appliances, 100 prizes of $100 each, and 1,000 prizes of $10 each.

All residents of the United States except company employes are eligible for the contest, which runs from Easter Sunday through midnight July Fourth.

Designed by Charles M. Goodman, noted Washington, D. C. architect, the "Holiday House" is a one-story ranch house of contemporary design, introducing a new concept in informal living.

"The living center of the home is a large L-shaped family room that incorporates a fabulous holiday kitchen. In addition there is a large formal living room with fireplace and built in woodbox; three full-size bedrooms grouped into a sleeping wing; complete bath and extra lavatory; and a carport and workroom separated from the rest of the house by a covered breezeway.

"For privacy, the house partially encloses a garden court to the rear, away from the street. Extensive use of glass walls and doors along the inner sides of the house helps to make the garden court part of the living area, and a homemaker from her holiday kitchen can survey her family at work or play, inside or out, at a glance."

The holiday kitchen is L-shaped in arrangement, and stands at the corner of the large L formed by the family room. The kitchen area has two walls, one including an 11-cubic-foot automatic defrosting refrigerator, sink and storage cabinets, the other including an 18-cubic-foot upright freezer and storage cabinets.

The electric range stands as an island, surrounded by a breakfast bar. Other Kelvinator appliances in the home include an automatic washer, dryer and ironer in a laundry area nearby in the family room, a garbage disposal unit and a room air conditioner.

WORKS AUTOMATIC 40-HOUR WEEK—The new 1954 Crosley air conditioners not only automatically heat or cool the room to desired temperatures but they also can be pre-set to operate for a whole season only at needed hours and on needed days. A reverse cycle that operates automatically off a built-in thermostat, switches the operation from cooling to heating in case the room gets too cold or to take off the chill on cool spring or fall mornings. A seven-day timing device permits operation only on needed days at needed hours, thus cutting operating costs by as much as two-thirds.

Adventure For You On Every Inch Of Recorder Tape

Owning a tape recorder is like carrying on a never-ending experiment. You'll always be finding new ways to use the device.

Favorite uses of present owners are almost as many as the owners. Businessmen employ the machine to polish up sales addresses and housewives make extra cash at home by typing business letters which have been taped. Home-movie addicts record their own sound tracks. And a favorite use everywhere is making a permanent sound album of family occasions.

Newest models are light and compact, easily operated. One has an airplane-luggage carrying case; it records and plays up to two hours on a single reel of tape.

New Kitchens Easy To Install

On a list of a woman's frustrated dreams, "modernizing" her kitchen would probably rank pretty high.

The reason in many cases is not that it's too expensive, but that being "torn up" while the work is done — often for several days — seems to be too much trouble.

Like most problems, however, this one has a solution. By buying the kitchen already made the bulk of the job can be finished in hours.

Several leading firms now offer all-steel kitchen cabinet and sink units that can be installed simply and quickly. If you can hang a picture, or move furniture into place, you can put in the wall and base units with no professional help.

Available in many sizes, the cabinets can be fitted snugly into almost any space. Most dealers will be happy to supply you with instructions for planning your own best layout. Some will offer to plan it for you.

Just because the cabinets are steel doesn't mean they have to be cold-looking. Many makers now offer a wide variety of decorator colors to conform to your favorite color scheme. And the stain-resistant baked enamel, besides being easier to clean, will outlast the paint on wooden cabinets.

Some new wall units have sliding glass doors, handy appliance outlets and fluorescent lighting to illuminate underneath work surfaces. And for real convenience, there's the automatic sink, with built-in dishwasher and disposal unit.

Do Your Sewing In The Kitchen

There's a trend toward sewing in the kitchen, according to several surveys. And makers of sewing machines are making the most of the trend by redesigning their products to blend with the rest of the kitchen equipment.

Grip-Snip Handy

If there are many little jobs around the house you could do but don't have the proper tool, then get yourself a Grip-Snip. This handy gadget is a plier, a wrench and a powerful wire cutter. It'll exert pressure even in awkward places.

Food Will Stay Fresh Despite Power Failure

A thought that can chill any homemaker who owns or wants to own a food freezer is "what will happen to my food if a storm cuts off my electric service?"

According to refrigeration experts, there's really little cause for alarm. They point out, first of all, that a shut-off for many hours has been a definite rarity. And, second, your freezer has been designed to cope with such emergencies.

Electric suppliers across the nation are equipped to restore service quickly and efficiently at all times. And until they do, a properly insulated freezer with a well-sealed lid or door will keep food frozen for as long as two days without operating.

Experts have found that frozen food in a well-filled modern freezer of 12 to 36 cubic foot capacity is safe for about five days. It may thaw in less than that time, but usually will not begin to spoil.

In cases where the freezer must be shut off for long periods of time, as when moving, the lid should be opened only when absolutely necessary; otherwise the warm room air will get inside.

If the shut-off period will reach a critical stage, use dry ice to keep the foods frozen. Fifty pounds will keep the temperature down to 15 degrees for two days in the freezer of average size.

But never use ordinary "wet" ice. It will damage your food when it melts.

Cold-Box Twins Take Same Room As Kitchen Table

A refrigerator and a freezer, two separate appliances, can now be fitted in the same amount of space consumed by a small kitchen table.

One company has produced a matching set which occupies a total wall space of only 48 inches. The appliances are each waist-high and covered with plastic tops, which provide an extra work area of 7.5 cubic feet. Storage capacity is 9.8 cubic feet.

Highest temperature ever recorded in the U. S. was 134 degrees F., in Death Valley on July 10, 1913.

Aircraft And Steel Stocks Under Fire From Sellers

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP) — The Stock Market ran into heavy going today with the aircrafts and steels under profit-taking.

Those two divisions have been unusually strong in recent session, and today they were under fire from sellers who felt that the rise had gone far enough for them.

Most other sections of the market were lower as well. Electrical equipments and a few individual issues were exceptions.

The aircrafts fell from 1 to 4 points and the rest of the list was off around 2 points at the most. Gainers usually were small, but some individual issues pushed ahead smartly.

Down along with the aircrafts and steels were the motors, rubbers, merchandising issues, distillers, radio-televisions, utilities, coppers, chemicals, railroads, oils, and airlines.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell 60 cents at $119.30. It was up 10 cents yesterday.

The industrial component of the average declined 20 cents, the rails were down 10 cents, and utilities were lower by 30 cents.

The list broadened out to include 1,198 individual issues, of which 259 advanced and 649 declined with 59 new highs and 47 new lows for the year registered during the session.

U. S. Steel headed the most active list as it did yesterday. It lost ⅜ at 46½ on 33,500 shares as compared with a point gain yesterday.

Westinghouse Corp. Enters Room Air-Conditioner Field

Returning to the room air conditioner field after an 11-year absence, the Westinghouse Electric Corporation has introduced its new line of room air conditioners.

Introducing the new line of window-type Westinghouse room air conditioners, H. F. Hildreth, manager of refrigeration specialties for the company's Electric Appliance Division, said, "The highly competitive nature of the room air conditioner field today demands that any company entering the field at this time must have a superior product. We believe the new Westinghouse line more than meets this requirement in both attractiveness and advanced engineering."

There are five models in the new Westinghouse line, ranging from ½ to 1½ horsepower. Push-button comfort controls on the three Deluxe models provide a choice of 10 comfort zones, while dial-type controls on the two Special models have six settings. All are equipped with draft-free grilles that are individually adjustable to direct the flow of conditioned air up, down, left, right or combinations of directions. To give year-round use, heating elements are built into the ¾ and 1 horsepower Deluxe models, and thermostats are standard equipment on all Deluxe models.

With a smooth, sleek outside appearance to harmonize with contemporary furniture, all models in the Westinghouse room air conditioner line boast of concealed controls that are easily accessible at a no-stoop level beneath the cabinet lid. Color used in all cabinets is two-tone rose beige.

"In deciding upon a cabinet design," continued Mr. Hildreth, "we have aimed for a design that would blend with any decor or motif in today's homes. From an engineering standpoint too, we believe the Westinghouse line will solve the air conditioning problems in 95 per cent of all home and office applications."

1½ HP Deluxe Model Tops 1954 Room Air Conditioner Line

Heading the Westinghouse 1954 room air conditioner line is the 1½ HP Deluxe model.

Push-button controls provide six comfort conditions. A built-in thermostat provides automatic regulation.

Zones for cool and dehumidify conditions include "full cool" setting for removing up to 30 quarts of moisture from the room air every day; "cool and ventilate" to bring in outside air which has been filtered, dehumidified and cooled; and "cool and exhaust" to pump out stale, smoky air and at the same time maintain a dry, cool comfort zone.

Ventilating comfort control settings provide: "fresh air" to bring in filtered air and no-draft room ventilation; "stale air out" to expel stale, smoky air and cooking odors; and "circulate" to provide constant circulation and filtering.

Four grilles can be individually adjusted to direct the flow of conditioned air up, down, right or left, as desired.

This model wil cool a room with a floor area up to 850 square feet. The blower and fan motor is powered with a two-speed one-ninth horsepower shaded pole motor.

ELECTRIC BLENDER has two speeds, will handle more than 75 dishes hitherto impossible to make with ordinary one-speed blenders. This versatile kitchen helper can perform all types of grinding, chopping, grating, blending, liquefying jobs; is excellent, too, as a drink-mixer. Low center of gravity keeps it always stationary. Clover leaf Pyrex container is resistant to heat and cold.

PORTABLE COOKING appliance will fry, broil, grill and toast—and bake waffles, too. Large cooking surface (190 square inches) holds 16 hamburgers, eight pancakes, four full-sized toasted sandwiches, four big waffles, or enough bacon and eggs for a family breakfast. Heating up kitchen range for breakfast, lunch and between-times snacks becomes a forgotten, unnecessary chore.

Refrigerator Has Two-Way Doors

A spanking-new something for refrigerators is the two-way-opening door.

Introduced by Philco as part of its '54 line, the two-way door does just what the name implies—it opens to right or to left, to suit your convenience.

Besides the convenience angle, the door does away with kitchen planning problems of whether to buy a refrigerator equipped with a right-handed or left-handed door. You can place the refrigerator anywhere.

The next door is hailed by the manufacturer as a great engineering achievement. It marks the first practical application of the "double hinge" principle on an appliance, they say.

The mechanism is operated by a center-mounted V-shaped handle. Under no circumstances can both hinged sides be released at the same time.

A roll-out shelf for small items makes them easily accessible. And temperatures in the freezer can be dropped to 20 below for sharp freezing action.

WHIRLPOOL APPLIANCES—The new Whirlpool Imperial washer presents a raft of work-saving devices. Automatic water filling (even at low pressure), a three temperature water selector with fabric indicator, an automatic water level selector and a delicate fabric washing cycle provide the desired conditions for washing a particular load with the flick of a dial. A colored guide light indicates the progress of the wash from start to finish. And the suds-miser, available if desired, saves soap and water for re-use on a second-or-third load. The Imperial dryer (gas or electric) is just as complete in saving time and work. Full range heat control makes possible the correct drying temperatures for nylons and woolens—and any weight and weave in between. A delicate fabric control provides the proper drying temperature for the new synthetics. And a guide light similar to the one on the washer reports progress of the drying down the line. A built-in lint screen is introduced in this new model. Located on top of the cabinet, it is easy to clean. A convenient interior light turns on and off with the opening and closing of the dryer door.

Food Mixers Tackle Multitude Of Tasks

If food mixers get any more versatile, they'll soon be demanding full-time servants' wages. Attachments have steadily been added to make each of these popular sellers many appliance in one.

Some new models have special attachments for each of the following jobs: opening cans, freezing ice cream, polishing silver, slicing and chopping vegetables, grating and shredding, extracting juice, adding oils and syrups, and shelling peas.

Foil Food Spoilage With Built-In Aluminum Foil

As many housewives have already learned, wrapping foods in aluminum foil is an excellent protective measure. It speeds cooling, prevents loss of flavor and stops dehydration.

To help encourage the practice by making it more convenient, a new refrigerator, made by Hotpoint, has a foil dispenser built into its door.

Well-Serviced Fan Lasts For Years

Here's how to prepare a fan for storage: First, make sure it's disconnected. Then wipe the blades, wire frame, and base with a sudsy cloth, well wrung out. Repeat with a clean damp cloth, and wipe dry. Draw the electric cord, if of the rubber variety, through a soapy cloth or sponge, then through the folds of a dry cloth.

Wrap the fan well in a cloth cover, or in a piece of transparent plastic, and store it in a dry place.

You've got to see it to believe it!

Plants Say River Pollution Is Down

Fuhrman Cites Plan For Clean Streams

Officials of two Cumberland area industrial plants yesterday asked the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin to bring up to date its report on pollution of the Potomac River in this area.

Officials of the Luke Plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company and of the Amcelle plant of the Celanese Corporation of America said industrial wastes have dropped since the survey was made by Ralph E. Fuhrman, deputy of Sanitary Engineering for the District of Columbia in 1950, 1951 and 1952.

William D. Claus, chief engineer for the Amcelle plant, said vast changes in operations at Amcelle have dropped the plant's pollution load to "much less" and that the plant is now operating in compliance with state requirements.

Plant Is Complying

He reported the plant no longer has a dyehouse and that cellulose acetate flake production is about 10 per cent of what it was when the data was secured.

Conditions at the Luke plant are not as they were when the report was made, according to Julian G. Patrick, chief chemist for the paper company. He said changes in the plant have reduced the industrial waste.

Floyd Davis, plant engineer for the West Virginia Pulp and Paper plant at Luke, said the pollution department of the plant is making strides in reducing wastes and that until ways are found to use all possible wastes, it would be impractical and expensive to build a treatment plant. He added the plant within three weeks will have a process in motion which will halt the dumping of boiler ash into the river.

Cites Acid Problem

He said that if the commission would find a way to eliminate acid mine wastes from the river above Luke, the company could utilize funds it uses for such treatment to build a treatment plant.

The commission, according to Executive Secretary Edwin R. Cotton, has asked the coal mining industry to pitch in and help lick the acid mine waste problem.

Both plant officials said they are continuing their pollution abatement programs, and Claus added that "all will have to pitch in."

Cotton said Fuhrman's report will be brought up to date by an addendum which is to include data supplied by the Maryland Water Pollution Control Commission.

Hears Fuhrman Report

The report by Fuhrman was delivered at a public meeting attended by about 80 representatives from Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and Washington.

Fuhrman had been retained to survey the north branch between Paw Paw, W. Va., and Luke, Md.

The engineer said in the summer the water around the Cumberland dam becomes 100 per cent polluted with no oxygen to support living organisms.

He found that the city of Cumberland itself contributes only 11 per cent to the total pollution and that the Luke plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Co. and the Cumberland Celanese Corp. plant contribute between them as much waste as a city of 300,000 population would.

Cumberland's population is about 37,600.

Outlines Broad Plan

Fuhrman outlined these four steps to clean up the river:

1. Reduce waste at the Luke mill by 64 per cent.

2. Eliminate fly ash and reduce wastes at the Celanese plant by 70 per cent.

3. Install a sewage disposal plant at Cumberland to take care of the city's suburbs. Fuhrman added here that the sanitary line taking care of Crespatown should carry the Celanese plant waste and should go to the sewage plant.

4. Continue to assemble water quality data to keep a continuing check on the river's condition.

Fuhrman noted that by the time the polluted water reaches Hancock, Md., about 58 miles from Cumberland, it is free of pollution.

Hazelwood Presides

George F. Hazelwood, Cumberland member of the commission, presided at the sessions held in the Fort Cumberland Hotel yesterday.

Clean Stream Plan Proposed For Maryland

Easier Financing Would Aid Program

Adoption of a clean stream progrom for the State of Maryland was suggested by George L. Hall, chief engineer of the State Health Department, at a meeting of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac Basin held here yesterday.

Hall stressed that the plan represents his own views and not those of the State Health Department.

He said some plan under which the state can assist "in a small way" with users of the stream "seems a fair approach to the problem" of cleaning up the Potomac River.

Citing the heavy financial burden which would be imposed upon some communities which need sewage facilities, Hall said a clean stream program is needed "If you want to make a dent in the problem."

He said Maryland has state-wide programs for roads and school buildings, but that efforts to get the General Assembly to pass a bill providing a $25,000,000 revolving fund to help finance sewage work were dropped after it was ruled such financing for "internal projects" would be unconstitutional.

If the state could find something to tax—as gasoline taxes are used for roads—a constitutional plan could be worked out, said A. T. Hartman, assistant attorney general.

Hall said progress is being made in Maryland on sewage, and that last year 14 sewage projects were completed, or plans approved for the work.

Still needed, he said, are some 50 sewage systems and 80 sewage plants estimated to cost about $40,000,000, and the problem in most cases is "how to raise the money."

He said the costs of sewage programs in some communities would range up to 50 per cent of assets.

Referring to the Cumberland area problem, he said he is hopeful a plan can be worked out to meet the overall needs. Heart of the program would be the $2,000,000 Cumberland sewage treatment plant which will be able to treat sewage from neighboring communities, including Rodgeley. A second system would be needed below Westernport to treat the Georges Creek area wastes.

Preliminary cost studies have been made on the cost of interceptor sewers to bring wastes to the plants, he said, adding that the costs are high . . . and in some cases beyond the people's ability to pay.

One West Virginia representative suggested that state has had little opposition from a tax on soft drinks which is financing a new medical school and that a tax of that type might be used for the "clean stream" plan.

82 Registered At Cresaptown

Allegany County's traveling registrars yesterday experienced the second most productive day in their three weeks tour of the county when they registered 82 new voters at Cresaptown.

Visiting the Cresaptown school from 1 to 4 p. m. and from 6 to 9 p. m., Mrs. Zena J. Davis and John R. Kelly, substitute registrars for the Allegany County Board of Election Supervisors entered 49 Republicans and 33 Democrats in the voting books.

This compared to their heaviest day, April 23, at Mt. Savage when 88 persons were registered.

In addition 25 transferees were registered at Cresaptown. Kelly said that although Cresaptown is in Election District No. 7, most of those registered were from Bowling Green, District 6-6, with about 10 persons signing from Cresaptown.

Today the two substitute registrars will visit Ellerslie and Corriganville. They will be at Ellerslie Community Building from 1 to 4 p. m. and at Corriganville Fire Hall from 6 to 9.

Thursday the two will be at Eckhart school house for two sessions from 1 to 4 and again from 6 to 9 p. m.

Yesterday's registration brought to 485 the total number of persons registered since the program began April 12.

Fuhrman, Washington, a report the latter prepared for the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin on pollution in the North Branch of the river, as George F. Fuhrman presented a four-point plan for making a clean stream of the Potomac in this area at a meeting of the commission here yesterday.

World Problems Sessions Will Be Open To Public

Dr. PIERRE CARRAUD

All sessions of the two-day Appalachian Inter-Collegiate Conference which opens Friday at Frostburg State Teachers College will be free and open to the public, the college announced yesterday.

The conference, although planned primarily as a student gathering for the discussion of world problems, also is designed to permit interested persons in the Tri-State area to hear addresses by representatives of other countries.

Keyed to the theme "A New Outlook on a U. N. World," the conference will include talks by representatives of the diplomatic services of France, China, Turkey and the United States. Panel discussions, seminars and open discussions also are planned.

Dr. Pierre Carraud, secretary of the French Embassy and delegate for Henri Bonnet, French Ambassador to the U. S., will be one of the speakers on the Saturday morning "Ambassadors' Panel."

Dr. Carraud, who took his higher degrees at the University of Paris, is a graduate of the school of Political Science at Paris. He has done diplomatic duty at Madrid, Bucharest, Athens and Rome.

The college International Relations Club, sponsor of the event, is making arrangements for scores of students who are expected to come from colleges all over the Eastern United States for the conference.

James R. Lemmert, club president, and Leo Stakem, conference chairman, pointed out that no charge will be made for any of the sessions expect the banquet on the two evenings of the gathering. Special rates are available to resident students at the college.

312 Beverage Permits Issued For New Year

Some 312 alcoholic beverage licenses have been approved by the Allegany County Board of License Commissioners for the new license year which starts Saturady, May 1.

Only one remonstrance was received during the two days of hearings Monday and yesterday. That concerned the proposed issuance of a beer license to the Bowman's Addition Volunteer Fire Company.

Ten Bowman's Addition residents signed the remonstrance. They include Charles A. Roy, Ruth S. Roy, Rev. Elva C. Brotemarkle, Thomas L. Clark, James H. Brotemarkle, Robert Weaver, Mrs. Robert Weaver, Herman Greise, Emory Moore and Mrs. Boyd Sulser. A hearing on the remonstrance will be conducted at 10 a. m. Tuesday, May 18.

The applications approved by the Board of License Commissioners include 294 renewals, 13 new applicants at old locations and only five new licenses at new locations.

Only one of the new licenses for beer, wine and liquor. It it a club-type license which was awarded Cecil Randolph Jr. Post 271, American Legion, at 9 West Mechanic Street, Frostburg.

Four new beer licenses were approved yesterday. Two of them are Class A licenses for off-premises consumption. They went to Frank E. Jaumot Sr. for premises at 424 Walnut Street, and William G. Beier, for premises at 108 Greene Street. The other two are for on-and-off-premises consumption. They were issued to Mrs. Emma May Corley, for premises at 120 South Mechanic Street, and Mrs. Eleanor Smith for premises at 201 North Mechanic Street.

Appeals Court Hears Little Plea

ANNAPOLIS, April 27 (AP) — A Cumberland pool room operator faced the Court of Appeals today seeking overthrow of his conviction on 15 counts of gambling law violations.

Attorneys for Leonard (Chick) Little argued that the investigation which brought about the trial was illegal in that two state policemen were called into the matter by the police commissioner of Cumberland rather than the chief of police.

The argument was based on the law which says the chief police officer of a city or the city's chief executive may call in State Police.

Circuit Judge Joseph D. Mish sentenced Little to six months in the House of Correction and fined him $1,000 in the trial that was moved to Hagerstown.

Mish ruled in the December trial that John J. Long, as police commissioner, could be considered the chief police officer of the city.

The policemen testified they placed a bet with Edward Chapel, a co-defendant who was not tried because of illness, last Aug. 29 and that Little returned their $7 the next day.

Mahoney, Dorsey To Tour County

George P. Mahoney, Democratic candidate for governor, and Phillip J. Dorsey, Democratic candidate for attorney general, have notified Michael F. Prendergast, local campaign manager, that they will be in this county Wednesday and Thursday.

After attending the Democratic Jackson-Jefferson Day dinner tonight at the Shrine Club, the two candidates plan to remain here for a tour of the county and a rally in Frostburg on Thursday, Prendergast said.

The tour schedule is outlined as follows: 9 a. m. until noon, tour of South Cumberland; 1 p. m. Westernport, Luke, and a visit to the Luke plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company; 3:30 p. m. Lonaconing, at the Brady Hotel; 4:30 p. m., American Legion Home in Midland; 5:30 p. m., VFW Home in Mt. Savage; 6:30 p. m. Byrnes' Store, Eckhart; 8:30 p. m., rally at the second floor sun parlor of the Gunter Hotel, Frostburg.

Prendergast issued an invitation to all interested Democrats to join the tour and to meet the two running mates.

Band Festival Program Ready For Friday Night

Two Soloists Also Will Appear

Some 13 selections are included in the program for the Allegany County Elementary-Junior High School Band Festival which will b presented at 8 p. m. Friday at Beall High School in Frostburg, according to W. Valgene Routch, supervisor of music education in the county schools.

Two soloists will be featured during an intermission between the elementary and junior high school portions of the concert.

George Williams, who is a student at LaVale Elementary School, will play a trombone solo, "I'm Getting Sentimental Over You," the old Tommy Dorsey theme song. He also will play "When You and I were Young, Maggie." His accompanist will be Mrs. Darlene Brain Pepper, fifth grade teacher at LaVale.

The other soloist will be James Diehl, a junior high school student at Fort Hill. His violin solo will be "Czardos" by Monti. His accompanist will be Delores Rowley, a Fort Hill student.

The all-county elementary band, a 175-piece musical organization, will open the program with four selections Friday night. The first two numbers will be "Chapel Echoes," a tone poem, and "Graduation," a grand march. Harry Malcolm, who teaches woodwind, brass and percussion in a number of county schools, will serve as conductor for the opening selections.

"Sailing," a waltz, and "Merry Piper," are the final elementary offerings. William Simpson, who teaches music at McCoole, Hammond Street in Westernport, Luke and Barton, will conduct.

The all-county junior high school band will offer six selections, with a different conductor directing every two numbers.

Frank Munson, music teacher at Beall High School, will direct the band in "Activity," a march, and "Stop," a fox trot novelty. Alfred Snyder, music teacher at Mt. Savage, will conduct the band in its presentation of "Chalma," a waltz, and "Mutual," a march. Gordon F. Williams, who teaches music at Fort Hill, will direct the junior high band through "Indian Boy," a fox trot, and "Ambition," an overture.

Delegate Cook Commends Youths In 'Legislature'

Delegate Noel Speir Cook of Frostburg, who has returned from Annapolis where he served on the Governor's Advisory Committee to the 11th annual Model Legislature, yesterday issued a statement commending the 32 boys and girls from Allegany County who attended the session last Thursday through Saturday.

"Allegany County can be mighty proud of the very able representation their boys and girls gave in Annapolis last week. They acted like young statesmen and seriously went about their business of preparing resolutions and bills," Cook said.

The member of the County Delegation had special praise for Joel Downey of Frostburg, who served as Boy Governor. Young Downey prepared his own speeches and veto messages and otherwise conducted himself well. Winfield H. Adam, general secretary of Central YMCA, was commended for his advance work in preparing the Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y members.

Serving In Army

Pvt. James M. Van Meter, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Van Meter, Cresaptown, is now a member of the 59th Antiaircraft Artillery Battalion at Fort Bliss, Texas. A graduate of Allegany High School, he attended Frostburg State Teachers College prior to his entrance into the Army March 17, 1953.

Glass Company Files Deed For Another Tract

Friendly Suit Seeks Clear Title

A fourth deed for property in the North Branch area which the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company is acquiring for possible construction of an industrial plant was filed for record yesterday in the office of Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court.

The deed conveys to the company some 99.4 acres which have been owned by James W. Stickley, Charity May Stickley and Samuel S. Stickley. Recorded last Friday were three other deeds for a total of some 260 acres of North Branch land.

The Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company is in the process of acquiring a total of some 600 acres as an industrial site.

Another development in this process of obtaining land is the filing of an equity suit in the name of Rachel Bloss, widow of George W. Bloss, in Allegany County Circuit Court against some 35 adults and three infants.

This is termed a friendly suit and is being brought to assure good title to the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company for several small parcels of land needed at North Branch. Involved are technical defects in the title of several tracts which Mrs. Bloss, who is now 93 years old, sold there, and the possibility that she may not be entitled to sell some 22 acres which she still owns.

The uncertainty stems from interpretation of the will of Mrs. Bloss' husband, who died on or about March 9 ,1941.

In the bill of complaint, Mrs. Bloss, through her attorney, William C. Walsh, asks one of three determinations from the court. His first request is that the court decide that Mrs. Bloss had a legal right to convey the property in her own name. An alternative request is that the court state that she had a right to sell the property because she needed the money to provide for her needs. A second alternative ruling requested is that the transactions were legal because everyone involved benefitted from them.

Also filed for record in the clerk's office yesterday was the assignment of options from Albert H. Hargreaves, director of industrial promotion for the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, to the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company. That assignment was dated last October 28. It was not until March 17 that the company decided to exercise the options.

Registration Office Will Be Open Saturday

The Cumberland Registration Office will be open Saturday from 9 a. m. to noon, according to Wallace G. Ullery, city clerk.

Additional hours will also be scheduled on Saturday, May 8, for the benefit of those who work Monday through Friday and have been unable to visit the registration office.

A city drive, under way for several months to get all eligible citizens on the voting books, has been disappointing.

On March 31, there were 14,560 citizens registered on the city's continuous registration records.

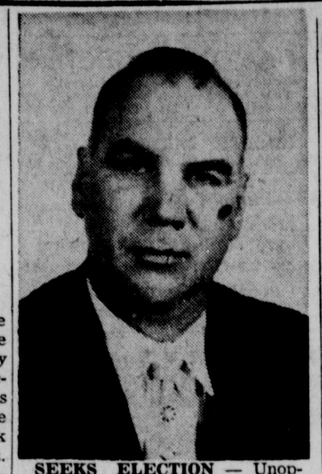
Officials have been expecting the number to rise to the 15,000 mark by May 11, the deadline for registration prior to the June 1 and 15 elections.

Unless a last-minute rush develops, the number will fall short of the goal, since only 157 new voters have signed up so far this month.

Monday, normally a good registration day, was disappointing, since only 8 turned up.

The City Registration Office is located in the basement of City Hall, with entrances from the first floor or from Bedford Street.

It is open on Mondays through Fridays from 9 a. m. to noon and from 1 to 5 p. m., and will be open on May 1 and 8 from 9 a. m. to noon.



SEEKS ELECTION — Unopposed in the Democratic primary, Graydon S. Dunlap, 117 Greene Street, is a candidate for sheriff of Allegany County. Popularly known as "Swede" Dunlap, this will be the former Maryland State Policeman's second try to gain election to the sheriff's office.

Judges Grant Motion Setting Pollack Free

Opinion Raises Another Question

James H. (Jack) Pollack, prominent Baltimore Democratic political leader, yesterday, was acquitted in Allegany County Circuit Court of a charge that he attempted to obstruct justice, when Associate Judges George Henderson and Morgan C. Harris ordered a directed verdict of not guilty.

In settling the question concerning Pollack the two judges raised another question—which they left unanswered — concerning Michael Julian, a Baltimore restaurant operator.

The judges concluded their five-page opinion with the following statement:

"In conclusion, however, we wish to say that there has been brought into this case a letter which one Mike Julian is alleged to have written and pursuaded George Baccala to copy and for him and Corridi to sign and send to James H. Pollack. The State's Attorney may conclude that in so doing Mike Julian violated the law; and if so, we are sure he will take necessary and proper action in the matter."

Opinion Quoted

Judge Harris read the opinion, more of which follows:

"There is no direct testimony that the traverser, James H. Pollack, invited Benjamin Sudano, George Baccala and Armond Corridi to his home on Sunday, November 29, 1953, but, nevertheless, they went to his home together with Michael and Philip Sudano, and the latter two remained in the car outside of the Pollack home.

"The only material things in connection with this offense said by Pollack on that occasion were as follows: He asked George Baccala, "Who was in the car—you, Bobo (Michael Sudano) and the two girls, and that is all?" He repeated this question a number of times. When Baccala testified in his case in the Criminal Court of Baltimore City he stated that he, Michael Sudano, Philip Sudano, the two girls and Roosevelt D'Alesandro were in the car. He asked Armond Corridi if he was with "Roosy" (obviously Roosevelt D'Alesandro) in the car. Corridi's answer to this was in the negative.

"These are the only two pertinent and material statements made by Pollack which would tend to implicate him in the charge of endeavoring to obstruct justice.

"Since the adoption of the amendment to the Maryland Constitution, Article 15, Section 5, effective December 1, 1950, we have the right and duty, when the question is properly submitted, as in the instant case, to pass upon

C & A Will Seek Gas Rate Boost In West Virginia

Commission Cites Company's Books

West Virginia customers of the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company may be getting a boost in gas rates, as the company announced yesterday it would ask for such an increase "as soon as possible."

This was disclosed "to keep the company's position clear on the major issues at stake," in the West Virginia Public Service Commission's dismissal of C&A's request for $632,000 annual rate increase, according to C. C. Robbins, local company manager.

The gas company's request was denied on the grounds that the company had not shown the proposed rates were "just and reasonable" and that the company books did not show the actual expense the company incurred in providing natural gas service in West Virginia during the period under study.

Bookkeeping At Fault

Specifically, the Commission said company books had not been kept in compliance with a January 1, 1951 order of that body. Referring to that order, Robbins said:

"Our company has been keeping its books and records since 1939 in accordance with a uniform system used by some 44 states, the Federal Power Commission and what we thought were the requirements of the West Virginia Commission."

Robbins said the Commission received copies of C&A's 1951, 1952 and 1953 annual reports on operations after issuing the January, 1951 order.

"In view of the fact that the Commission made no objection to the manner in which we presented that bookkeeping information, we had no reason to believe that our records were not in full accordance with the Commission's 1951 order," he stated.

"Technical" Dismissal

Robbins said his company's plea for higher rates was dismissed primarily on a "procedural" or "technical" point and that there was "no question but that the company must have an increase to compensate for higher operating costs brought on by inflation and to help pay a fair return on the substantially larger amounts of money already invested in the company."

He said the company, which stated it was making under a 1½ per cent return on its West Virginia investments in its rate bid, was still considering an appeal from the Commission's order.

The appeal would go first to the West Virginia Supreme Court and could ultimately be taken to the federal courts or to the Supreme Court of the United States.

Suspended Term Given Man Who Set Woods Afire

Charles Thompson, 61, of RD 2 Williams Road, yesterday in Trial Magistrates Court received a suspended sentence of one year in the Maryland House of Correction after pleading guilty to two state charges of starting a forest fire which destroyed nearly 100 acres of timberland April 21.

Thompson admitted to Magistrate Donald W. Mason he set the fire which burned a square mile section of woodland at Piney Flat near Wildcat Hollow and spread rapidly up the slope to the top of Irons Mountain.

Volunteer firemen from three companies, District 16, Baltimore Pike and Bedford Road, helped forestry workers to put out the fire. The blaze for awhile threatened two dwellings in the area and also came close to a television company antenna tower before being brought under control.

Brooke Bodkin, district forest supervisor for Maryland, charged Thompson with negligence in starting the fire while burning brush, and also with violation of Regulation 4 of the Department of Forests and Parks, which prohibits the starting of fires until 4 p. m. for any purpose and which also prohibits the burning of anything within 200 yards of timberland.

Magistrate Mason sentenced Thompson to six months in the House of Correction on each count and then suspended sentence, paroling the man for two years on condition he reimburse the state for $254 in costs for combatting and extinguishing the fire and be of general good behavior.

The Weather

The rain which fell in Cumberland yesterday was welcome and refreshing although the high winds preceding the rain swirled quite a bit of dirt about the city. As the clouds broke up and the sun came through toward evening, a rainbow was visible over Cumberland. Forecast for today is clear and cooler. The high temperature yesterday was 84 degrees and the low reading was 58. Humidity registered at 7:30 p. m. was 100 per cent and .38 inches of rain had fallen.

Memorial Plaque Unveiled

A plaque to the memory of Miss Althea Fuller, first principal of Mt. Royal Elementary School, was unveiled and dedicated at the meeting of the school PTA last night. In the picture, left to right, are Robert Little Ebert, PTA president, Clarence Lippel, a former PTA president who was the speaker at the ceremonies; Lewyn C. Davis, who was a next-door neighbor and long-standing friend of Miss Fuller, and Miss Grace E. Filer, who is the present principal of the school.

Brush-On Enamels Brighten Up Those Marred Appliances

Jane Doe, looking at her husband, says tearfully: "Either you buy new kitchen equipment or I'm going home to Mother."

And John Doe, sighing, says: "It just needs fixing, my love. I'll do it on Saturday."

In many cases, he's right. And in many cases he can be dead wrong. For a leaking gas line or a broken wire needs expert attention. And, like the wonderful one-hoss shay, the appliances may just be worn out and ready for replacement.

According to experts who make much of the equipment used to carry electrical power, many old ranges, ovens, griddles and other household helps can be a severe drain on the power lines and the pocketbook.

Gas industry spokesmen warn that expert care is necessary in repairing burners and gas lines. A phone call to your local utility office will bring immediate help.

But for the reconditioning of major kitchen appliances that have fallen heir to scorches, stains, heat-blackening and nicks, the man-of-the-house can make himself an expert.

It's all done with special—and available—paint and a paint brush. For laboratory developments have put heat-and-cold-resistant enamels on the market, suitable for home use, which are available in hues from pastel to high-fashion tints.

One of the manufacturers has a paint for each kitchen appliance, as well as for woodwork and walls. The heat-resistant enamel withstands temperatures as high as 400 degrees without peeling, cracking, blistering or discoloring. In most cases, the outside of the range or oven never reaches this temperature.

Usually, the appliance paints dry to a low luster if they are applied to a well-prepared surface, free of soap, grease and oil.

BRIGHTEN 'EM UP—Reconditioned appliances can revamp the kitchen. New paints withstand kitchen heat and splatter.

Ultra-Modern Theme Of Gas Appliances

The nation's housewives have prompted marked improvements in gas appliances over the past ten years.

No longer is the modern homemaker satisfied with an "adequate" performance by her gas range or water-heater. She insists upon, and the gas appliance manufacturers have readily provided, sleek, ultra-modern equipment that is clean, cool and efficient.

Today's gas ranges not only look smart, but they also feature fully-automatic controls, require a minimum of fuel and save the homemaker's time and energy.

Modern automatic gas water heaters are the result of today's home-maker's need for plenty of hot water. As a "must" in up-to-date homes, they are constructed to give years of carefree service at the most economical cost. There are several sizes available to supply clean hot water in the amount each family needs for household uses.

The automatic gas clothes dryer is, possibly one of the most outstanding appliance developments since World War II. In much less than one hour it is capable of drying an entire wash, thus eliminating the drudgery of hanging clothes in damp basements, or carrying a wet load of wash to the outdoors clothes line.

Tests have proved that clothes dry better, fade less and last longer with the gas dryer.

Ultra modern, the silent gas refrigerator makes ice cubes automatically without trays.

A growing problem today is the disposal of rubbish and refuse. But the gas industry has met the problem head-on and developed the gas-fired incinerator which has the situation "well in hand."

The biggest increase in the use of gas has been in home-heating. The demand has been so great since 1945, that gas companies have been unable to meet all their customer's requirements. But millions of dollars have been spent to build facilities to meet these sky-rocketing demands and those expenditures are resulting in the delivery of more and more gas to more and more gas-heated homes.

The gas industry and the American Gas Association have also developed an all-year heating and air-conditioning unit which gives year-round comfort at a moderate cost in a single unit.

Beat The Heat With The Use Of Attic Fans

When hot weather sails into town across the heat waves, Eskimo igloos look pretty good to sweltering home owners, who would gladly trade the conveniences in modern homes for one cool, comfortable night's sleep.

There are, of course, many ways to beat the heat short of glacier-hopping to far-off Arctic reaches. Here attic and window exhaust fans come highly recommended, as means of discharging the heat pent-up in homes during hot weather.

This much is obvious: a little perspiration spent now in installing an attic fan will save many a soggy night when hot, humid weather prevails.

Just as the modern furnace is a central heating system, the attic fan is, in effect, a central ventilating system. It keeps a constant flow of fresh air circulating through a house by forcing stale, dead air outside.

One of the most effective ways to use the attic fan for heat relief is in "night cooling." The fan is able to cool the house as much as 20 degrees at night because of the difference between outside and inside air temperatures after the sun goes down, according to the Propeller Fan Manufacturers' Association.

Without a ventilation system, houses retain the heat that has accumulated during the day and are likely to cool off no more than five degrees all night. In addition, the attic fan which has run during the night will cool the house so thoroughly that heat buildup the next day is substantially retarded.

The home owner handy with tools can install an attic fan without too much difficulty, but where to put it is the most important consideration.

In homes with finished and sealed attics, the fan may be placed to discharge directly to the outside through an existing window or other opening provided for this purpose.

In houses with unfinished attic space and low-pitched roofs, the fan should be placed in or near an opening in the attic floor, discharging to the outside through louvres. (It is important to follow the fan manufacturer's instructions as to size of the louvred opening. Too small an opening will impair the fan's efficiency.)

In the last-mentioned installation, the fan discharges vertically. A similar setup is to place a suction box over the floor opening with the fan in one end of the box. The fan then discharges horizontally—preferably toward the exhaust opening.

Exhaust fans can often be installed in basements — if basement windows are large enough to permit ample exhaust areas — or in adjoining garage walls or connected breezeways.

Dutch Oven Range Unusually Easy To Keep Sparkling Clean All Over

First on the lips of owners are praise, enthusiasm and appreciation for the ease of cleaning their Maytag Ranges. The entire top is a single unit with built-in, not built-on, burner bowls—no hard-to-clean cracks or grease-cracking crevices. Lift-out burners, removable parts and glass-smooth, bolt-free surfaces within the oven, the broiler and on every area of the range reduce cleaning to a simple operation. No other range is as easy to clean and keep clean.

Inadequate insulation, unsealed oven doors and open oven vents common on most ranges are wasters of fuel and foes to efficiency. However, on Maytag Ranges three revolutionary features bring heat loss under control (1) 41 pounds of extra-thick insulation holds heat inside the oven. (2) A compression-type seal, similar to weather stripping, surrounds the oven door and seals in heat when the oven door is closed. (3) A damper, mechanically linked to the oven valve, closes the vent when the oven is turned off. With heat so efficiently sealed in the oven your food cooks to perfection, your kitchen is cooler.

In harmony with any setting selected on the thermostat dial the massive-time-enduring, oven bottom plate completely floods the entire oven with a steady heat flow of uniform temperature. Pies, cakes and pastries bake to thrilling perfection. Simultaneously, the massive bottom plate serves as a reservoir for heat and working in combination with 41 pounds of super-insulation around the oven, the oven door seal and the damper-controlled vent, achieves true Dutch Oven efficiency.

Typical of Maytag advance engineering and design is the famous Dutch Cooker Well. This exclusive Maytag feature provides three-burner utility with single-burner operation. It releases the three top burners for other uses. Simmering, roasting, steaming, frying, braising, boiling and stewing are all simplified with this outstanding equipment. And, it is economical—entire meals are prepared with only a tiny low burner flame burning two-thirds of the actual cooking time.

Need Closet Space

You can put twice as much in your closets by using space-saving gadgets, specially designed racks for shoes, ties, hats, coats and trousers. They can be installed in a few minutes with only a screwdriver.

Do-It-Yourself And Save Money On Paint Bills

Anyone handy with a paint brush —or anyone willing to learn—can save himself money, gain satisfaction and have some fun by buying unfinished furniture and finishing it himself. And this includes the television set.

Some leading firms now cater to the large field of do-it-yourself fans by marketing a line of their regular TV receivers in unfinished wood. These sets are usually much cheaper in price than finished models.

With a clean brush, paints or stain, and a small amount of time, the sets can be made to match any decor. And there's great satisfaction in telling admiring guests that you've finished the set yourself.

Suds Away Batter

To clean the glass container of an electric blender after mixing a sticky batter, fill it about two thirds full of soapy water. Cover, turn on and let run a few seconds until no batter is visible on the inside surface.

Your Weather Is Made To Order By Using Room Air Conditioner

Room air conditioners, once the ugly ducklings of the appliance field, have had a beauty treatment in the last two years. Designers have proved these room units don't have to be duckbilled or buck-toothed.

As a result, and for several other reasons, also, room air conditioners are a hot sales item. They're hot because they're cool, for one thing. They are easily installed and the initial cost of each unit is comparatively low.

Major drawback of the room air conditioner used to be its ungainliness. At least half of the unit hung into the room over the window sill. This has been eliminated in most 1954 models and flush mounting is becoming the rule. One can be installed through a wall and built into bookcases and storage walls, among other applications.

Some new models will serve to both heat and cool a room, besides performing other duties for your comfort, such as filtering the air.

With all the different models available this year in air conditioning, appliance and department [illegible] here are some tips for people in the market for comfort:

Don't count on buying the smallest size unit in the beginning and advancing to the more powerful models. There is no well-developed trade-in market for room air conditioners at this time.

You will need a model sized for the particular room you plan to air condition or you won't get satisfactory results. A rough rule of thumb for what you'll need—assuming average rooms in your house—would be a ¾ to 1 h.p. unit for the living room, ½ to ¾ h.p. for the master bedroom and ⅓ to ½ h.p. for smaller bedrooms.

"Seagoing" Grill

If you've felt more like a slave than a master of yuor electric grill, because of all the do's and don'ts about keeping it clean and efficient, you'll want to hear about a new development. It's a grill attractive enough to go on the table for informal entertaining, and yet can go from there right into a dishpan full of hot soapsuds for thorough washing inside and out.

Aircraft And Steel Stocks Under Fire From Sellers

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP) — The Stock Market ran into heavy going today with the aircrafts and steels under profit-taking.

Those two divisions have been unusually strong in recent session, and today they were under fire from sellers who felt that the rise had gone far enough for them.

Most other sections of the market were lower as well. Electrical equipments and a few individual issues were exceptions.

The aircrafts fell from 1 to 4 points and the rest of the list was off around 2 points at the most. Gainers usually were small, but some individual issues pushed ahead smartly.

Down along with the aircrafts and steels were the motors, rubbers, merchandising issues, distillers, radio-televisions, utilities, coppers, chemicals, railroads, oils, and airlines.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell 60 cents at $119.30. It was up 10 cents yesterday.

The industrial component of the average declined 20 cents, the rails were down 10 cents, and utilities were lower by 30 cents.

The list broadened out to include 1,198 individual issues, of which 259 advanced and 649 declined with 59 new highs and 47 new lows for the year registered during the session.

U. S. Steel headed the most active list as it did yesterday. It lost 3/8 at 46½ on 33,500 shares as compared with a point gain yesterday.

Plants Say River Pollution Is Down

Fuhrman Cites Plan For Clean Streams

Officials of two Cumberland area industrial plants yesterday asked the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin to bring up to date its report on pollution of the Potomac River in this area.

Officials of the Luke Plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company and of the Amcelle plant of the Celanese Corporation of America said industrial wastes have dropped since the survey was made by Ralph E. Fuhrman, deputy of Sanitary Engineering for the District of Columbia in 1950, 1951 and 1952.

William D. Claus, chief engineer for the Amcelle plant, said vast changes in operations at Amcelle have dropped the plant's pollution load to "much less" and that the plant is now operating in compliance with state requirements.

Plant Is Complying

He reported the plant no longer has a dyehouse and that cellulose acetate flake production is about 10 per cent of what it was when the data was secured.

Conditions at the Luke plant are not as they were when the report was made, according to Julian G. Patrick, chief chemist for the paper company. He said changes in the plant have reduced the industrial waste.

Floyd Davis, plant engineer for the West Virginia Pulp and Paper plant at Luke, said the pollution department of the plant is making strides in reducing wastes and that until ways are found to use all possible wastes, it would be impractical and expensive to build a treatment plant. He added the plant within three weeks will have a process in motion which will halt the dumping of boiler ash into the river.

Cites Acid Problem

He said that if the commission would find a way to eliminate acid mine wastes from the river above Luke, the company could utilize funds it uses for such treatment to build a treatment plant.

The commission, according to Executive Secretary Edwin R. Cotton, has asked the coal mining industry to pitch in and help lick the acid mine waste problem.

Both plant officials said they are continuing their pollution abatement programs, and Claus added that "all will have to pitch in."

Cotton said Fuhrman's report will be brought up to date by an addendum which is to include data supplied by the Maryland Water Pollution Control Commission.

Hears Fuhrman Report

The report by Fuhrman was delivered at a public meeting attended by about 80 representatives from Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and Washington.

Fuhrman had been retained to survey the north branch between Paw Paw, W. Va., and Luke, Md.

The engineer said in the summer the water around the Cumberland dam becomes 100 per cent polluted with no oxygen to support living organisms.

He found that the city of Cumberland itself contributes only 11 per cent to the total pollution and that the Luke plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Co. and the Cumberland Celanese Corp. plant contribute between them as much waste as a city of 300,000 population would.

Cumberland's population is about 37,600.

Outlines Broad Plan

Fuhrman outlined these four steps to clean up the river:

1. Reduce waste at the Luke mill by 64 per cent.
2. Eliminate fly ash and reduce wastes at the Celanese plant by 70 per cent.
3. Install a sewage disposal plant at Cumberland to take care of the city's suburbs. Fuhrman added here that the sanitary line taking care of Crespatown should carry the Celanese plant waste and should go to the sewage plant.
4. Continue to assemble water quality data to keep a continuing check on the river's condition.

Fuhrman noted that by the time the polluted water reaches Hancock, Md., about 58 miles from Cumberland, it is free of pollution.

Hazelwood Presides

George F. Hazelwood, Cumberland member of the commission, presided at the sessions held in the Fort Cumberland Hotel yesterday.

Easier Financing Would Aid Program

Adoption of a clean stream program for the State of Maryland was suggested by George L. Hall, chief engineer of the State Health Department, at a meeting of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac Basin held here yesterday.

Hall stressed that the plan represents his own views and not those of the State Health Department.

He said some plan under which the state can assist "in a small way" with users of the stream "seems a fair approach to the problem" of cleaning up the Potomac River.

Citing the heavy financial burden which would be imposed upon some communities which need sewage facilities, Hall said a clean stream program is needed "If you want to make a dent in the problem."

He said Maryland has state-wide programs for roads and school buildings, but that efforts to get the General Assembly to pass a bill providing a $25,000,000 revolving fund to help finance sewage work were dropped after it was ruled such financing for "internal projects" would be unconstitutional.

If the state could find something to tax—as gasoline taxes are used for roads—a constitutional plan could be worked out, said A. T. Hartman, assistant attorney general.

Hall said progress is being made in Maryland on sewage, and that last year 14 sewage projects were completed, or plans approved for the work.

Still needed, he said, are some 50 sewage systems and 80 sewage plants estimated to cost about $40,000,000, and the problem in most cases is "how to raise the money."

He said the costs of sewage programs in some communities would range up to 50 per cent of assets.

Referring to the Cumberland area problem, he said he is hopeful a plan can be worked out to meet the overall needs. Heart of the program would be the $2,000,000 Cumberland sewage treatment plant which will be able to treat sewage from neighboring communities, including Rodgeley. A second system would be needed below Westernport to treat the Georges Creek area wastes.

Preliminary cost studies have been made on the cost of interceptor sewers to bring wastes to the plants, he said, adding that the costs are high . . . and in some cases beyond the people's ability to pay.

One West Virginia representative suggested that state has had little opposition from a tax on soft drinks which is financing a new medical school and that a tax of that type might be used for the "clean stream" plan.

82 Registered At Cresaptown

Allegany County's traveling registrars yesterday experienced the second most productive day in their three weeks tour of the county when they registered 82 new voters at Cresaptown.

Visiting the Cresaptown school from 1 to 4 p. m. and from 6 to 9 p. m., Mrs. Zena J. Davis and John R. Kelly, substitute registrars for the Allegany County Board of Election Supervisors entered 49 Republicans and 33 Democrats in the voting books.

This compared to their heaviest day, April 23, at Mt. Savage when 88 persons were registered.

In addition 25 transferees were registered at Cresaptown. Kelly said that although Cresaptown is in Election District No. 7, most of those registered were from Bowling Green, District 6-6, with about 10 persons signing from Cresaptown.

Today the two substitute registrars will visit Ellerslie and Corriganville. They will be at Ellerslie Community Building from 1 to 4 p. m. and at Corriganville Fire Hall from 6 to 9.

Thursday the two will be at Eckhart school house for two sessions from 1 to 4 and again from 6 to 9 p. m.

Yesterday's registration brought to 485 the total number of persons registered since the program began April 12.

Fuhrman presented a four-point plan for making a clean stream of the Potomac in this area at a meeting of the commission here yesterday.

World Problems Sessions Will Be Open To Public

All sessions of the two-day Appalachian Inter-Collegiate Conference which opens Friday at Frostburg State Teachers College will be free and open to the public, the college announced yesterday.

The conference, although planned primarily as a student gathering for the discussion of world problems, also is designed to permit interested persons in the Tri-State area to hear addresses by representatives of other countries.

Keyed to the theme "A New Outlook on a U. N. World," the conference will include talks by representatives of the diplomatic services of France, China, Turkey and the United States. Panel discussions, seminars and open discussions also are planned.

Dr. Carraud, who took his higher degrees at the University of Paris, is a graduate of the school of Political Science at Paris. He has done diplomatic duty at Madrid, Bucharest, Athens and Rome.

The college International Relations Club, sponsor of the event, is making arrangements for scores of students who are expected to come from colleges all over the Eastern United States for the conference.

James R. Lemmert, club president, and Leo Stakem, conference chairman, pointed out that no charge will be made for any of the sessions expect the banquet on the two evenings of the gathering. Special rates are available to resident students at the college.

Some 312 alcoholic beverage licenses have been approved by the Allegany County Board of License Commissioners for the new license year which starts Saturady, May 1.

Only one remonstrance was received during the two days of hearings Monday and yesterday. That concerned the proposed issuance of a beer license to the Bowman's Addition Volunteer Fire Company.

Ten Bowman's Addition residents signed the remonstrance. They include Charles A. Roy, Ruth S. Roy, Rev. Elva C. Brotemarkle, Thomas L. Clark, James H. Brotemarkle, Robert Weaver, Mrs. Robert Weaver, Herman Greise, Emory Moore and Mrs. Boyd Sulser. A hearing on the remonstrance will be conducted at 10 a. m. Tuesday, May 18.

Only one of the new licenses for beer, wine and liquor. It it a club-type license which was awarded Cecil Randolph Jr. Post 271, American Legion, at 9 West Mechanic Street, Frostburg.

Four new beer licenses were approved yesterday. Two of them are Class A licenses for off-premises consumption. They went to Frank E. Jaumot Sr. for premises at 424 Walnut Street, and William G. Beier, for premises at 108 Greene Street. The other two are for on-and-off-premises consumption. They were issued to Mrs. Emma May Corley, for premises at 120 South Mechanic Street, and Mrs. Eleanor Smith for premises at 201 North Mechanic Street.

Delegate Cook Commends Youths In 'Legislature'

Delegate Noel Speir Cook of Frostburg, who has returned from Annapolis where he served on the Governor's Advisory Committee to the 11th annual Model Legislature, yesterday issued a statement commending the 32 boys and girls from Allegany County who attended the session last Thursday through Saturday.

"Allegany County can be mighty proud of the very able representation their boys and girls gave in Annapolis last week. They acted like young statesmen and seriously went about their business of preparing resolutions and bills," Cook said.

The member of the County Delegation had special praise for Joel Downey of Frostburg, who served as Boy Governor. Young Downey prepared his own speeches and veto messages and otherwise conducted himself well. Winfield H. Adam, general secretary of Central YMCA, was commended for his advance work in preparing the Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y members.

Two Soloists Also Will Appear

Some 13 selections are included in the program for the Allegany County Elementary-Junior High School Band Festival which will b presented at 8 p. m. Friday at Beall High School in Frostburg, according to W. Valgene Routch, supervisor of music education in the county schools.

Two soloists will be featured during an intermission between the elementary and junior high school portions of the concert.

George Williams, who is a student at LaVale Elementary School, will play a trombone solo, "I'm Getting Sentimental Over You," the old Tommy Dorsey theme song. He also will play "When You and I were Young, Maggie." His accompanist will be Mrs. Darlene Brain Pepper, fifth grade teacher at LaVale.

The other soloist will be James Diehl, a junior high school student at Fort Hill. His violin solo will be "Czardos" by Monti. His accompanist will be Delores Rowley, a Fort Hill student.

The all-county elementary band, a 175-piece musical organization, will open the program with four selections Friday night. The first two numbers will be "Chapel Echoes," a tone poem, and "Graduation," a grand march. Harry Malcolm, who teaches woodwind, brass and percussion in a number of county schools, will serve as conductor for the opening selections.

Glass Company Files Deed For Another Tract

Friendly Suit Seeks Clear Title

A fourth deed for property in the North Branch area which the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company is acquiring for possible construction of an industrial plant was filed for record yesterday in the office of Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court.

The deed conveys to the company some 99.4 acres which have been owned by James W. Stickley, Charity May Stickley and Samuel S. Stickley. Recorded last Friday were three other deeds for a total of some 260 acres of North Branch land.

The Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company is in the process of acquiring a total of some 600 acres as an industrial site.

Another development in this process of obtaining land is the filing of an equity suit in the name of Rachel Bloss, widow of George W. Bloss, in Allegany County Circuit Court against some 35 adults and three infants.

This is termed a friendly suit and is being brought to assure good title to the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company for several small parcels of land needed at North Branch. Involved are technical defects in the title of several tracts which Mrs. Bloss, who is now 93 years old, sold there, and the possibility that she may not be entitled to sell some 22 acres which she still owns.

The uncertainty stems from interpretation of the will of Mrs. Bloss' husband, who died on or about March 9 ,1941.

In the bill of complaint, Mrs. Bloss, through her attorney, William C. Walsh, asks one of three determinations from the court. His first request is that the court decide that Mrs. Bloss had a legal right to convey the property in her own name. An alternative request is that the court state that she had a right to sell the property because she needed the money to provide for her needs. A second alternative ruling requested is that the transactions were legal because everyone involved benefitted from them.

Also filed for record in the clerk's office yesterday was the assignment of options from Albert H. Hargreaves, director of industrial promotion for the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, to the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company. That assignment was dated last October 28. It was not until March 17 that the company decided to exercise the options.

Registration Office Will Be Open Saturday

The Cumberland Registration Office will be open Saturday from 9 a. m. to noon, according to Wallace G. Ullery, city clerk.

Additional hours will also be scheduled on Saturday, May 8, for the benefit of those who work Monday through Friday and have been unable to visit the registration office.

A city drive, under way for several months to get all eligible citizens on the voting books, has been disappointing.

On March 31, there were 14,560 citizens registered on the city's continuous registration records.

Officials have been expecting the number to rise to the 15,000 mark by May 11, the deadline for registration prior to the June 1 and 15 elections.

Unless a last-minute rush develops, the number will fall short of the goal, since only 157 new voters have signed up so far this month.

Monday, normally a good registration day, was disappointing, since only 8 turned up.

The City Registration Office is located in the basement of City Hall, with entrance from the first floor or from Bedford Street.

It is open on Mondays through Fridays from 9 a. m. to noon and from 1 to 5 p. m., and will be open on May 1 and 8 from 9 a. m. to noon.

Judges Grant Motion Setting Pollack Free

Opinion Raises Another Question

James H. (Jack) Pollack, prominent Baltimore Democratic political leader, yesterday, was acquitted in Allegany County Circuit Court of a charge that he attempted to obstruct justice, when Associate Judges George Henderson and Morgan C. Harris ordered a directed verdict of not guilty.

In settling the question concerning Pollack the two judges raised another question—which they left unanswered—concerning Michael Julian, a Baltimore restaurant operator.

The judges concluded their five-page opinion with the following statement:

"In conclusion, however, we wish to say that there has been brought into this case a letter which one Mike Julian is alleged to have written and pursuaded George Baccala to copy and for him and Corridi to sign and send to James H. Pollack. The State's Attorney may conclude that in so doing Mike Julian violated the law; and if so, we are sure he will take necessary and proper action in the matter."

Opinion Quoted

Judge Harris read the opinion, more of which follows:

"There is no direct testimony that the traverser, James H. Pollack, invited Benjamin Sudano, George Baccala and Armond Corridi to his home on Sunday, November 29, 1953, but, nevertheless, they went to his home together with Michael and Philip Sudano, and the latter two remained in the car outside of the Pollack home.

"The only material things in connection with this offense said by Pollack on that occasion were as follows: He asked George Baccala, "Who was in the car—you, Bobo (Michael Sudano) and the two girls, and that is all?" He repeated this question a number of times. When Baccala testified in his case in the Criminal Court of Baltimore City he stated that he, Michael Sudano, Philip Sudano, the two girls and Roosevelt D'Alesandro were in the car. He asked Armond Corridi if he was with "Roosy" (obviously Roosevelt D'Alesandro) in the car. Corridi's answer to this was in the negative.

"These are the only two pertinent and material statements made by Pollack which would tend to implicate him in the charge of endeavoring to obstruct justice.

"Since the adoption of the amendment to the Maryland Constitution, Article 15, Section 5, effective December 1, 1950, we have the right and duty, when the question is properly submitted, as in the instant case, to pass upon

C & A Will Seek Gas Rate Boost In West Virginia

Commission Cites Company's Books

West Virginia customers of the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company may be getting a boost in gas rates, as the company announced yesterday it would ask for such an increase "as soon as possible."

This was disclosed "to keep the company's position clear on the major issues at stake," in the West Virginia Public Service Commission's dismissal of C&A's request for $632,000 annual rate increase, according to C. C. Robbins, local company manager.

The gas company's request was denied on the grounds that the company had not shown the proposed rates were "just and reasonable" and that the company books did not show the actual expense the company incurred in providing natural gas service in West Virginia during the period under study.

Bookkeeping At Fault

Specifically, the Commission said company books had not been kept in compliance with a January 1, 1951 order of that body. Referring to that order, Robbins said:

"Our company has been keeping its books and records since 1939 in accordance with a uniform system used by some 44 states, the Federal Power Commission and what we thought were the requirements of the West Virginia Commission."

Robbins said the Commission received copies of C&A's 1951, 1952 and 1953 annual reports on operations after issuing the January, 1951 order.

"In view of the fact that the Commission made no objection to the manner in which we presented that bookkeeping information, we had no reason to believe that our records were not in full accordance with the Commission's 1951 order," he stated.

"Technical" Dismissal

Robbins said his company's plea for higher rates was dismissed primarily on a "procedural" or "technical" point and that there was "no question but that the company must have an increase to compensate for higher operating costs brought on by inflation and to help pay a fair return on the substantially larger amounts of money already invested in the company."

He said the company, which stated it was making under a 1½ per cent return on its West Virginia investments in its rate bid, was still considering an appeal from the Commission's order.

The appeal would go first to the West Virginia Supreme Court and could ultimately be taken to the federal courts or to the Supreme Court of the United States.

Suspended Term Given Man Who Set Woods Afire

Charles Thompson, 61, of RD 2 Williams Road, yesterday in Trial Magistrates Court received a suspended sentence of one year in the Maryland House of Correction after pleading guilty to two state charges of starting a forest fire which destroyed nearly 100 acres of timberland April 21.

Thompson admitted to Magistrate Donald W. Mason he set the fire which burned a square mile section of woodland at Piney Flat near Wildcat Hollow and spread rapidly up the slope to the top of Irons Mountain.

Volunteer firemen from three companies, District 16, Baltimore Pike and Bedford Road, helped forestry workers to put out the fire. The blaze for awhile threatened two dwellings in the area and also came close to a television company antenna tower before being brought under control.

Brooke Bodkin, district forest supervisor for Maryland, charged Thompson with negligence in starting the fire while burning brush, and also with violation of Regulation 4 of the Department of Forests and Parks, which prohibits the starting of fires until 4 p. m. for any purpose and which also prohibits the burning of anything within 200 yards of timberland.

Magistrate Mason sentenced Thompson to six months in the House of Correction on each count and then suspended sentence, paroling the man for two years on condition he reimburse the state for $254 in costs for combatting and extinguishing the fire and be of general good behavior.

Appeals Court Hears Little Plea

ANNAPOLIS, April 27 (AP) — A Cumberland pool room operator faced the Court of Appeals today seeking overthrow of his conviction on 15 counts of gambling law violations.

Attorneys for Leonard (Chick) Little argued that the investigation which brought about the trial was illegal in that two state policemen were called into the matter by the police commissioner of Cumberland rather than the chief of police.

The argument was based on the law which says the chief police officer of a city or the city's chief executive may call in State Police.

Circuit Judge Joseph D. Mish sentenced Little to six months in the House of Correction and fined him $1,000 in the trial that was moved to Hagerstown.

Mish ruled in the December trial that John J. Long, as police commissioner, could be considered the chief police officer of the city.

The policemen testified they placed a bet with Edward Chapel, a co-defendant who was not tried because of illness, last Aug. 29 and that Little returned their $7 the next day.

George P. Mahoney, Democratic candidate for governor, and Phillip J. Dorsey, Democratic candidate for attorney general, have notified Michael F. Prendergast, local campaign manager, that they will be in this county Wednesday and Thursday.

After attending the Democratic Jackson-Jefferson Day dinner tonight at the Shrine Club, the two candidates plan to remain here for a tour of the county and a rally in Frostburg on Thursday, Prendergast said.

The tour schedule is outlined as follows: 9 a. m. until noon, tour of South Cumberland; 1 p. m. Lonaconing, at the Brady Hotel; 4:30 p. m., American Legion Home in Midland; 5:30 p. m., VFW Home in Mt. Savage; 6:30 p. m. Byrnes' Store, Eckhart; 8:30 p. m., rally at the second floor sun parlor of the Gunter Hotel, Frostburg.

Prendergast issued an invitation to all interested Democrats to join the tour and to meet the two running mates.

The Weather

The rain which fell in Cumberland yesterday was welcome and refreshing although the high winds preceding the rain swirled quite a bit of dirt about the city. As the clouds broke up and the sun came through toward evening, a rainbow was visible over Cumberland. Forecast for today is clear and cooler. The high temperature yesterday was 84 degrees and the low reading was 58. Humidity registered at 7:30 p. m. was 100 per cent and .38 inches of rain had fallen.
